WHITMAN GIVES STATE'S QUOTAS FOR NEW ARMY

69,241 Men Must Be Selected, Including 38,878 from This City.

52,971 OTHERS IN SERVICE

DUE FROM CITY'S DISTRICTS

No. 1, the Largest, Will Provide 265 Soldiers, and No. 153, the Smallest, Only 142.

ALBANY, July 24.—The quotas which the various districts of New York State must furnish to the selective draft army were announced tonight by Governor Whitman. In computing them the political sub-divisions were credited with the number of men they have sent to war service, either in the National Guard or the regular army.

The State's gross quota was fixed by the Federal Government authorities at 122,212. Credits allowed the State at large for men who were in the military service of the United States as members of the National Guard on April 1, who have entered the National Guard from April 2 to June 30 and who have entered the regular army from April 2 to June 30, both dates inclusive in both cases, totaled 52,971. This left a net quota of 69,241 for the State to furnish.

Schenectady County, exclusive of the City of Schenectady, is the only political sub-division which has no net quota to furnish. This was because its gross quota of 174 was exceeded by 22 by the total number, 196, in war service before the draft law became operative. The City of Elmira has the smallest quota of any city in the State, 9 men. This was also due to enlistment credits.

In a statement accompanying the quotas Governor Whitman said:

"In arriving at the quotas for the several counties and cities, apportionment in every case have been made upon the estimated populations made by the (Federal) Bureau of Census and furnished to the State solely for use as a basis for the apportionment."

Double the number of men specified will be summoned for examination in each district, according to a War Department ruling, in order to provide for the many exemptions expected. However, the district quotas fixed by the Governor will comprise the number each locality must furnish for war service under the first draft.

City's Share in Draft.

The quotas required from the 180 exemption boards in this city, published elsewhere in today's TIMES, will reach the Chairmen of those boards this morning. The quotas were completed in the office of Adjutant General Stotesbury last night, and the New York City list was brought here by special messenger. District 1 in the Bronx is called upon to supply the largest number of men, 265, while District 153 will supply the smallest, 142. Only four districts are called upon to draft more than 250 men, the others being No. 60 in Brooklyn, and Nos. 130 and 138 in Manhattan.

The total number of registrants in a district proved to be no indication as to the quota allotted to that district. For instance, District 167 in Manhattan, which has the largest number of registrants—4,696—of any district in the city, is called upon for 229 soldiers, while the district in which the registration was smallest, the 161st, also in Manhattan, with 2,034 registrants, will have to provide 214 fighting men, or just 15 less than the quota of the city's largest district.

In Brooklyn the district in which registration is highest is the Thirty-seventh, where the registration totaled 4,162, while the smallest registration in that borough is in District 70, where 2,097 is the registration total. District 37 will have to supply 244 and District 70 the call is for 179 soldiers.

In the Bronx the registration in the Fifth District is the second largest in the city, the total for that district being 4,641, while the Seventh District has the smallest registration in the Bronx, its total being 2,298, yet the big district is ordered to supply 227 men, while the smaller district, in which the registration is only half as large, is ordered to produce 195, or just thirty-two less than the maximum district.

In the Borough of Richmond all districts have a registration varying from 2,300 to 2,000 registrants, and the number called for from each district varies only from 186 in the lowest to 193, which is the maximum.

In Queens the 179th District had a registration of 4,034, and is called on for 230 men. The 181st District, the smallest, with a registration of 2,140, is called on for 181.

The smallness of the quota in some of the larger districts indicates that in those sections the recruitment for the regular army and the National Guard has been heaviest in New York City. It should also be borne in mind that in such districts where credits were greatest soldiers in the Federal service on June 5 were not required to register, which makes the showing of those districts of still greater significance.

The credits allowed New York City because of volunteer enlistments since April 1 in the National Guard and in the regular army, was pleasing informa-

Kaiser Tells Scheidemann We Won't Count in the War

BERNE, July 24, (British Admiralty, per Wireless Press.)—The Post-Zeitung of Augsburg, Bavaria, says that, at the reception given recently in Berlin by Emperor William to members of the Reichstag, the Emperor, in conversing with Philipp Scheidemann, the Socialist leader, spoke slightingly of America and expressed the conviction that the United States would not play a decisive part in the war.

FRENCH ON AISNE WIN BIG BATTLE

GUNS ROARING IN FLANDERS

PARIS, July 24.—In spite of the terrible sacrifice of men in their futile attempts to retake the plateaus north of Craonne, the Germans tonight are back in the positions whence they launched their first attacks several weeks ago.

The French launched a vigorous counterattack this morning, with the purpose of driving the Crown Prince's troops from the positions of the French first line on the Casemates and Californie plateaus. The attack was a brilliant success. The War Office announces this evening that on the Californie Plateau the French troops recaptured all the ground lost with the exception of a small salient in the northwest which was abandoned by both sides after being completely destroyed. The Germans put up a stubborn defense.

On the Casemates Plateau the French not only drove the Germans out of all positions they had occupied, but even advanced their line at some points.

Northwest of Braye-en-Laonnois, further west along the Chemin des Dames, the Germans made two attempts during the night to reach the French lines, but they were driven back each time. Between Cerny and Ailles the enemy also made an attack which resulted in failure.

The text of this evening's report follows:

This morning we vigorously counterattacked the German troops who had occupied since the hard fighting of the day before yesterday elements of our first line on the Casements and Californie plateaus. Carried out with extraordinary spirit, the attack gave brilliant results. Notwithstanding the stubborn defense offered by the Germans, our troops recaptured all of the ground lost on the Californie Plateau, with the exception of a small work, which was completely destroyed, in the salient to the northwest, and abandoned by both sides.

On the Casemates Plateau we drove out the enemy from all the elements he had held; we even advanced our line at several points. German counterattacks delivered against the reconquered trenches resulted in no gain.

The afternoon statement said:

The night was marked by violent bombardments. In the region northwest of Braye-en-Laonnois the enemy made two attempts to reach our lines. He was driven back each time. In the morning a detachment of shock troops, caught under our fire north of Sancy, was forced back to the trenches whence it set out after suffering serious losses and leaving prisoners in our possession.

Further east the enemy attacked between Cerny and Ailles without result. The artillery fighting continued violently in the sector in front of Craonne, especially on the Californie Plateau. On the remainder of the front there was intermittent cannonading.

During the night German airplanes threw down several bombs on Nancy and in the region south of the town. There were no victims.

Great Gun Battle in Flanders.

BERLIN, July 24, (via London.)—An artillery battle of an intensity never paralleled previously is raging day and night in Flanders, the War Office announces.

The text of the statement follows:

Army Group of Crown Prince Rupprecht.—The artillery duel in Flanders continues to rage day and night with an intensity never previously reached. Reconnoitring thrusts against our front are increasing. Between La Bassée Canal and Lens lively firing continues. Nocturnal reconnoitring enterprises by the enemy on both sides of Hulluch were unsuccessful.

Front of the German Crown Prince.—On the Chemin-des-Dames the French again attacked the tried Thirteenth Infantry Division near Cerny, which, as before, did not lose one foot of the positions won by them during their attack. Infantry Regiment 55, composed of Westphalian and Lippe troops, has repulsed twenty-one French attacks in the last few days.

On the right bank of the Meuse Sunday detachments of the Baden Regiment forced their way into the strongly entrenched Caurières Wood, inflicted heavy losses on the enemy, and returned with numerous prisoners.

The German announcement indicates that in all likelihood the expected Brit-

TEUTONS STRIKE FROM THE BALTIC TO THE BLACK SEA

MUTINY SPREADS NORTH

Regiments on Dvinsk-Vilna Front Abandon Enemy's Positions After Capturing Them.

PETROGRAD, July 24.—Stanislau is being evacuated by the Russians, according to tonight's official statement. The Germans have crossed the Sereth River in the region of Mikulice, (south of Tarnopol,) defeating Russian detachments. South of the Dniester the Russians are retiring eastward.

After the Russians had occupied the German positions on both sides of the Dvinsk-Vilna railroad, entire units returned to their original trenches.

Western Front—Southwest of Dvinsk our detachments, after strong artillery preparation, occupied German positions on both sides of the Dvinsk-Vilna Railway. After this success entire units, without any pressure on the part of the Germans, voluntarily returned to their original trenches. A number of these units refused to carry out military commands during the battle.

Detachments of the Twenty-fourth Division, the Tulsk, Lovitsky and Saraosky Regiments, and the "Battalion of Death" acted heroically, and, as at other points, the gallantry of the officers was noteworthy. Their losses were large. The chief of the division, General Dojennov, is suffering from gas poisoning.

In the direction of Vilna and in the region north of Krevo the enemy delivered a number of counterattacks and succeeded in occupying one of the heights north of Bogush, which we captured July 22. Heroic exertion by the officers was required to restrain the men from withdrawing to the rear in great numbers.

There have been fusillades on the Sereth as far as Tarnapol. In the region of Zagorbel—a suburb of Tarnopol—the enemy is delivering intense concentrated artillery fire. In the region of Mikulice, on the Sereth, the enemy crossed to the eastern bank of the river, defeating our detachments and occupying the village of Voiya Masoveckaya.

Between the Sereth and the Stripa the enemy continues his offensive, and toward the evening of July 23 he occupied Bernaduvku, Dorchuv, and Burkanuv. Northwest of Buczacz our troops are holding the Gaivoronka-Monasterzysk line.

South of the Dniester our troops are retiring in an eastern direction, Stanislau is being evacuated.

Rumanian Front—In the region of the village of Domuk a "battalion of death" attacked enemy trenches and, after penetrating the wire entanglements, entered the trenches and captured fifty prisoners and three machine guns. The battalion then returned to its own trenches.

On the remainder of the front an artillery battle has begun.

Caucasus Front.—In conjunction with the torpedo boats Strogi and Smyetilvyi, our artillery has bombarded Tireboli, (on the Black Sea, east of Trebizond,) destroying Turkish depots and a barracks. Under cover of artillery fire our scouts, crossing the River Karshut Darasi, attacked a strong part of the defenders and returned to their own trenches with an officer and twenty-one men prisoners.

There have been fusillades on the remainder of the front.

Berlin Reports Great Successes.

BERLIN, July 24, (via London.)—Over the entire eastern front, from the Baltic to the Black Sea, bitter fighting is proceeding, today's official statement says. Great successes have been obtained by the German and allied arms. In Galicia the Germans are advancing from the river Sereth to the wooded Carpathians over a front of 155 miles wide. The communication reads:

On the whole of the eastern front, between the Baltic and the Black Sea, bitter fighting is in progress and great successes for the Germans and their allied arms are occurring.

Front of Prince Leopold.—Following an attack, in the morning, on a wide front, which was frustrated at the outset by our destructive fire, The Russians in the evening vainly attacked the army group of General von Eichhorn, near Jacobstadt.

Southeast of Dvinsk, after strong artillery firing, the Russians launched six divisions in deep columns five times against our line. The attacks were completely mastered. After hard hand to hand encounters the enemy was compelled to withdraw with terrible losses. During the morning the Russians also again stormed our lines, near Krevo, on a width of five kilometers, but were repulsed. The village of Krevo is again in our hands.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The War Department made an announcement today of a board of army officers, to meet in Paris at the call of the senior officer on the board, for the purpose of examining such officers as may appear before it to determine their fitness for rating as junior military aviators. This is a step toward obtaining American military aviators from among Americans now abroad.

The board consists of Lieut. Col. William Mitchell of the Aviation Section of the Signal Corps; Captain Millard F. Harmon, Jr., junior military aviator, and Captain Davenport Johnson, also a junior military aviator.

A second board has been appointed to meet for the same purpose in Washington. It consists of Major Henry H. Arnold, Captain Henry W. Harms, and Captain Lewis H. Brereton, all junior military aviators.

KERENSKY'S RULE TO BE MERCILESS

Will Beat Russia Into Unity with Blood and Iron, if Necessary, He Says.

BLAMES CRISIS ON LVOFF

PETROGRAD, July 24.—Armed with the unlimited powers which the Joint Congress of Councils of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates and the Council of Peasant Delegates from All Russia has conferred upon his Government, Premier Kerensky is prepared, if necessary, to "beat Russia into unity with blood and iron." These were the words he used today in an interview he gave to The Associated Press. He announced that he would return to the front when the Constitution of his Government had been completed.

"Relying upon the confidence of the masses and the army," he said, "the Government will save Russia and Russian unity by blood and iron, if argument and reason, honor and conscience, are not sufficient.

"The situation at the front is very serious, and demands heroic measures. But I am convinced the organism of the State is sufficiently vigorous to be cured without a partial amputation.

"The first problem of the present moment which is exceptionally heroic is the concentration and unison of power. The desertion of the Constitutional Democratic members of the Prince Lvoff Government, which desertion is the cause of the recent revolt, shows how strong are the centrifugal forces and how small is the sum of our political consciousness. But I am convinced the misfortune through which we are going will awaken the conscience and sense of duty in our nation.

"The new Government's fundamental task is the defense of the country from ruin and anarchy. In this we rely upon the masses of the people and the army. My Government will save Russia, and if its motive of reason, honor, and conscience prove insufficient it will beat her into unity with blood and iron.

"No one will dare take advantage of the present situation in order to attempt to restore the old régime. I find ridiculous the talk about a coming counter-revolution under my leadership.

"The new Government must immediately stop the retreat and the economic dissolution and restore the country's finances. We expect Russia to forget her personal interests and to have in mind only the highest interests of the country."

Regarding conditions on the front Premier Kerensky said:

"The position of our army is serious, requiring heroic measures. But we must not despair. The old régime and certain extremist elements brought much poison into the arms and body. Now the ulcer is cut, and as the State organism is healthier I am convinced we shall avoid amputation.

"My new Government is resolved to increase and to confirm the conquests of revolution and resolutely to put an end to the work of the madmen and traitors who would destroy my fatherland."

THE KERENSKY CABINET.

List of Members Constituting the New Coalition Ministry.

PETROGRAD, July 24.—Premier Kerensky has completed the constitution of the new Provisional Government. Like the Ministry of his predecessor, Prince Lvoff, the Cabinet is a coalition, but is limited to ten members. Five of the Ministers belong to the Socialist group and five are members of non-Socialist parties. The other officers of State will be directed not by Ministers but by unpolitical directors of departments who are not members of the Cabinet. Following is the list:

SOCIALISTS.

ALEXANDER KERENSKY, Minister President and Minister of War and Marine.

M. TSERETELLI, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs.

M. SKOBELEFF, Minister of Labor.

M. TCHERNOFF, Minister of Agriculture.

M. PIESCHEHONOFF, Minister of Supplies.

NON-SOCIALISTS.

N. V. NEBRASOFF, Vice Minister President without Portfolio.

M. TERESTCHENKO, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

M. GODNEFF, Controller of State.

The Directors of Departments so far named are:

Bonar Law Shows That Total Cost to Great Britain Has Reached $26,460,000,000.

AMERICAN HELP WELCOMED

Supply of Money for Allies Assured, Chancellor Says, by Attitude of United States.

LONDON, July 24.—Moving in the House of Commons today a vote of credit for £650,000,000, (about $3,250,000,000,) the largest war credit yet asked by the British Government, and bringing Great Britain's war expenditure to the colossal total of £5,292,000,000, Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, gave startling figures of the growth of the country's financial burden. He emphasized from the financial viewpoint alone the great importance of the United States entering the war as insuring that the Allies would not be deprived of victory through lack of money.

The House was astonished to learn that Great Britain's advances to the allies and dominions had already reached the huge total of over £1,000,000,000. The daily war expenditure, although it shows a substantial improvement over the figures given on May 9, when Mr. Bonar Law asked for the last war credit, still approaches £7,000,000 and exceeds the budget estimate by £1,000,000 daily. Comparing the last seventy-seven days with the first thirty-five days of the financial year, the expenditure shows a reduction of £1,000,000 daily.

Expressing his disappointment over the necessity of such large advances to the Allies, the Chancellor referred to the British standpoint of unselfish generosity in regarding the whole allied cause as one. He explained that "the cost of all the supplies for the Allies produced in Great Britain during the war has been defrayed by England and that previous to the entry of America into the war much of the supplies to the Allies produced abroad had also been paid for by England.

Relies on America's Help.

In a reference to the United States, Mr. Bonar Law said:

"When America entered the struggle we realized that a great chance had come over the Allies' financial strength. President Wilson was slow, and, in my judgment, rightly slow in bringing his country to the vortex of this terrible war. But, having come in, he has shown by his speeches in the clearest way that he is determined to throw the whole weight of the nation he heads into the scale. I am sure that, although naturally it takes time to make the financial arrangements needful in a war like this, the President and the great nation he represents will deal in this matter with the same spirit of generosity, or rather of realization of what the whole issue means, as has been shown by England, and that we can rely on receiving in the United States resources which are necessary to pay for supplies of all kinds required by the Allies in America.

"Indeed, it is an open secret that we had spent so freely of our resources that those available in America had become nearly exhausted when our great ally entered the struggle. Obviously, the extent to which supplies of all kinds can be obtained in the United States will depend largely on the ability—for I am sure of the goodwill—of the American Government to meet the demands that will be made upon it by the Allies."

Expects a Large Deficit.

The Chancellor estimated the net increased expenditure at £33,500,000, not including advances to Great Britain's allies, which represented an increase of £800,000 daily. It was obvious, he said, that the budget estimate must be exceeded, and he would not be surprised if by the end of the financial year the excess were approximately the same as that of the last financial year.

The total advances to the dominions of Great Britain, Mr. Bonar Law stated, were £146,000,000. Part of the increased army expenditure, he explained as due to the fact that Great Britain had made greater payments to India for services rendered in connection with the war. This meant that a larger force had been obtained from India than had been expected when the estimate was framed. There was also an increased expenditure for airplanes. Another increase in army expenditure was due to the fact that the casualties at the front had been lower than last year.

McKenna Predicts Higher Costs.

Reginald McKenna, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, who followed Bonar Law, said the figures which the Chancellor had given of the daily expenditure did not constitute all the outgo. There had to be added the very large amount which must be expended on the interest on the debt and the amount expended on other services not dealt with under the vote of credit. A total daily expenditure of £8,000,000 before the close of the present financial year, Mr. McKenna thought, could be expected.

Mr. McKenna said there was a limit to the total of expenditure beyond which the nation could not go without forcing prices up to a point where grave unrest would be caused. He considered that the Chancellor ought to choose the service upon which he could afford to expend the money, which was strictly limited in its total amount.

The country's revenue, Mr. McKenna

War's Effect on World's Financial Markets Shown in Steady Decline of Exchange Abroad

GENEVA, July 24.—The Lausanne Gazette, in a financial article published today, says:

"Not since the War of Secession has the American dollar fallen so low. It was quoted here today at 4 francs 46 centimes, while before the war it stood at 5.12. One hundred rubles, which were worth 266 francs before the war, are now quoted at 99 francs. One hundred marks are worth less than half their value, while 100 Austrian crowns were quoted at 39.80 francs. For the first time in history the Italian lira is worth more than the mark. The steady decline in the value of money began a month ago, and is continuing."

COPENHAGEN, July 24.—American exchange dropped today to 341, a new low record, about 10 per cent. below parity. Exchange in the case of all the belligerent countries shows a considerable depreciation in Denmark, the Russian and Austrian being the lowest. The German mark is 47 per cent. below par.

The depreciation of the American dollar in the Swiss and Scandinavian markets is not a development of recent weeks, as rates have displayed a substantial discount practically all of the current year. The discount of the dollar in Switzerland and Denmark is merely another way of saying that the Swiss and Danish exchanges are at a premium here. The explanation lies in the fact that exigencies of the war have prevented the normal movement of gold in settlement of American balances in the European countries, and, as Switzerland and Denmark have exported more than they have imported, the American balance of trade has to be liquidated through remittances in exchange instead of goods or gold. With the supply of exchange limited, rates have been bid up on this side, with an accompanying drop of the dollar in the foreign markets.

GOETHALS RESIGNS; DENMAN DROPPED

E. N. Hurley Heads Ship Board and Admiral Capps Directs Building.

COLBY SUCCEEDS WHITE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Realizing that it had become a national scandal, President Wilson ended the shipbuilding controversy abruptly today by eliminating from the situation both William Denman, Chairman of the Shipping Board, and Major Gen. George W. Goethals, General Manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

The resignation of Mr. Denman was requested by the President, who wrote that the problems confronted could be solved, in his opinion, only by making a fresh start.

General Goethals, it developed, had asked to be relieved of his duties on July 20, basing his request on a letter received by him from the President on the day before.

The text of this letter was withheld, but it was said that by its terms President Wilson denied to General Goethals the supreme powers which he felt necessary to successful work, and which, he wrote in resigning, he was sure were his to exercise.

Coincident with this action it was announced that the President had selected Edward N. Hurley of Chicago, a former Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, to replace Mr. Denman and Rear Admiral Washington Lee Capps, former Chief Constructor of the navy, to succeed General Goethals. Both accepted. The nomination of Mr. Hurley was sent to the Senate this afternoon. It was not necessary to get the Senate's consent to the appointment of Admiral Capps.

Mr. Hurley made this announcement:

"I appreciate the importance of the task with which the President has intrusted me. We must build ships, not talk about them. American labor, the most skillful and intelligent in the world, can turn out the ships in record-breaking time, and we are going to buckle down and get busy."

Colby Succeeds White.

The clean-up, however, did not end with Denman and Goethals. President Wilson decided also to accept the resignation tendered about three weeks ago by Captain John B. White, a member of the Shipping Board and a Denman partisan. Captain White was replaced by Bainbridge Colby, a New York attorney, and one of the Progressives who, in the last national campaign, refused to return to the Republican Party, and joined with Colonel John M. Parker of Louisiana, nominated for Vice President by the Progressives, in the support of Mr. Wilson. Mr. Colby's nomination also was sent to the Senate.

It is understood tonight that Theodore Brent, Vice Chairman of the Shipping Board, one of Mr. Denman's closest adherents, has offered to withdraw if the President feels it is for the best interests of the country. Mr. Brent was still in office tonight, however. The other members of the board, John A. Donald of New York and R. B. Stevens, have not offered to resign. They are both classified as "Goethals supporters."

As a result, there still remain in office a majority of the five members of the

FIGHT OVER WAR BOARD ON TODAY

MANN MARSHALS OPPOSITION

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Further delay on the Food Administration bill was brought about in the House today when Representative Mann, the Republican floor leader, prevented sending the measure to conference, and various members asked for separate votes on Senate amendments. Mr. Mann, aided by a large number of Republicans, will attempt to put through a motion to concur in the Senate amendment appointing a joint Congressional committee to supervise war expenditures. The President has made an implied threat to veto the bill if it comes to him with this provision in it.

Unable to obtain unanimous consent to send the food measure direct to conference, Chairman Lever of the Committee on Agriculture obtained from the Rules Committee a favorable report on a special rule to throw the bill into conference without instructing the conferees. This rule will be presented tomorrow unless unanimous consent can be obtained.

The session of the House today was one of noise, objections, and parliamentary tangles. There were clamors for recognition from a number of members who desired to bind the conferees, and Speaker Clark had difficulty in keeping order. Chairman Lever insisted that the bill be sent to conference, where the difficulties between the two houses might be adjusted in the regular manner.

Almost a National Scandal.

"The delay on this food control bill amounts almost to a national scandal already," said Mr. Lever. "I do not want to see the House put itself into an attitude to be criticised for delay in the passage of this bill. I want the blame to rest where it belongs."

That there was formidable support in the House for Section 23 of the Senate bill, which creates a joint supervisory committee on war expenditures, was revealed when Representative Mann said the Republican side was practically unanimous for that section. Notwithstanding the President's letter to Mr. Lever, made public last night, wherein Mr. Wilson said that he would interpret the adoption of such an amendment as a lack of confidence in him, one of the Democratic leaders of the House said there was prospect of considerable Democratic support for the section.

Mr. Mann will renew his efforts tomorrow to have the House concur in this Senate amendment, so that it will not go to conference at all. Democrats contend there is politics in the attitude of the Republican side.

Mr. Mann told the House there was little chance that this section would survive the conference.

"The majority of the conferees," he said, "will be of the President's own party, and we want a separate vote in the House on this proposition."

The fight tomorrow will come first on the special rule to send the bill to conference. Should this rule fail, a motion will be in order to move to concur in the Senate amendment.

Other Demands for Divisions.

Representative Randall of California said he would contend for a separate vote on the prohibition amendment.

Representative Shackleford of Mis-

WAR BILL NOW 9 BILLIONS

Smoot Looks for $5,000,000,000 Additional Loan to Allies, McAdoo Says $2,000,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—As the Senate Finance Committee was about to offer its report to the Senate today on the $1,670,000,000 War Revenue bill, word came to Senator Simmons, Chairman of the committee, that Secretary McAdoo wanted $5,000,000,000 more for immediate war uses and that he was on his way to the Capitol to talk about it.

Senator Simmons hastily called the members of the Finance Committee together, and it was voted to hold up the report on the War Revenue bill until the Senators had conferred with the Secretary of the Treasury. The word from Secretary McAdoo threw the committee's plans into chaos.

Mr. McAdoo reached the Capitol soon after noon. He explained that the $5,000,000,000 was needed for the immediate requirements of the army and navy. He urged that the Finance Committee either increase the taxes it had arranged for in the War Revenue bill, so as to make up part of the money needed, or that a separate budget be prepared.

It is understood that Mr. McAdoo informed the committee that the War Department had altered some of its arrangements so that much more money would be required for carrying out immediate plans than had been expected. The War Department's plan, it was said tonight, embraces the sending of large additional forces abroad. It was reported also that the Administration contemplated raising an additional increment for the National Army.

New Bond Issue Probable.

The Finance Committee asked Mr. McAdoo to submit an estimate of what was needed. This the Secretary promised to do. His estimate is expected before the end of the week. By the time the Secretary submits it the committee probably will have to come to some decision as to how the $5,000,000,000 can be raised.

Senator Simmons did not know, he said tonight, if any part of the extra money would be applied to taxes in the War Revenue bill. It was quite likely, he said, that part of it might be put in as a bond issue. This might be an issue of anywhere from $2,000,000,000 up. The War Revenue bill as drafted, Senator Simmons said, could be amended so as to put a considerable tax upon consumers. This the committee endeavored to avoid in framing the bill.

"I cannot say what the disposition of the majority of the committee will be as to putting a heavy tax on consumers," said the Senator. "We didn't get very far today in our discussion of what changes to make in the bill, as we were busy listening to Mr. McAdoo. There are many sources of taxation that may be applied to the consumer.

"Practically two-thirds of the tax as we arranged it in this bill has been put upon corporation income and corporation war profits. To start taxing the consumer directly is only a matter of 'breaking the ice.' If we start in to do it, we can get a large proportion of the money wanted. But we do not intend to go to extremes. Bond issues will have to make up the major part of the money Mr. McAdoo asks."

War Bill Now $9,226,000,000.

Before the Finance Committee went into conference Senator Smoot, one of its Republican members, in a speech in the Senate said that the war bill of America already was $9,226,000,000, and that the $5,000,000,000 asked by Mr. McAdoo would swell the aggregate by the end of the year to $14,226,000,000.

"We haven't got our army together yet," said Senator Smoot. "Yet we have put out more than $9,000,000,000. The stupendous amount we shall reach by the end of this year equals all the bond issues of Great Britain since the start of the war. About half the $3,000,000,000 authorized loan to the Allies already has been turned over and the other half will be turned over in a few weeks. Soon, I believe, we shall have to give another loan of fully $5,000,000,000 to the Allies.

"In view of these extraordinary figures, I want to say that no Senator can object to the closest scrutiny of war expenditures. I believe the people of this country are willing to pay anything, so long as we win this war. But they will want to know how the money is being spent, and they are entitled to know."

It is understood that the request for the additional $5,000,000,000 was made principally in anticipation of assembling a second army of 500,000 men under the selective draft. It is said the new estimate will also include $500,000,000 additional for the Shipping Board and $100,000,000 for the Navy Department. To help meet these demands the war revenue measure probably will be increased by from $350,000,000 to $1,500,000,000.

Two Billions More for Allies.

Besides the additional sums needed for the American war program, Secretary McAdoo told the Senate Committee that the $3,000,000,000 authorized for loans to the Allies probably would last only until October, and that about $2,000,000,000 for their further assistance would be needed. Provision for this, however, is not planned in connection with the pending revenue legislation. It probably will be cosidered at the next session.

The Secretary made no recommendation as to what part of the total should be raised by taxes and what part by bond issues or other credits. It was reported, however, that the Treasury Department would favor raising $1,000,000,000 more than had been planned in taxes, making the tax bill total $2,670,000,000.

As to the tax sources to be tapped to meet the new estimates, the committee for the present is entirely at sea. Mr. McAdoo's announcement came entirely without warning, and more than one committeeman expressed himself as completely staggered by the size of the forthcoming estimate. The first disposition was to turn to new taxes on war excess profits and incomes.

A meeting of the committee will be held immediately after the new estimates are submitted. At today's meeting a resolution was adopted calling for submission of new estimates by all departments, so that the whole war expenditure program may be considered in connection with the pending war tax legislation. The $5,000,000,000 army increase, Secretary McAdoo informed the committee, would provide for expenditures until July 1, 1918.

ARGENTINA WELCOMES AMERICAN SQUADRON

BUENOS AIRES, July 24.—The American squadron arrived at Buneos Aires about 4 o'clock this afternoon. Argentine warships preceded the visitors, who were enthusiastically cheered by great crowds that gathered at the quay. An official Reception Committee greeted the Admiral and other American officers, and when the American sailors landed they were acclaimed by 70,000 persons.

The visiting Americans got a splendid reception, the papers estimating that 150,000 persons gathered to witness their arrival. Crowds followed the American officers and sailors to the embassy, where Admiral Caperton was loudly acclaimed. He appeared on the balcony and expressed his thanks, declaring that he was greatly touched by the evidence of cordiality and hoped for happiness for all of the Americas. The American and allied national anthems, as well as that of Argentina, were rendered, an dafter the reception some of the American officers, accompanied by Argentine officers, proceeded to the naval circle, continually applauded as they moved through the streets.

Admiral Caperton, in an interview, said he was greatly pleased with the sympathy shown by the Argentine people.

Buenos Aires was illuminated tonight in honor of the Americans, the Government Palace, the House of Congress, the Cathedral and municipal buildings being particularly brilliant.

The Government expressed condolences to Admiral Caperton on the death of an officer on the voyage.

The Minister of Foreign Affairs gave a dinner tonight in honor of the American Admiral and his staff.

Severe measures of surveillance of the docks during the visit of the American squadron have been taken by the authorities here. The squadron was held up by the fog in the outer roadstead for several hours and was piloted to port by the Argentine cruiser Buenos Aires.

After welcoming addresses one of the first acts of the visiting marines will be to leave a wreath at the tomb of General José de San Martin, the South American liberator, and at the statue of Washington. The Americans have received the freedom of the city during their stay. There will be numerous luncheons and dinners, including one given by leading men of Argentina, at which ex-Minister Norberto Pinero will deliver an address.

The greatest enthusiasm is shown here in connection with the visit of the squadron. The city is decorated with flags and bunting, and long before the time for the squadron's arrival crowds gathered on the waterfront. The larger business houses granted a half holiday to their employes. All the newspapers extend a most cordial greeting to the Americans.

Various political, philanthropical, athletic, and aquatic organizations are arranging a long program for the officers and men of the squadron. A concert will be held at the Jockey Club tomorrow under the patronage of prominent women of Buneos Aires, and the American Society of the River Plate will give a reception. On Sunday there will be an athletic carnival, in which large numbers of aviators and horsemen will take part. All the theatres will give gala performances, and the traction companies have arranged special schedules to take care of the crowds. The Minister of War will invite the American officers to review the Grenadiers Regiment.

YEAR FOR BOGUS SOLDIER.

A Federal jury, after deliberating less than ten minutes, returned a verdict of guilty last night in the case of Arthur E. Luzzi, a jewelry dealer of 170 Fifth Avenue, who was arrested ten days ago charged with posing as a Captain in the medical arm of the regular army. Luzzi was also found guilty of defrauding enlisted men of the National Guard by selling them bogus official identification rings.

When the verdict was announced, Assistant United States District Attorney Harold A. Content, who prosecuted the case, informed United States Judge Martin L. Manton that the officers of the Eastern Department of the army, on Governors Island, had suggested that all persons convicted of unlawfully wearing the army uniform be severely dealt with, so as to put a stop to hero cranks and swindlers masquerading about the city as military officers. As the jury recommended mercy, Judge Manton sentenced Luzzi to serve a year and a day in the Atlanta Penitentiary on each of the indictments, the sentences to run conourrently.

Luzzi in 1898 served in the Philippines, and a year ago his name was placed on the rolls of the War Department as a person eligible for appointment to the position of Captain of volunteer infantry. Before his arrest Luzzi applied to be allowed to enter the reserve officers' training camp in August.

Deputy Sheriffs from Westchester County yesterday turned over to United States Marshal McCarthy three men who failed to register under the draft law. The prisoners, Henry Zebel and Frank Rayman, Russian Poles, and Richard Banks, a negro of Pleasantville, admitted they had not registered because they had been in the White Plains Jail. Commissioner Hitchcock held the trio in $800 bail each to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Shipping Board, and it therefore will be possible to transact business without waiting for the Senate to confirm the selection of either Mr. Hurley or Mr. Colby, who in the meantime may attend the meetings without the power to vote. The President's selections were rushed to the Senate this afternoon, and it is believed that there will be little delay in that body.

While the blow fell unexpectedly upon Mr. Denman, it was not a surprise at the offices of General Goethals because of the correspondence that had passed between the President and the General.

Two letters written by the President, one accepting the resignation of General Goethals and the other requesting Mr. Denman to withdraw, were made public along with General Goethals's letter of resignation.

In his communications President Wilson used no word of censure. He spoke of General Goethals and Mr. Denman as "men whom I respect and admire." He made it plain, however, that he had come to the conclusion, after weeks of waiting, that an adjustment of their differences could never be found, and that the only wise course to follow was to begin afresh.

The President, in writing to General Goethals, expressed the belief that the shipbuilding program, already started, could readily be pushed to completion if the air was cleared of debates that had darkened it. This and other revelopments today were taken as an indication that in its major details the program mapped out by General Goethals for commandeering ships and letting contracts for fabricating yards would be accepted. The new Shipping Board will take up these matters immediately, and it is possible that the first steps toward the accomplishment of this work will be taken tomorrow.

The Letter to Goethals.

The President wrote as follows to General Goethals:

My dear General Goethals—Your letter of July 20 does you great honor. It is conceived in a fine spirit of public duty, such as I have learned to expect of you. This is, as you say, a case where the service of the public is the only thing to be considered. Personal feelings and personal preferences must be resolutely set aside; and we must do the thing that is most serviceable. It is with that thought in mind that I feel constrained to say that I think that you have interpreted your duty rightly.

No impartial determination of the questions at issue can now set the ship building program promptly and effectively on its way to completion and success. It is best that we take the self-forgetting course you suggest and begin again with a fresh sheet of paper—begin, not the shipbuilding, but the further administration of the program. The ship building is, happily, in large part begun, and can now readily be pushed to completion if the air be cleared of the debates that have unfortunately darkened it.

With deep appreciation, therefore, of your generous attitude and with genuine admiration of what you have been able in a short time to accomplish, I accept your resignation, and feel that in doing so I am acting upon your best judgment as well as my own. I hope that you will feel the same undoubting confidence that I feel that the people of the country, for whom you have rendered great service, will judge you justly and generously in this as in other things, and that all personal misunderstandings and misjudgments that have been created will pass in a short time entirely away.

With warm regard, cordially and sincerely yours,

WOODROW WILSON.

President's Letter to Denman.

The President's letter to Mr. Denman follows:

My Dear Mr. Denman—I hope and believe that I am interpreting your best judgment as well as my own when I say that our duty concerning the debate and misunderstandings that have arisen in connection with the ship-building program ought to be settled without regard to our personal interests or our personal feelings altogether, and with the single purpose of doing what will be best to serve the public interest.

No decision we can now arrive at could eliminate the elements of controversy which have given rise, almost every question connected with the program, and I am convinced that the only wise course is to begin afresh—not upon the program, for that is already in large part in process of execution, but upon the further execution of it.

I have found both you and General Goethals ready to serve the public at a personal sacrifice. Realizing that the only manner in which the way can be completely cleared for harmonious and effective action is to carry our ship-building plans forward from this point through new agencies, General Goetnals has put his resignation in my hands, and I have accepted it in the same spirit in which it was tendered—not as deciding between two men whom I respect and admire but in order to make invidious decisions unnecessary and let the work be developed without further discussion of what is past.

I am taking the liberty of writing to tell you this in the confidence that you will be glad to take the same disinterested and self-forgetting course that General Goethals has taken. When you have done as he has done I am sure that you may count with the utmost confidence upon the ultimate verdict of the people of the country with regard to your magnanimous and unselfish view of public duty and upon winning in the retrospect the same admiration and confidence that I have learned to feel for you.

With much regard and very great appreciation of the large services you have rendered, cordially and sincerely yours, WOODROW WILSON.

Accepts White's Resignation.

The President wrote to Captain White as follows:

My Dear Mr. White: I think that you have a perfect right to ask to be relieved of your labors in the Shipping Board and I feel obliged by the argument you have used to accept your resignation from the board.

In doing so, however, may I not express my appreciation of the sense of public duty with which you have served and thank you for the time and labor you have devoted to the important business of a great instrumentality of government?

Cordially and sincerely yours, WOODROW WILSON.

The letter written on July 20 by General Goethals to President Wilson in which he asked to be relieved of his duties also was made public today, and tells much of the story of the wrangling and bickerings which had marked his relations with Mr. Denman.

This was the letter, it was stated, which General Goethals wrote after he had received notification from President Wilson, on July 19, that he was not in supreme command. The President is said to have told the General that the Shipping Board, of which Mr. Denman was Chairman, was in the last analysis responsible to the people for the expenditure of the $750,000,000 appropriated by Congress for the shipping program.

There have been reports that on July 18 General Goethals received from the President a letter telling him that he would not be interfered with in his work. It was on the same day that General Goethals made public in the form of a letter to Mr. Denman his program for commandeering and ship construction, without consulting the Chairman of the Shipping Board.

Mr. Denman balked and the controversy over the adoption of the General's program became acute. It remained in this agitated state for several days, with little progress being made. There are many who believe that the President wrote to General Goethals on July 19, telling him that he did not have full power, largely because of the position taken by General Goethals in issuing his program over the head of Mr. Denman.

General Goethals in his letter of resignation to the President on July 20 says he has been stripped of power and placed in an impossible position from which to extricate himself.

General Goethals's Resignation.

My dear Mr. President—I beg to acknowledge your letter of July 19, and wish to express my appreciation of the considerate manner in which you have stated the conclusions which you have reached.

In the project for the "rapid emergency construction of small ships," dated March 20, 1917, and approved by you on April 4 last, it was stated that:

"To secure the speed of production, which is all important, we feel that the task of securing and equipping these ships should be put in the hands of one man. Centralized power is essential for rapid and efficient work."

It was on this understanding on my part that I undertook the work at your request. This understanding was subsequently confirmed, not only when I took up the matter with the Shipping Board, but at the hearings before the sub-committee of the Committee on Appropriations of the United States Senate, where it was stated that I was "to have absolute and complete authority for the administration on the construction side; that everything the board could do would be done, and that it would act on my suggestion and initiative."

These assurances were placed much more clearly before the members of the sub-committee on appropriations of the House.

The necessity for shipping makes it imperative that results be secured as rapidly as possible. It is plain that whomever obtained, which count, after all, and nothing should be allowed to interfere with the accomplishment of this end. I have endeavored to establish harmonious relations with the Shipping Board, but I regret to state that I have not succeeded, and it seems impossible to secure the unison of purpose essential to the success of this work.

Believing that a centralization of authority in one man is necessary to carry out the shipbuilding program rapidly and successfully, after mature consideration of the whole subject, I am satisfied that I cannot secure efficient results under the conditions of your letter.

I am convinced, therefore, that the best interests of the public welfare would be served if I were replaced by some one on whom full authority can be centred and whose personality will not be a stumbling block. It is my urgent hope that this solution will commend itself to you, and in order that the work may be delayed as little as possible by a change, if you deem it wise, I shall be glad to continue in charge until my successor can be selected and to remain with him until he has a thorough knowledge of the organization that has been built up and is able to familiarize himself with the work that has already been undertaken.

You are assured of my loyal acquiescence in the directions given in your letter and all future orders.

Very Respectfully, GEORGE W. GOETHALS.

Must Be No More Bickering.

The sweeping manner in which President Wilson cleared the decks for action today made it evident that no further bickerings would be permitted and that the new officials and the old ones retained must get down to a working basis without delay.

It gave full confirmation also to the reports which had been published from time to time, in the face of protests to the contrary in some quarters, that negotiations between Mr. Denman and General Goethals had been marked almost from the first by quarrels.

During these controversies a hundred charges and countercharges were spread about, and these all served to make the relations between Mr. Denman and General Goethals more impossible. The scenes at some of the recent board meetings attended by both General Goethals and Mr. Denman have been described as indicating that a smashup was inevitable.

Mr. Denman took his overthrow today with good grace, and said he was glad of any action that was for the best interests of the country. He felt, he said, that the President had done the wise thing, and that the new men named were "fine fellows."

General Goethals remained at his offices during the day, but made no comment. It was asserted that he would gladly do all in his power to acquaint Admiral Capps with the operation of the office. Whether the personnel of the working force in General Goethals's office would be changed could not be determined tonight.

Nothing could be learned of the attitude of the new man in power concerning steel and wooden ships, but the general program will be directed toward putting as much tonnage on the seas as possible. It was said that the program both for commandeering and ship fabricating was at a stage where it could be put into efect quickly and that, while there had been delay, many contracts had been let and the Government would not suffer a great loss because of the controversy that has been waged.

It was felt that the action by President Wilson would stop all talk of Congressional investigation, and end further allegations that the steel interests were fighting for this or that program, or opposed to this or that contract, because of prices and profits. Neither General Goethals nor Mr. Denman would discuss his plans today, and if President Wilson has decided upon any task for either of them no information could be obtained to that effect.

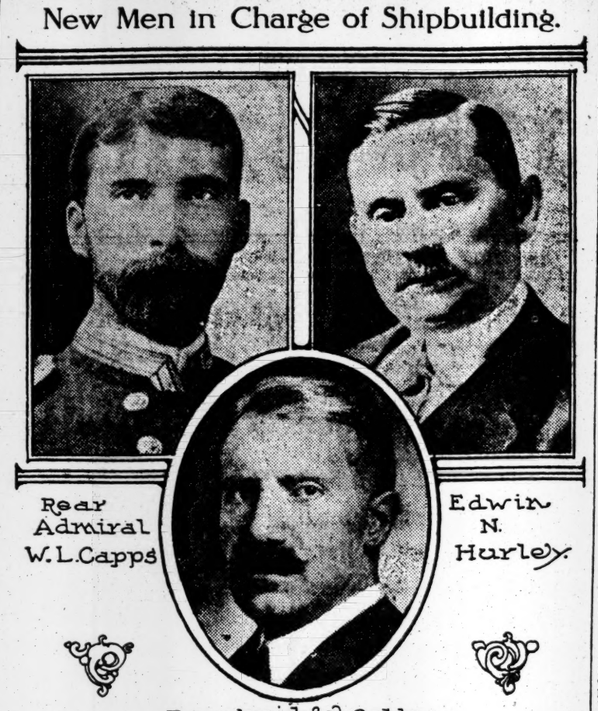
Big Surprise to Capps.

Admiral Capps, who replaces General Goethals, has a splendid record of achievement, and a warm tribute was paid to him tonight by Secretary Daniels. He said:

"The most astonished man in Washington this afternoon was Admiral Capps, when I sent for him and told him that he had been selected by the President as successor to General Goethals. This was absolutely his first intimation that he had been under consideration for the place, but he said at once that, although in no sense an applicant, he was an officer of the navy, subject to the orders of the Commander in Chief, and would devote his utmost energy to the successful accomplishment of any duty assigned to him.

"Admiral Capps was for many years chief constructor of the navy, and his record of achievement in that position is of the best. He is thoroughly known and appreciated by the shipbuilding interests of the country, although, perhaps not so well known to the general public, as he is not an advertiser. He served as chief constructor from November, 1903, to October, 1910. During this time the tonnage of the navy was more than doubled, and the majority of the present fighting vessels of the navy were designed by him."

New Men in Charge of Shipbuilding.



BERNARD N. BAKER PLEASED.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, July 24.—"I am delighted. Now the Shipping Board and the Emergency Fleet Corporation will begin to accomplish things," said Bernard H. Baker, who drew the bill creating the United State Shipping Board, when he heard that Goethals and Denman were out of the shipbuilding administration. Mr. Baker said a few days ago that Mr. Denman must be dismissed if the board was ever to get anywhere in its work.

"Edward N. Hurley is a big, broadgauged business man who will be sure to see things in a large way," said Mr. Baker. "The same thing can be said of Bainbridge Colby. He is a lawyer, of a big, constructive type of mind. While I know Mr. Hurley by reputation and have met him, I know Mr. Colby better.

"No one in the country knows more about the construction of ships than does Admiral Capps. I know him well. He is a man of broad vision who will get results. His experience has been chiefly with warships, he will be able to get advice from men who know the mercantile marine. And he will not delay work on account of technicalities.

"In fact, the whole board, as it is now, reconstructed, is a splendid one, and I feel sure that, while Mr. Hurley and Mr. Colby are not shipping men, their general largeness of viewpoint will make all the specialized knowledge of men who have been identified with the merchant marine available for the Government. They should determine their policy and get to work at once."

SHIPPING MEN HERE APPROVE.

Expect Action Under Capps—Favor "Cost Plus Percentage" Plan.

President Wilson's decisive move to put the nation's shipbuilding program in steady motion came like a clap of thunder to men closely allied with shipbuilding and shipping interests here. But it was a thunderclap that "cleared the sky," as one of them expressed it. All were surprised when they heard the news from Washington, but many began instantly to see ships where before they had seen controversy and temperamental incompatibility, with shipbuilding crowded out. It seemed apparent that, although the friends of General Goethals were sorry that the President had not sustained him outright and the adherents of Mr. Denman regretted that he had not had his way, a large majority were agreed that President Wilson had cut a Gordian knot and with one stroke had eliminated the chief obstacle to the shipbuilding program.

Irving T. Bush, head of the Bush Terminal Company and Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce's Committee on Harbor and Shipping, seemed to express the general opinion when he said:

"The retirement of both General Goethals and Mr. Denman, while disappointing to the friends of each, is probably the best soultion of a difficult situation. The retention of either would have given offense to the friends of the other, and the essential thing is to have men in charge of the shipbuilding program who are not only competent, but have the confidence of the people. All of the three new appointees are well and favorably known, and the thing to do is to give them a free hand. We need ships, particularly ships fast enough to give them a reasonably good chance to get across and back. One ship on the top of the ocean is worth an unlimited number at the bottom.

"I also suggest that we will get more ships for less money by letting contracts on a cost plus percentage basis. Care should be taken to let them only to builders capable of filling their contracts, but to ask the yards to bid for the construction of vessels for a fixed sum under present conditions means that the bidder must either name a prohibitive price or take a risk of labor difficulties and the uncertain cost and delivery of materials far beyond that which the shipbuilder with something to lose is willing to assume. The speculative bidder, with everything to gain and nothing to lose, is always willing to take a chance with Government money, but we need real ships—not blue prints and promises. A plan which would protect the Government from graft and at the same time enable the shipbuilders of the country to get to work at once at a moderate profit and a freedom from loss can, and should be, worked out."

A Victory for Steel Ship Plan

The fact that Admiral Capps, an officer of the navy, was appointed to succeed General Goethals, clearly indicated, in the opinion of some, that the latter's preference for steel ships would be shared by his successor, but no one seemed able to say what attitude the new board would take toward Mr. Bush's suggestion that the building be done on a basis of cost plus percentage for profit. It was learned that General Goethals had recently told a friend that he favored the idea, being convinced that the proposal to build by letting contracts at fixed prices was impracticable and would not produce the best results, but that others in Washington who had a voice in the matter were opposed to the cost plus percentage suggestion. No one seen yesterday would undertake to predict whether the opposition had been removed with the retirement of Mr. Denman, and, with the apparent settling of the wood and steel ship controversy, the most important question still open, according to report, is how the Government shall pay for the ships to be built.

One shipbuilder who was interviewed yesterday agreed heartily with Mr. Bush, and said that he would not, under present conditions, accept a contract to build ships at any price fixed in advance.

While approving the appointment of Admiral Capps, several shipping men expressed the hope that he would, as they put it, "do things in a business way rather than in a navy way." They meant by this that the enterprise and broad conception manifest in many big business undertakings were needed, and that the particularly close attention to details and caution in movement which they considered characteristic of the navy should not impede the work of providing ships. They attributed this characteristic, in large measure, to the fact that the Navy Department, under the critical eye of Congress, had to conserve its money beyond what was the point of true economy in the present shipping emergency. The new merchant marine should be brought into being with as little waste as possible, they said, but the prevention of waste should not be the dominating motive of those carrying out the program.

"There's bound to be some waste," said one prominent man who discussed the matter. "If the three best business men in the country undertook to carry out any business program on a large scale, there would be waste at first, until each got into his groove. So we must expect some waste. As long as this waste is reduced to a reasonable minimum and is the result of natural mistakes and not of graft, the public will forgive those in charge—if they produce ships."

Sees Other Work for Goethals.

When asked to comment upon the President's action, Eugene H. Outerbridge, President of the New York Chamber of Commerce, said:

"President Wilson's partial reorganization of the Shipping Board will result, it is hoped, in removing obstructive policies as well as personalities. While many will regret that the great ability of General Goethals to organize and push great projects is not to direct the shipping program, the President had to deal with a very embarrassing situation, and there are other problems of scarcely less importance to which the General's genius may be applied.

"There is no doubt that Mr. Denman committed himself soon after his appointment to a program that experienced and expert opinion could not support, but from which he was unable or unwilling to withdraw. Presumably the connection of any others with the board who were involved in the same mistakes will terminate simultaneously. No price was too high to pay to clear the situation of a policy that was suicidal in the critical situation we faced in the matter of tonnage suitable to defeat Germany's submarine warfare."

CAPPS A NAVAL INVENTOR,

Hurley a Manufacturer, and Colby a New York Lawyer.

Rear Admiral Washington Lee Capps has won distinction as Chief Constructor of the Navy Department and is credited with being largely responsible for the development of the American dreadnought. The skeleton or basket mast was one of his ideas for the improvement of fighting vessels, it is said.

Rear Admiral Capps was born in Portsmouth, Va., in 1864, and was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1884. He was appointed assistant naval constructor in 1888, and was promoted to naval constructor in 1895. He was stationed at the Brooklyn Navy Yard from 1889 to 1892, and with the Bureau of Construction and Repair in Washington from 1892 to 1895. He was on the staff of Admiral Dewey in 1898-99, and from 1901 to 1903 he was head of the construction department of the Brooklyn Navy Yard. In the latter year he became chief constructor of the navy and chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair, with the rank of Rear Admiral. In 1910 he resigned from that post and received a permanent commission as Chief Constructor. In 1913 he was appointed by President Wilson to represent the United States at the International Maritime Conference in London, and he was Chairman of the Conference Committee on Safety of Construction.

Rear Admiral Capps twice appeared in the centre of controversy in Washington. The first occasion was in 1908, when he defended the construction of American battleships against the attacks of Henry Reuterdahl, who charged that faults in their construction made them needlessly vulnerable. The Admiral came through this controversy successfully, and the next time he was in a storm centre was in 1910, when he resigned as Chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair because he disagreed with the naval reorganization plans of Secretary Meyer. His resignation came during the Taft Administration. He had been appointed to the two posts which he then held under President's Roosevelt's régime.

Edward N. Hurley, the "find" of the Wilson Administration. He was a prosperous manufacturer and stock raiser, living in Wheaton, Ill., until 1913, when he was appointed to the Federal Trade Commission. He became First Vice Chairman, and then Chairman of the commission, and at once attracted attention by his grasp of big affairs and his executive ability. It is said that he is a close personal friend of President Wilson.

With his other duties Mr. Hurley accepted appointment by the Secretary of Commerce in 1913 as Trade Commissioner to the Ltain American republics, and his trip to the countries of South and Central America resulted in many inaugurations of conditions favorable to the development of trade. Mr. Hurley has always been energetic in promoting the foreign trade of the United States, a nd it was rumored at one time that Secretary Redfield would resign the portfolio of Commerce and that Mr. Hurley would be appointed to succeed him.

Mr. Hurley resigned from the Federal Trade Commission in January of this year on the plea that his private business needed attention, and it was predicted in Washington at the time that the President would summon him to service again before very long.

He was born in Galesburg, Ill., on July 31, 1864.

Bainbridge Colby is a well-known New York lawyer, who came prominently before the public as one of the counsel of interests which brought about reforms in the Equitable Life Assurance Society following the Hughes investigation in 1905-6. He was a Republican in politics until the Roosevelt bolt in 1912, when he followed the Colonel and became one of the founders of the Progressive Party. He was a leader of this party until Colonel Roosevelt declined the nomination last year, when he turned his support to the candidacy of President Wilson, charging Colonel Roosevelt with breaking his pledge to Progressives. Mr. Colby has been in many important investigations and court cases since beginning his practice in New York in 1892. He was born at St. Louis on Dec. 22, 1869.

NAVY REQUISITIONS SEVEN TANK SHIPS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Secretary Daniels announced today that in order to provide necessary transportation to meet urgent fuel oil needs of the navy he had found it necessary to requisition several commercial tankers. Seven vessels have been ordered to report at the earliest practicable date to various navy yards on the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts, where they will be put in readiness for the oil transport.

In obtaining the tonnage necessary for this service every effort has been made to distribute the requirements among the various tank owners in such a way as to cause the least possible embarrassment in supplying the commercial needs of the United States. Special consideration has also been given to those tankers engaged in the transportation of supplies to the Allies.

AIR BILL IS SIGNED; NEED 110,000 FLIERS

READY TO START AT ONCE

Warns That "Shaking the Trees" Will Not Produce Airplanes, but Predicts Big Results Next Summer.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—President Wilson today signed the largest appropriation bill, carrying funds for a single project, ever presented to any President when he attached his name to the $640,000,000 war aircraft bill which had just been put through Congress in record time. This bill passed the House in four hours and the Senate in a single afternoon. It provides the funds with which it is hoped that the United States will be able to fill the air along the Western front in Europe with thousands of American aviators and military airplanes.

As soon as the President had signed the bill, Howard Coffin, as Chairman of the Aircraft Production Board of the Council of National Defense, issued a statement in which he said that the $640,000,000 program must be carried out promptly.

"We are prepared to go ahead at once," said Mr. Coffin, "with the expanded plans which the appropriation makes possible." But he warned the country not to look for results too soon.

"The program for which $640,000,000 has been prepared by the bill," said Mr. Coffin, "must be carried out with a promptness equal to that displayed by Congress in passing the measure. It is a task demanding all the initiative and power of American industry for its consummation, and, just for that reason, one to which the nation will respond.

Must Set New Record.

"All world's records for industrial development of a new art must be broken. Whatever crimes may later be laid at the door of those who are to direct this work, that of inaction or slowness in accomplishment must not be one of them. We are prepared to go ahead at once with the expanded plans which the appropriation makes possible.

"One word of caution only need be said here. Time, material, and organization are the main elements in any manufacturing industry. Under ordinary conditions at least a year would be required for the industrial preparation which this program demands. Yet we have no such length of time in which to perform the task now.

"In every other country there is a shortage of materials for aircraft construction. In every other country there is a shortage of the type of men required for the air service. In spite of our previous inexperience in quantity production of fighting planes, we must have thousands of them for next year's use to make the contribution which the Allies expect of us.

"The design and construction of jigs, tools, and gauges will require weeks, and even months, no matter how rapidly we work. It must be remembered, therefore, that a few months will necessarily elapse before the outward results of our industrial effort will show in the shape of quantities of finished fighting machines.

Can't Do It by "Shaking Trees."

"We cannot get aircraft merely by 'shaking the trees.' It can be announced, however, that most gratifying progress on the preliminary organization already has been made during the last few weeks. If it progresses in the future at the stride that has been developed there need be no fear as to America's position in the aircraft field by next Summer.

"The difficulties which apply to the production of high-powered machines for fighting and bombing purposes fortunately do not apply with equal force to the training program. Within a comparatively short time we shall have enough of the type required for training the thousands of men who will constitute a contribution to the winning of the war equal in importance to the production of machines.

"America is the last great reservoir of material for war pilots as well as for airplanes. Already three of the twenty-four big new training fields are completed and instruction on them has begun. Others are being rushed to completion. Orders for training machines were placed weeks ago, and shipments of the first output already have been made. The output of this most necessary type will continue to increase rapidly, as we already have plants experienced in their manufacture.

"In considering the size of the appropriation it must be borne in mind that less than half this amount is to be expended in the purchase of airplanes alone. Personnel, training, equipment, overseas maintenance, spare parts, flying stations, armament, and scientific apparatus, all are to be provided for, and are equally as important as the manufacture of the machines. One hundred and ten thousand officers and enlisted men—an army of the air greater than our standing army of a few months ago—will be needed. The whole project is one which appeals to the imagination of our people and to the genius of our American engineers."

CANADA MAY FIX PRICES.

Will Be Done if Found Necessary, Food Controller Tells Women.

TORONTO, Ont., July 24.—W. J. Hanna, Dominion Food Controller, in an address here at the first meeting of the province-wide convention of women, called by them to insist on aiding in the war work, emphasized the fact that prices in Canada would be fixed if the Government found it necessary. He said that a commission already had been appointed to inquire into bacon prices.

Mr. Hanna read a message from Baron Rhondda, the British Food Controller, in which he said: "We look to the resources of Canada and to the indomitable energy of Canadians for an answer that will shatter Germany's threat of starvation."

Mr. Hanna stated unequivocally that with a deficiency on this continent of 160,000,000 bushels of wheat to supply the Allies, the situation was acute and that food conservation was vital to winning the war.

FIGHT OVER WAR BOARD ON TODAY

souri demanded a separate vote on the Senate amendment guaranteeing a minimum price of $2 a bushel for wheat. He thought this amendment was in the interest of the farmer and should be approved. Similar views were expressed by Representative Thompson of Oklahoma, who observed: "If you don't take care of the farmer he will take care of you next time."

Representative Barkley of Kentucky insisted the House was entitled to a separate vote on the beer and wine amendment.

The House finally became so muddled in its discussion of the bill that adjournment was taken until tomorrow.

SAYS IT IS NO REFLECTION.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Senator Weeks of Massachusetts, Republican whip, commenting today on the President's letter to Representative Lever opposing the Congressional Joint Committee on War Expenditures provided for in the Food Administration bill as passed by the Senate, said he could not agree with Mr. Wilson's assertion that the project of creating such a committee arose out of lack of confidence in the President. The idea of establishing this committee originated with Mr. Weeks, but he withdrew his amendment so as to allow Senator Owen, a Democrat, to offer one along the same line.

"I see no reflection upon the President in creating a joint Congressional committee to safeguard war expenditures," said Senator Weeks. "It was not meant as a reflection. The Senate passed the section providing for the committee because it felt Congress ought to be in close touch with the operation of the war, as it concerns expenditure of money voted by Congress.

"I understand there is a disposition in some quarters of Congress to attempt to eliminate the section from the Food bill in conference. If it comes to the point of backing down on this, it is going to mean the parting of the ways in Congress. Republicans and Democrats supported this measure, not as a partisan measure, but because they believed it essential to the prosecution of the war.

Calls Lineup Nonpartisan.

"Republicans voted as a unit on the measure, and many Democrats voted with them. It was the first time in years that the Republicans had voted solidly upon any measure, and, in view of the Democratic support of the amendment, it was a nonpartisan lineup. If this nonpartisan voting element is to be broken up through partisan tactics it will work great harm in Congress."

The discussion of the President's effort to have the joint committee project eliminated from the bill came up on the floor of the Senate. Mr. Hardwick of Georgia, who voted for the committee plan, spoke of the President's reference to President Lincoln as having been embarrassed by a similar move of Congress during the civil war.

"I am not clear, from the President's letter, if he means that President Lincoln's supposed trouble was due to interference by a committee in the conduct of the war, or if he meant that it checked expenditures," remarked Senator Hardwick.

"It is not apparent, so far as I have examined history—and I have looked with great care through the great life of Lincoln by Nicolay and Hay—that Congress ever harassed the President in the conduct of the war," said Senator Lodge. "That committee was not only a partisan committee, because it was all Republican, but its members were all members of a violent faction of the Republican Party. And yet Nicolay and Hay say the committee, despite all these drawbacks, deserved praise rather than blame."

What Historians Say

Senator Weeks read an extract from the Life of Lincoln by W. O. Stoddard, one of the White House secretaries during the Lincoln Administration. It read:

"When in December, 1861, Congress appointed a strong and capable Committee on the Conduct of the War, its members were at once taken into hearty and intimate co-operation. What would surely have been a peril or hindrance to a weak or a selfish ruler was transformed at once into an additional and powerful guarantee of Congressional co-operation."

"I have had a careful investigation made of everything Mr. Lincoln said, and there is not a single word in anything he ever said critical of the action in appointing the Committee on the Conduct of the War," said Senator Weeks.

"I am sure that is true from the collection of his speeches and letters I have examined myself," said Senator Lodge. "The only allusion is an order to General Butler to obey the summons of the committee. President Lincoln never appeared to have objected to the committee's existence."

TO PUSH 'DRY' RESOLUTION.

Sheppard Expects the Senate to Approve Constitutional Prohibition.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Senator Sheppard of Texas intends to offer a resolution in the Senate next week to provide for a vote on a Constitutional amendment for nation-wide prohibition. It would require a two-thirds vote of the Senate to adopt a resolution to amend the Constitution, and Senator Sheppard said today that he had enough votes pledged to put it through.

If the resolution should be adopted it would require a vote of three-fourths of the State to ratify the Constitutional amendment. Senator Sheppard wants the vote to be taken this Fall, and will include provision for that as a part of the measure.

In the last few days it has been suggested that the prohibitionists, in return for supporting a legislation desired by the President in any change that may be made in the liquor sections of the Food bill, will be aided in getting through their nation-wide prohibition scheme. But Senator Sheppard said that this was not so.

"We are going to make a straight-out fight, without any dicker whatever," said the Senator. "It looks certain that we shall win."

BOLDER COURSE OPEN TO LLOYD GEORGE

DARING STROKE IN COMMONS

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 24.—The vote on the corn production amendment, which was made a test by a bold stroke, was not only a vote of confidence in the Government, but a personal triumph for Lloyd George. He has never played the game audaciously without scoring handsomely.

The anti-Government storm was at its height last Friday. The Prime Minister mounted the rostrum at Queen's Hall Saturday and flung his defiance at Chancellor Michaelis. He chose ground on which all Englishmen could stand—hatred of the Boche and all his works.

When the House of Commons met yesterday, instead of shaking in its boots, the Government quietly but firmly put it up to the legislators, "There's our 25-shilling provision, take it or leave it," the Government said in effect: "if you reject the provision we will present to the country the spectacle of supporting us or getting another Government." It was winning politics and appears to have put a quietus on all pending opposition, for the little amendment that was voted down stood for a whole mass of grievances and hostility.

I have talked with several well-informed politicians today, and, while all agree regarding the prowess and skill of the Premier, they deprecate his timidity in certain directions. The critics cites an editorial in The London Times this morning praising Kerensky for daring to tell Russia the truth as constituting good advice for the English Premier.

"Now is the time," he continued, "for Lloyd George to have done with all secrecy. England, America, and France can never be whipped looking the truth squarely in the face. While meeting political opponents in the political game boldly and unhorsing them with ease, the Premier discusses the submarine situation in such terms as to allay anxiety by vague generalization. If construction is, indeed, keeping pace with the tonnage loss, the Premier ought to give figures. The average loss since February is known to exceed 600,000 tons per month. Will the Prime Minister tell us, not what construction may be at some future time, but what it has been for the last five months?"

"Several months ago Lloyd George was talking dramatically of the need for ships, ships, ships. If there has really been any material change since that time, the Premier should give concrete details. If they are bad, the English public can stand it and the American Government can furnish more destroyers and other fast craft. Surely this is the moment when the present Government, fresh from last night's triumph, can afford to place itself square with the submarine position.

"Even if it must be remembered," added the commentator, "that Lloyd George is an optimist, an orator, and a Welshman, and that as Prime Minister he is obliged to avoid being an alarmist because of the effect at home and in enemy countries, yet now that the Lloyd George Ministry has steamrollered opposition it should put the English-speaking peoples where they always fight best—eye to eye with their difficulties. They will never be whipped if fully prepared for the worst that can happen."

Swedish Shipping Losses.

LONDON, July 24.—The number of Swedish ships lost by submarine attack or through striking mines during the war has reached a total of 136, according to a Central News dispatch from Copenhagen today. The aggregate tonnage of these vessels was given as 125,000.

Danish ships to the number of 100 have been lost in a similar manner, according to the same authority.

FEARS WILSON MOST AS PEACE APOSTLE

HE GLORIFIES MILITARISM

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, July 24.—"Anti-Wilson," a fifty-page pamphlet by Eduard Spiesz, dealing with the President's "iniquities," has just been received in Holland. The introduction compares the pamphlet with the "Anti-Macchiavel" of Frederick the Great, published in 1759.

"The anti-Wilson cry," it says, "is today the expression of the feeling of a nation against a man who menaces the German Empire. • • • Wilson has worn his deceitful mask long enough."

The first chapter is entitled "The World's Peace Phantom and Wilson as Peace Apostle."

"This sounds paradoxical,' says the author. "it was the same Wilson who a few weeks after his peace message played with the fire of war, hoping to ignite the whole neutral world."

The writer then proceeds to deal with President Wilson's personal ambition, asserting that he wished to act as peacemaker according to his own plans, and that a warlike tone lurked even in his peace offers.

"Wilson, the peace incendiary, has not disappeared from view. He has chosen a new means in the hope of ruling more surely and perpetually. It is now still more our duty to play the game against him with all our available trumps and to accept no more false cards from him."

The pamphlet says that the President had the support of Schiedemann and Dernburg in January, and that Scheidemann even announced his intention of traveling through Germany as a "peace drummer" to pave the way for Wilson. He expresses fear that the President still has support in Germany, and that his peace propaganda may be revived.

Says Kant Anticipated Wilson.

In the next chapter, entitled "Foundations of a Lasting Peace," he says that President Wilson is not the first prophet of such a peace, although he pretends to be, and that many writers anticipated the Wilson program of "equal rights for all nations, equal privileges for all individuals, the suppression of military force, &c."

"We will remind our readers briefly that Kant, in the introduction to his essay 'On Perpetual Peace,' which was published in 1795, had the same principal ideas of peace plans as President Wilson, more than a hundred years ago. Kant also demanded a peace that would prevent any future war."

In the next chapter, entitled "Worthless Foundation Stones," he says:

"Real world peace was never the child of peace theories. If the foundation stones are worthless, and if they are made of material which holds together only in dreams, they will fall apart by the light of day, at the touch of reality. In the historical development of nations there is no Kant or Wilson to be found. The world's history has always followed other ways than that of Kant and Wilson. • • •

In his peace offers as a means of progress Wilson weighs only the ordinary, peaceful, law-abiding development of peoples, and contends that every serious, thoughtful man must agree with him."

Speaking of Kant's fluent pen when writing of the freedom of peoples, Herr Spiesz says:

"Wilson, the philosophical historian and high school teacher, walks the same paths. In his lectures at Princeton University on State affairs he goes back to the origin of people and State and arrives at the the strange conclusion that State and country are not necessarily intimately connected."

Derides the Idea of Lasting Peace.

The fourth chapter is entitled "Nature's Laws and Wilson's World Law." "How false and weak," Herr Spiesz exclaims "in the face of menacing settlements and State developments, is Wilson's cry for a world law in accordance with which all States, peoples, and nations shall have equal rights!"

In the chapter, entitled "The Last Argument," the author says:

"The apostle of perpetual peace might agree that it is the task of the beautiful future, which he paints as ready for peace, to banisch brute force, as he calls war."

Under the title, "The Mirror of History," he asks where President Wilson gets his enthusiasm for perpetual peace. "Certainly not from American history. It would be interesting to cast a glance at the development of the United States. Are there roots for the perpetual peace which Wilson desires to cultivate? • • • Wilson even went into the war as a peace apostle."

Asserting that America's hunger for expansion reaches beyond the limits of the American continent, the writer says that since the war with Spain American thoughts and plans fly overseas, especially in the Pacific Ocean. "Is Wilson really, in such circumstances, the right man to preach to us the doctrine of perpetual peace?"

In the chapter entitled "History of the Peace League," Herr Spiesz says:

"One can understand the rage of our enemies over our militarism and can well believe that their real aim is to destroy it, for they all know, or anyway feel, that with the tree of German militarism the conception of the German State would be uprooted." He contends that the desire of Germany's enemies is to impose upon the German people an anti-militaristic democracy, and that this desire is even echoed in President Wilson's peace messages.

Under the chapter heading, "A Picture of Germany's Future," the writer openly demands territorial annexations and an increase of German military and naval power. He urges that those who have believed and still believe that Germany's real greatness lies in her economic development and Kultur are hopelessly wrong. "For German Kultur is a byword and a hissing among our enemies and many neutrals, while our whole economic rise in the world collapsed at the first shock of the war."

Before the war, he says, Germany would have been content with a modest "place in the sun," such as was appropriate to her demands for expansion by land and sea. But now she will not limit her armaments.

"We are far too completely identified with militarism to be able to separate ourselves from it. Therefore, there must be no external interference with our armaments, and whatever honeyed words Wilson may employ as advocate geheral of all-round disarmament, we recognize in them only the poison of England's deadly hatred of our militarism." Germany must be militarily stronger, not weaker, than before.

In the final chapter, entitled "Wilson Overcome," the author urges that not only the military strength of the United States, but President Wilson's peace policy as well, threatens Germany. For when the President finally decided to draw the sword, and when Germany, piercing his disguise as the Apostle of Peace, launched her submarines against the Entente, his whole card house of an international league of peace toppled to the ground. This peace league, the writer asserts, was nothing more than the anti-German league of neutrals for which the President later appealed in vain.

TO CREATE 'MIDDLE EUROPE'

Austro-German Economic Conference, Now On, May Be First Step.

AMSTERDAM, July 24.—A series of economic conferences between German and Austro-Hungarian representatives has been opened, according to Vienna advices received today. The discussions will cover arrangements which must be made after the war. The meeting is considered the first step toward the creation of the much-discussed "Middle Europe."

The main object of the conferences at this time, it is indicated, is to find out what measures Germany and Austria, with the help of Bulgaria and Turkey, can take to constitute an economic union in opposition to the union of the Entente Allies decided upon at the Paris conference.

Kajelan Merey von Kapos-Mere, former Austrian Ambassador to Italy, and Count Botho von Wedel, German Ambassador at Vienna, represented the respective Governments, many other German officials, including Prussian representatives, taking part in the discussions on behalf of Germany.

TURK VERSION OF BATTLE.

Say British Attacks on Palestine Front Were Repulsed.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 22.—The repulse of British attacks in Palestine is announced by the War Office. It says:

On the night of July 20 the enemy violently bombarded the whole front. Strong British scouting detachments attacked the right wing of our Gaza group and were repulsed by our infantry.

On July 21 the enemy continued his intense artillery bombardment and attacked our advanced positions at Chewhet-Tepe, along the Gaza-Honjunous Road. He penetrated our positions, but was dislodged, leaving fifty dead or wounded in our trenches. We took five prisoners.

An official announcement from the London War Office published yesterday announced that British mounted troops had engaged and routed two regiments of Turkish cavalry and that successful raids had been made on the enemy's line at Gaza.

tacked with regiments belonging to eight divisions, a fact which was ascertained from prisoners and dead left on the field. Only remnants of the regiments returned.

Army Group of General von Boehm-Ermoli: The strategic effect of our operation in East Galicia is continually becoming more powerful. The enemy is retreating from the northern Carpathian front. From the Sereth to the wooded Carpathians we are pressing forward over a front 200 kilometers wide.

Our victorious army corps have forced their way over the Sereth, crossing to the south near Tarnopol. Near Trembowla desperate Russian mass attacks were repulsed.

We have advanced beyond Podhaytse, Halicz, and the Bystritsa-Solotvina River.

The booty cannot yet be ascertained. Several divisions report 3,000 prisoners each. Numerous heavy guns, including those of the largest calibres, railway trucks filled with foodstuffs and fodder, munitions, armored cars and motor lorries, tents, articles left on the field, and every kind of war material also have been captured, giving proof of the precipitate retreat of the enemy.

Archduke Joseph's north wing has joined in a movement which has commenced to the south of the Dniester. There is strong enemy firing activity along the whole front. On both sides of the Bystritsa and south of the Toelgyea Pass Russian thrusts were repulsed. There has been increased firing between the Trotus and Putna Valleys, which was followed by attempts by the Russians and Rumanians to advance to the attack over wide sectors. Almost everywhere our defensive fire confined the enemy to his trenches. Where he left his trenches he was driven back. Fresh fighting developed there early this morning.

On the front of Field Marshal von Mackensen the firing engagements along the Putna and Sereth Rivers have increased to considerable strength. On several occasions Russo-Rumanian troops launched attacks, but they broke down under our fire.

A supplementary bulletin issued this evening says:

In Eastern Galicia we are pursuing the retreating enemy on a wide front between the Sereth River and the Carpathian Mountains.

In the Carpathians at Busita and in the Putna Valley there have been engagements throughout the entire day which brought us small local advantages.

Losses in Officers Called Enormous.

COPENHAGEN, July 24. — An Austrian semi-official communication received here says that forty-seven cannon have been taken from the Russians in the fighting in east Galicia. The communication adds that airplane squadrons effectively bombed the Tarnopol station while the Russians were hastily placing supplies on board trains.

Another semi-official statement says: "The disorganizing effects of defeat upon the Russian organizations are steadily spreading from sector to sector. The Austro-German operations are so placed as to drive a large part of the Russian Army from the natural line of communications and force a retreat over difficult and unprepared routes. This change of base, difficult enough for troops in good order, threatens a catastrophal effect on the undisciplined and uncohesive Russian masses. The resistive ability of the Russians is affected, and the units are breaking up and scattering.

"The Russians kindled the great magazines at Tarnopol to prevent them falling into Austro-German hands. The wooden warehouses in which the military supplies of the entire eastern Galician front had been accumulated have been burning fiercely since Saturday. The detachments intrusted with the work of destruction kindled everything of military importance in the Tarnopol district before the evacuation."

TWO KAISERS MEET.

Czernin Accompanies William to Russian Front.

LONDON, Wenesday, July 25.—A dispatch to Reuter's, Limited, from Copenhagen, quoting a telegram from Berlin, says Emperor William, on his way to the front, met Emperor Charles at Podgoritza. There were cordial greetings and a lively quarter of an hour of conversation, after which Emperor William continued toward the front.

The place of the meeting between the two Emperors probably was Podgorze, a town in Galicia just across the Vistula from Cracow. It has been stated that Emperor William was on his way to the eastern front.

Russian Delegates Reach London.

LONDON, July 24.—The Russian delegates elected by the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates to confer with the labor parties of Entente countries have arrived in England. They will be the guests of the Labor Party of England for a few days and then will proceed to Paris. The delegates are MM. Venssanoff and Erlich of Moscow and MM. Goldenberg and Smirnoff of Petrograd.

PETROGRAD NOW QUIET.

Washington Embassy Learns Lenine's Paper Has Been Suppressed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The State Department received a dispatch from Ambassador Francis at Petrograd late this afternoon reporting quiet and order in the Russian capital. The message was filed in Petrograd at 11 o'clock last night and was the first to be transmitted within twenty-four hours since the overthrow of the empire.

Dispatches to the Russian Embassy today stated that the Bolsheviki peril had disappeared under the energetic measures of the Provisional Government, which now has a free hand to deal with the situation. It was believed the measures taken would assure against a recurrence of the recent disturbances in Petrograd, during which there was fighting in the streets between the military and agitators.

The dispatches indicated that the Provisional Government was resolved to end at once and for all time the treasonable activities and agitations of the Bolsheviki, or extreme Socialists, and the agents of the Central Powers in Russsia. It was announced that the Petrograd Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates had appointed a special commission to inquire into the doings of the Bolsheviki and that the newspaper Pravda, the organ of Lenine, had been suppressed by the Provisional Government.

ish offensive is at hand. Several times recently Berlin has reported heavy artillery fighting in Flanders, and the intensity of today's bombardment probably denotes the last stage of preparations before the blow is struck.

It has been predicted that the next attack of the British would surpass any effort previously made by them. The opening of the offensive may be hastened to assist the hard pressed Russians.

British Make Many Raids.

LONDON, July 24.—The British official communication issued this evening says:

During the day our troops successfully raided enemy trenches at four points east and northeast of Ypres and brought back prisoners in each case. An enemy raiding party entered our trenches during the night east of Laventie, but was driven out after a bombing encounter. Another party of the enemy succeeded in raiding one of our saps east of Givenchy Lez La Bassée. One of our men is missing.

Great activity by our aerial forces continued yesterday, and much successful work again was accomplished in co-operation with our artillery. More than four tons of bombs were dropped by our raiding squadrons on the enemy airdromes, ammunition depots, and railway junctions. Fewer German airplanes were encountered, and the fighting was not so severe.

Three hostile machines were downed and three others driven down out of control. None of our machines is missing.

The early statement said:

HENDERSON FEARS FOR FREE RUSSIA

Difficulties Without Precedent Facing Government, British Labor Leader Says.

REGRETS THE LATE CABINET

Enormous Influence Is Wielded by Extremists and Firmness Alone Can Save the Situation.

LONDON, July 24.—A great tragedy is being enacted in the life of the free Russian people, according to Arthur Henderson, member of the British War Council and representative of labor, who has just returned from an extended visit to Russia. He is convinced that unless the situation is handled with firmness there must be an inevitable disaster.

Mr. Henderson said, during the course of an interview today, that it was nothing less than a misfortune that the continuance of the coalition Government had proved impossible. The difficulties the Government had to cope with were such as no other Government ever experienced. It was impossible to convey anything like an adequate conception of the extent to which the extremists dominated the life of the capital, demoralizing the army and navy, especially those units in close proximity to Petrograd.

The true extremists, he declared, did not represent more than a small minority of the population, but such had been the spirit of terror exercised, together with their destructive influence over certain sections of the military forces, that they had succeeded in rendering a stable Government difficult, if not almost impossible.

Mr. Henderson considered that the most disastrous experiment of the revolution was the relaxation of discipline in the army and navy, coupled with the direct association of those services with the political and revolutionary propaganda. The resumption of the offensive caused the extremists considerable annoyance, and, although they had the wisdom to remain quiet while victories were being gained, it was generally recognized that they were waiting for an opportunity for the move recently made with such disastrous consequences.

"If Russia is to rise to the greatness of her possibilities, the forces of disorder must be resolutely dealt with," continued Mr. Henderson. "The future, judging from the past, is largely in the hands of the new Workmen's and Soldiers' Council elected by the All-Russia Congress, which represents a large section of the community whose representatives are likely to become the dominant party in the Constituent Assembly."

The Russians, said Mr. Henderson, were exceedingly anxious concerning the conference of the Allies, including the United States, because they hoped it would enable them to announce that the war treaties had decided upon the direction of renunciation of all intentions inconsistent with their own declarations. They said frankly that they were determined—keeping Constantinople in mind and having doubts regarding Mesopotamia—not to leave the settlement of the paramount issues of the war to chance decisions of a meeting of diplomats. Until this position was clarified, he doubted whether the whole army or a majority of the moderate Socialists, upon whom so much depended, would give of their best for the successful prosecution of the war.

The Russian Socialists, he said, were strong advocates of an international conference. He discussed the subject with M. Tseretelli, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, just before leaving Petrograd. M. Tseretelli urged the importance of such a conference and of Great Britain being represented.

TO ADAPT OUR ARMY TO FRENCH SYSTEM

Companies to be Increased to 250 Men—Changes Are for Trench Warfare Only.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—With the first contingent of American troops in France, arrangements made through conferences between the Army General Staff and Marshal Joffre while the latter was in Washington for adapting the American troops to the French system of trench warfare are to be carried out. For trench purposes alone infantry companies of American troops are to be increased from 150 to 250 men, two instead of three regiments are to constitute a brigade and a division is to consist of ten regiments of 3,000 men each instead of twelve regiments of infantry, a regiment of cavalry and a brigade of light artillery, together with small contingents of other arms of the service, approximating 28,000 men.

The new arrangement is entirely for trench purposes and will be observed only while the troops are on trench duty. Elsewhere the present organization of the United States Army will be observed, as the General Staff of the United States Army believes that its organization is superior to that of European armies. While the new arrangement provides a greater number of brigades and divisions, there is no intention, it was said at the War Department today, to increase the number of Brigadier Generals and Major Generals. Each division has now a Major General and four Brigadier Generals. With five brigades the fifth will be commanded by the senior Colonel of the regiments embraced.

The increase in the size of companies will be obtained by amalgamating these units. This will carry with it an increase in the number of subaltern officers in each company. At present each company has a Captain and two Lieutenants. Under the temporary arrangement for trench purposes each company will have a Captain and four Lieutenants. This means that each company will be divided into four platoons, each in command of a Lieutenant.

As explained by Marshal Joffre, the French thought it necessary that the United States troops should be organized for trench warfare exactly as are the French troops. Then unity of organization American troops will be in a position to take the places of corresponding units of French troops.

According to what was said at the War Department today there is no intention of maintaining the French organization in the American Army in France when troops are not engaged in trench duty. It was said there that the temporary arrangement would not mean any increase in the number of general or subordinate officers.

AUSTRIANS MORE ACTIVE.

ROME, July 24.—Today's statement on military operations on the Austro-Italian front, issued by the War Office, is as follows:

Yesterday the enemy showed increased activity in the Trentino. Hostile parties disturbed our working parties near Tierno. They attempted to surround one of our advanced posts in the Posina Valley and approached our positions at Valganca, in the San Pellegrina Valley and in the Overbacher region. The enemy artillery shelled with great frequency various points of our lines in the Vallarsa, and in the Camonica and Guidicarila Valleys.

Our infantry patrols completely repulsed the enemy everywhere, and our batteries did some effective counter-battery work. In the Rimblanco Valley we succeeded in surprising an enemy detachment and driving it off with considerable loss to it.

On the Carnia front our artillery engaged and disturbed working parties. On the Julian front there were some patrol encounters. The artillery fire was more violent than usual in the Mrzli and Vodil areas and in the vicinity of Castagnavizza.

Two of our squadrons carried out a successful bombing raid on the huts ments and railway works at San Daniele on the Carso. All machines returned.

REICHSTAG LEADER DEAD.

Bassermann, Chief of National Liberals, Was Bethmann's Foe.

LONDON, Wednesday, July 25.—A Reuter dispatch from Copenhagen says that Major Ernst Bassermann, leader of the National Liberals in the German Reichstag, has died at Baden-Baden.

Major Bassermann was a leader of the faction in the Reichstag which favored the carrying on of the war until Great Britain was defeated. He was supported by the bulk of the National Liberal Party in his campaign against Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg. In speeches at various times he urged the most ruthless use of submarines and Zeppelins.

ALLIED CHIEFS SEEK BALKAN AGREEMENT

America Not Represented at Paris Conference—Sims to Attend Naval Meeting.

SERBIA PLANS A PROTEST

PARIS, July 24.—The conference of members of the Entente concerned with the military and political situation in the Balkans will be begun here tomorrow. Premier Lloyd George, Foreign Secretary Balfour, and General Sir William Robertson, Chief of the Imperial Staff at Army Headquarters, are here from England, and Baron Sonnino, Foreign Minister; General Cadorna, Commander in Chief, and others have come from Italy. France will be represented strongly. Premier Ribot will preside.

Russia's views will be presented by the Chargé d'Affaires, M. Sevastepoulo. The Rumanian Minister, M. Lahovary, and the Greek Minister, M. Romanos, will represent their Governments.

The invitations to the conference were sent out by the British Government. Among them was one to the United States, accompanied by the explanation that it would be a small conference to consider specific objects, and saying that as the United States had no troops in the Balkans it would perhaps not care to participate, although its representatives would be welcomed. Washington replied that it did not wish to take part in the gathering.

A conference of naval authorities also will be held. Vice Admiral Sims, commander of the American naval forces in the war zone, has arrived for this meeting. Great Britain will be represented by Admiral Jellicoe, First Sea Lord; France by Rear Admiral Lacaze, Marine Minister, and Italy by Vice Admiral Thaon di Revel, former Chief of the Naval Staff.

The Temps in an editorial today headed "Russia and the Conference," says:

"Before their conference, which opens tomorrow, the allied Governments and the members of their staffs today were engaged in preliminary conversations which necessarily will influence, as will the conference itself will be, by the unprecedented crisis which Russia is traversing. No plans for military operations in the Balkans can be studied without preoccupation with regard to the Russian Army now retiring in Galicia. The diplomatic situation cannot be examined into without taking into account the new initiative of the Russian Ministry, which would fix a date for a conference as regards the war aims of the allies for next month."

The article concludes by warning Russia that the way to end the bloodshed is not convince the Allies but to conquer their adversaries within and without Russia.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Serbia and Rumania are preparing to protest against the present plan of the Allies of allowing them only consultative powers at the forthcoming general Allies' conference in Paris on the Balkan situation. They will insist, vigorously, it was learned here today, on being admitted as full members, especially since the subject discussed is so vital to them.

Greece also has been invited to attend in a consultative capacity, but has not yet indicated her attitude. The United States declined some time ago to take part because officials did not deem the questions under discussion of immediate interest to this country. France, Italy, Russia, and Great Britain, the four main powers moving for the conference, and it is understood there is some difference of opinion even among them, with Russia opposing the recent allied policy in Greece as inconsistent with her revolutionary principles.

Just what details will be taken up is uncertain, but it is understood here the conference will discuss the feasibility of an allied advance on the Macedonian front, now that the Allies' rear has been secured by the entry of Greece into the war. In a diplomatic way it will discuss the new adjustment of power necessitated by Greece's presence among the belligerents and attempt to harmonize conflicting interests between Italy, Greece, and Serbia.

The allied control of Greece's internal situation has been formally abandoned, according to an Athens cable to the Greek Legation here today. While details are lacking, it is assumed this means a complete withdrawal of the allied supervision of such governmental activities as railroads, telegraphs, and Post Office and the restoration of the sovereignty of the Greek Government.

ALLIES HERE CONFERRING.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Diplomatic representatives of the allied nations in Washington and the heads of the various allied purchasing missions here began today the discussion of urgent questions relating to co-operation between the Allies and the United States in the war. The business transacted at these conferences will not be made public, it was said. It was asserted that they did not concern diplomatic relations.

No representatives of the United States Government will participate in these conferences.

CLAIMS MICHAELIS AS ANNEXATIONIST

RADICALS SCENT BETRAYAL

Tageblatt and Vossische Zeitung Begin to Realize That Reactionaries Are In Control.

COPENHAGEN, July 24.—The Kreuz-Zeitung of Berlin, the organ of the Conservatives, asserts that the speech before the Reichstag of Chancellor Michaelis did not signify acceptance of the formula of peace without annexations or indemnities, and that neither Field Marshal von Hindenburg nor Emperor William is minded to deprive himself of the fruits of victory by adherence to the surface meaning of the resolution adopted in the Reichstag.

More liberal newspapers like Vorwärts and the Tageblatt take issue with the Kreuz-Zeitung, and demand that the Chancellor make a clear and unequivocal declaration of his attitude and disavow the Kreuz-Zeitung's interpretation of his speech.

"It cannot be the intent of the leading statesmen, still less of the supreme military command, to renounce the complete exploitation of the military situation so as to obtain what the war has shown to be necessary for Germany's present and future," says the Kreuz-Zeitung. "International peace formulae cannot possibly stay the victorious progress of our arms or the full utilization of the advantages purchased with our blood. The Chancellor could not wish to say that, and did not. • • •

"Even more vigorously than against attempts to commit the Chancellor must a protest be lodged against attempts to claim that a parliamentary majority command is in favor of the Erzberger-Scheidemann resolution. The Chancellor merely declared that the supreme command was in accord with his declaration, and by no means said it approved the peace resolution. We know positively that the exact opposite is correct, and that the supreme command is in nowise minded to permit the fruits of the sword to be lost through this resolution, when the proper time comes.

"The duty of us Conservatives now is to set to work to enlighten the people as to what peace must bring the country, and to inculcate unshaken confidence in the nation in this confidence we know we are at one with the supreme command and the Emperor."

Radicals' Dream Shattered.

Under the influence of articles like that in the Kreuz-Zeitung and with time for calm reflection upon the limitations of Chancellor Michaelis's speech, the German liberals and radicals are beginning to wake from the soporific content induced by their apparent victory in the recent internal crisis and the adoption of the peace resolution.

The Reichstag, Theodor Wolff writes in the Tageblatt, accomplished absolutely nothing for the inner renascence of the German Empire. The Liberals in that body, he declares, were used by the wire pullers to get rid of an unpopular Chancellor, producing in the process a simulation of Parliamentary influence. But even this camarilla brand of Parliamentarism disappeared when Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg fell, he points out, and the Reichstag was ignored in the subsequent steps taken.

Neither the speech of Chancellor Michaelis nor the attitude of the Reichstag parties, continues Herr Wolff, promises much toward the establishment of a popular, democratic Government for Germany. His hopes along this line are based upon "the compelling necessity of events."

As far as peace is concerned, Herr Wolff expresses doubt whether the Chancellor's speech and the passage of the peace resolution greatly hastened its coming, as the speech was ambiguous, and annexationists of every shade are now busy explaining to the German people and to the world outside that the phrase, "security of the German frontiers," like charity, covers a multitude of annexation sins.

Fears Corruption in the Reichstag.

Georg Bernhard, in the Vossische Zeitung, puts his finger on the same evil as Herr Wolff in what he terms "the latest manifestation of Parliamentary irresponsible unrest," namely, the exercise of influence by members of the Reichstag behind the scenes, not on the floor of the House, to obtain desired results. He agrees with Herr Wolff that this brand of Parliamentarism is the stepping stone for Parliamentary corruption, and worse than no Parliamentarism at all.

Herr Bernhard says that the events of the last few weeks have resulted in nothing positive except a change of Chancellors. Germany, he adds, will in time receive a number of Ministers of State and Secretaries under this change, including a few members of Parliament, but he says that this will be of no avail unless responsible Parliamentary control is established. He evolves, not from events, but from his inner consciousness, the conclusion that "events are moving forward."

Vorwärts says it is impossible to dismiss the Kreuz-Zeitung article as if it were an explosion of editorial opinion. It declares that it is a document which will assume historical importance unless it is immediately and authoritatively disavowed.

Professor Schaefer, President of the Annexationist Independent Committee on a German Peace, writes in the Tägliche Rundschau that the Reichstag decision is not binding upon the Government.

ESTERHAZY BACKS MICHAELIS.

COPENHAGEN, July 24.—Advices received here from Budapest give the outline of an address delivered by the Hungarian Premier, Count Moritz Esterhazy, before Parliament concerning the war.

"We are waging the war," said the Premier, "as a defensive war, and our goal at the conclusion of peace will not be conquest. We have, in addition to our peace manifesto, expressed readiness for an honorable peace and accord with the Allies."

Count Esterhazy said the speech of the German Chancellor before the Reichstag showed that Austria-Hungary and Germany were conducting the war without aspirations for conquest.

Count Tisza, the former Premier, also addressed the Chamber. He said complete harmony in war aims, peace terms, and desires for the future maintenance of the alliance existed between the Reichstag and Hungarian public opinion.

POLES TO FIGHT AS GERMANS

COPENHAGEN, July 24.—A dispatch received here from Warsaw says that the temporary Council of State has issued an explanatory manifesto on its decision to enroll Polish recruits in the legions under command of the German General von Beseler, instead of forming an independent Polish army. The manifesto says that an attempt to avoid German control would have endangered the prospects of the later formation of an independent army, upon which alone an independent State can be erected.

OUR FOOD EMBARGO APPROVED IN FRANCE

PERSHING A NONSMOKER

Quit on Doctor's Advice Ten Years Ago and Then Just Forgot the Habit.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

PARIS, June 28.—Nothing has happened recently that has given more general satisfaction in this part of the world than the President's laying a heavy hand on the food trafficking neutrals. People hereabouts set the greatest store by the Oriental method of strangulation as applied to Germany by the British fleet. Heretofore the supplying of food from America to the neutrals has recalled the process of filling the mythological tub by the daughters of Danaus. Most of the food has stopped only long enough in neutral countries to enable the profiteers to gather their gains. I have heard stories of money-making in those countries that would make Wall Street green with envy. Meanwhile, Germany has been saved from starvation and a war that might have ended a year ago kept going. The matter is not without serious difficulties, but there is rejoicing here to see that President Wilson is a man who is not afraid to "grasp the nettle."

General Pershing's personality is a subject of conversation wherever people gather in Paris. One peculiarity that provokes discussion is the General's not smoking, which is most unusual in a soldier. The story of his giving up tobacco is as follows:

About ten years ago he and Mrs. Pershing were in Paris, and the General, who was then, I think, a Captain, was suffering from a slight indisposition, which his doctor thought might be attributable to smoking. Upon Mrs. Pershing's insistence the Captain went to Mannheim, where there was a famous cure. The resident doctor examined him and advised that he give up smoking. It happened that Pershing had always been an inveterate smoker; his cigar was a part of his life. He wrestled with the question a day or two, and made up his mind that he would follow the medical advice.

When I asked if he hadn't found the job a hard one and whether he wasn't still tempted, the reply was:

Not in the least; the only hard thing was making up his mind. He has hardly given the matter a thought since."

There is a man of resolution!

There are two subjects which the General will always talk about with interest—his farming experience and his four years with the "Moros" in the Philippines.

He loves to hark back to those days when the highest obligation was to get out in the corn field at the very earliest minute in the morning, that there was daylight enough to see the ears of corn. When he was fourteen he took the management of the farm. His father had been a rich man, but the panic of 1873 broke him. John was the oldest of nine children and he had to go to the front. In everything that he does now I can detect the influence of his early training. I can see in the General of today the farmer boy with his contempt for hardship, the country school teacher with his shepherding instinct toward those around him, and the general wariness of country bringing up. It is inexorably true that the boy is father to the man.

One of the things about General Pershing that needs explaining to the millions who don't know him is that it is impossible to get a good photograph of him. It has been tried over and over again, but can't be done. The camera exaggerates an already prominent—but not too prominent—nose and chin. General Pershing and General Joffre, to whose intimacy I have heretofore referred by cable, are just now having new photographs taken for each other, and the exchange is the excuse for a good deal of delightful visiting back and forth.

In the anteroom of M. Painlevé, the Minister of War, there is a billiard table and a rack of cues. I didn't learn whether M. Painlevé is a billiardist or the outfit belonged to one of his predecessors. There was something refreshing in the effect of the provision at hand for a little diversion. For a moment it put the terrible war on one side to see a billiard table all ready for play in the anteroom of the Minister of War. But I couldn't help thinking of what would happen in our Puritanical America if a Secretary Daniels or Secretary Baker should install "cowboy pool" in his anteroom. And yet if they took the time for a little "cowboy" or some other game each day they could do better work on their big problems.

To add some details to my cable description of M. Painlevé, when I saw him he wore a black cutaway coat, a gray cravat with a jeweled pin, grayish trousers with sympathetic gaiters made into his shoes, and purple socks. A detail that conveyed the impression of plain utilitarian tastes was the detachable cuffs, which made me suspect that when at work in the closet of science he removed them and his coat, and hung them on a convenient peg.

Around the Ministry of War I was struck by the confidence of the subordinates in General Sarrail. It is undeniable that this officer must be judged in the light of the perplexities and difficulties by which he has been surrounded in Greece. There has been not only the German influence always so pervasive and potent, and as unescapable for King Constantine as his own heartbeats, but there was a secret and perverse restraint upon allied action that could not be got at or thrown off and that became fairly maddening.

Still another obstacle in the way of that directness, which can only proceed from unity, was the varied composition of the army commanded by Sarrail. It was made up of this mixture: French, English, Serb, Russian, Greek, Italian.

A deposed King excites a certain sympathy, but it is of an attenuated quality. A diplomat with whom I discussed the possible danger of Constantine as a rallying centre for pro-Germanism in Switzerland, shrewdly observed "there is no magnetism in an ex-King. The world will quickly lose interest in Constantine." If the spectable of his deportation should excite sympathy in any quarter in America, it should be recalled that he welched on every single obligation that he assumed. He acted the ingrate and broke faith to the Serbs, to whom he was deeply indebted and solemnly pledged, to the Allies, who were his sponsors and guarantors, and to his own people, whose constitution he violated.

EXPLAINS TRENCH BOMBS.

Captain Dion, Canadian Veteran, Talks to Plattsburg Instructors.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., July 24.—The first trench veteran to speak at the officers' training camp here was Captain S. A. Dion of the Canadian Army, who gave a talk on trench bombs before a conference of company instructors this afternoon. Captain Dion was a bombing officer with the Canadian overseas army who was wounded in action and invalided home. The ship on which he engaged passage for his return to Canada was torpedoed, and he was picked up clinging to a spar by a British patrol boat.

For a time Captain Dion was bombing instructor at the Valcartier Training Camp. He is now on leave of absence from Canada and is attached to the Junior Plattsburg, a private military camp for boys of the preparatory school age situated at Longpoint, about eight miles north of Plattsburg.

Captain Dion showed the officers the various bombs used by the British forces and explained their construction. He expressed a willingness to return at any time to demonstrate the method of throwing them. Eeach infantry company is devoting an hour a day this week to practice in hurling dummy bombs. Screens of chicken wire represent sections of opposing trenches. The tendency of most of the candidates to throw the bombs like a baseball is corrected, and officers instruct them to cast the bombs high in the air with the overhand swing of a cricket bowler. When they become more proficient, the men will be allowed to try the new trench bombs recently designed for the American Army.

A telegram arrived today at camp headquarters changing the age limits for men desiring to take up aviation. Men between the ages of 19 and 30 are desired. The former requirements for the aviation section of the signal enlisted reserve corps called for men between 21 and 25 years.

CAMP TO BECOME HOSPITAL.

Government Will Use Madison Barracks After Present Camp.

Special to The New York Times.

SACKET HARBOR, N. Y., July 24.—Congressman Luther W. Mott of Oswego received a telegram from Adjt. Gen. McCain yesterday notifying him that the War Department will probably use Madison Barracks as a hospital after the present reserve camp, which is to end Aug. 15. Under the new camp scheme as made known to Colonel William R. Sample, the camp commander, there are to be five camps under the jurisdiction of the Department of the East. Three of these camps are to be at Plattsburg, one at Fort Niagara, and one at Fort Myer. Colonel Sample said a much smaller number of reserve candidates would be enrolled in these camps, opening Aug. 27, than were included in the first series opened here.

There are 1,700 candidates left at Madison Barracks. Of this number more are to return to their homes. In one company twenty-three of the candidates tendered their resignations to their Captains today. These candidates realize that they are not of officer material. The company commanders are now making out the list of those who are to be recommended for commissions.

Manoeuvring may begin at Madison Barracks within a few days. The reserves will be divided into two "armies," and will put on a sham battle. Trench work, bayonet practice, and field drill made up today's program. Colonel Sample issued an order today prohibiting swimming in the waters adjoining the camp, except between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The death of Private John Toohey yesterday caused the new order.

Twelve candidates were reported on the sick list this morning. None of the cases are serious. The thermometer again hovered about the 85 mark.

FRANCE TO KEEP ORPHANS.

All to be Cared For by State Under Bill Just Passed.

PARIS, July 24.—The Chamber of Deputies by a unanimous vote today adopted the bill, which had already passed the Senate, known as "The Wards of the Nation." The bill, which is drawn up on broad-minded lines, provides that the State shall assume the position of legal guardian of all French war orphans. A committee will be nominated in each department, to which the clergy as well as others will be eligible, to take charge of the orphans and to act as far as possible as fathers. Orphans who cannot be placed with relatives will be placed in suitable institutions.

The bill, when under the discussion of Parliament, gave rise to much debate along clerical and anti-clerical lines, but the evident effort to solve the difficult question on broad lines won a unanimous vote for the measure.

What this act will cost the State has not yet been definitely determined, but it is estimated the amount will reach $200,000,000 a year.

ANNOUNCE NOMINEES TO IRISH CONVENTION

Dunraven, Desart, Granard, and Goulding Among the 14 Government Delegates.

ACTIVE HOSTILITY LACKING

Sinn Feiners Merely Ignore the Movement—Hopes of Success Are Not Strong.

LONDON, July 24.—Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced today the Government's nominees as delegates to the Irish Convention. They include the Earl of Dunraven, President of the Irish Reform Association; the Earl of Desart, the Earl of Granard, Baron MacDonnell, Sir William Goulding, Chairman of the Great Southern & Western Railway of Ireland; Sir Horace Curzon Plunkett, founder of the Irish Agricultural Organization Society; Sir George W. E. Russell, former Under-Secretary of the Home Department; Sir Crawford McCullagh, former Lord Mayor of Belfast; Sir Bertram C. A. Windle, Provost of Trinity College, Dublin; Patrick Dempsey, Martin Murphy, Edward Lysaght, Alexander McDowell, and Sir William Whitla, Professor of Materia Medica and Therapeutics in Queen's College, Belfast.

The number of Labor representatives has been increased from five to seven. The delegates who have accepted so far number ninety-five.

DUBLIN, July 24.—Not very sanguine expectations of success for the Irish Convention, about to assemble here, are expressed by the delegates who have arrived to attend the gathering, which will begin tomorrow. There was a plenteous expression of good-will toward the undertaking among the delegates.

In the opinion of a leading official, it will take less than a week to decide whether the effort to deal with the Irish question by the convention is to prove abortive. On the other hand, it is known that the Government was influenced in choosing the place of meeting at Trinity College by the fact that it would be able to retain occupancy for more than three months.

Henry E. Duke, Chief Secretary for Ireland, will open the convention when its members assemble. There is a strong feeling, chiefly among the Nationalists, for keeping him permanently in the chair. Sir Francis Hopwood is doing the secretarial work at present, but it is expected he will be replaced by an Irishman.

The Ulster Unionists plan to form an organized group and to consult the existing Ulster Unionist organizations during the proceedings.

The exact number of members of the convention is uncertain in view of the action of some County Councils which have asked their Chairmen, invited to attend ex officio, not to accept the invitation. No hostility toward the convention is being manifested, as the Sinn Feiners simply ignore it.

CHINESE NAVY REVOLTS AGAINST PREMIER TUAN

Minister of Marine Issues Manifesto Declaring Present Peking Government Illegal.

LONDON, July 24.—A dispatch to The Morning Post from Shanghai says the Chinese Navy has refused to recognize the Government of Premier Tuan chi-jui. The dispatch adds that fourteen cruisers have left Woosung for Canton to support the southern provinces.

SHANGHAI, July 24.—Chen Pih-kuan, who was appointed Minister of the Navy in the Cabinet of President Li Yuan-hung and whose portfolio has not been canceled, has issued a manifesto demanding the maintenance of the provisional Constitution, the reassembling of Parliament, and the punishment of the rebellious Tuchuns in accordance with law. The manifesto also declares illegal the present Peking Government and all the mandates it has issued since the dissolution of Parliament.

Chen Pih-kuan and Former Premier Tang Shao-yi, on board the cruiser Hai-Chi, are proceeding to Canton. It is expected that the entire cruiser squadron will take sides in the controversy with Chen.

EARL GREY SERIOUSLY ILL.

Ex-Governor General of Canada Was Operated On Recently in London.

LONDON, July 24.—Earl Grey, former Governor General of Canada, is seriously ill. He recently underwent an operation. Earl Grey is the son of General Sir Charles Grey, who was for many years private secretary to the Prince Consort and to Queen Victoria, and he first won his spurs as Governor and Administrator of Rhodesia. He was later Director of the British South Africa Company.

Earl Grey was appointed Governor General and Commander in Chief in Canada in 1904, and he held this office until 1911. He is 66 years old.

$3,250,000,000 WAR CREDIT IS VOTED

pointed out, was something like £2,000,000 daily, and its expenditure about £8,000,000, which meant that £8,000,000 had to be raised by war loans. The last-named sum daily over the whole year represented for interest and for a very moderate sinking fund a further income tax of 3 shillings 4 pence in the pound, which, added to the present rate of 5 shillings, was more than 8 shillings. Trade after the war, he feared, would be crippled by an income tax of 8 shillings.

"In this House and out of it," said Mr. McKenna, "I will support the Chancellor when he finds it necessary to take unpopular steps in curtailing expenditure. When I had the authority I did my best to curtail it. I recognize the danger we run from rising prices. The cause of the rise is not—whatever people may think—profiteering. The main cause is the inflation of expenditure, and the remedy is to be found in curtailing that expenditure."

The general debate had no great interest, the main feature being strong criticisms by John Dillon and others of the Saloniki expedition. Mr. Dillon, referring to rumors that Serbia was intending to make a separate peace with Austria and demanding that the Government say whether Serbia was to be deserted, declared that the British Army in Saloniki had been demoralized by eighteen months of inaction in pestilent surroundings.

Cecil Restates War Aims.

Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of Blockade, replying, characterized Mr. Dillon's charge as absolutely untrue. He said there was no intention of receding from the pledges for the full restoration of and reparation for Serbia. While declining to reveal the Government's plans, he said he would restate its war aims, saying:

"Austria is not our chief enemy. Germany is, and must be, our chief enemy. The broad principles we are fighting for are these: First, that we should stand by our allies; second, we are fighting for a stable settlement, for a sound and satisfactory peace, not a conquest or mere domination, but on some national principle as far as might be which would secure that settlement. When arrived at it should be free from change in the future.

"Personally, I wish to see how far President Wilson's proposals can be made practicable for barriers against future wars. The Government's desire for the destruction of German militarism is only part of its general purpose to secure a lasting peace. It desires this only because German militarism is the greatest danger to the future peace of Europe."

The war credit was agreed to and the House adjourned.

LA LIBERTE SUSPENDED.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, July 24.—Despite a formal announcement in large type on the front page of La Liberté today, declaring that inability to obtain a supply of newsprint, though cash payment was tendered, had caused that paper to suspend publication, the man in the street here sees in this suspension the first indication that the authorities have come to an end of their toleration of seditious publications. It is believed that any other newspaper that took a similar course will find it difficult to get print paper.

La Liberté has been unrestrained in its campaign against conscription. It has continually attacked the Canadian Government, the British Government, and the American Government. It has made a specialty of personal attacks of the most offensive type. For some time its compulsory suspension has been under the consideration of the Department of State. It has been warned before, and has changed its name once.

Its editor, Tancrede Marsil, is the most outspoken man of the anti-conscription element. The suspension of the paper is taken as indicating that Marsil's career as a promoter of sedition is at an end.

While the French-Canadian press is calling on the Premier of the Province, Sir Lomer Gouin, to save them from conscription, the Premier has under consideration a scheme to settle returned soldiers, both English and French-speaking, on farm lands in Quebec. There are plenty of returned soldiers eager to go back to the land as farmers if they get a chance.

This was made evident at a largely attended meeting of the Great War Veterans' Association at the Khaki League headquarters. This meeting drew up a petition bearing many names, setting forth the desires and plans of the returned men toward the farming problem, and appealing to Premier Gouin to assist them.

The soldiers suggest that three colonies be established in the province, and that each colonist receive a loan up to $1,500 to establish himself.

SERBIA PROTESTS PLUNDER OF NATION

GREAT SUMS ARE EXTORTED

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The following communication has been sent to the American Ambassador in Paris by the Serbian Legation there:

Mr. Ambassador: I am instructed by my Government to inclose herewith to your Excellency a memorandum relating to the economic exploitation of the Serbian provinces occupied by the Austro-Hungarian and Bulgarian authorities.

The economic exploitation which they are practicing by means of the illegal imposition of taxes, by the depreciation of Serbian money, the abolition of the moratorium, the sale of Serbian monopolies, the introduction of fresh monopolies by the violation of the rights of private property, and by forced subscription to the war loan, has but one object in view: the economic ruin of occupied Serbia.

Taking as their justification Articles 23, 43, 44, 46, 48, 52, 53, 56 of The Hague Regulations, the Royal Government of Serbia protests strongly against these arbitrary measures on the part of the Austrian and Bulgarian authorities, constituting, as they do, flagrant violations of the public international law.

I should be obliged if your Excellency would be so good as to communicate this protest to your Government.

VESNITCK.

The memorandum which is transmitted with the note gives notice that Serbia reserves the right of claiming, at the time of peace negotiations, an indemnity corresponding to the damage inflicted, both on the Serbian State and its subjects, by these flagrant violations of public international law. It is charged that more than 100,000,000 crowns have been illegally extorted, as well as 6,000,000 crowns in the form of forced subscriptions to Austrian war loans and the Austrian and Bulgarian Red Cross. Extracts from the memorandum are:

"Our law of the 29th July, 1914, with regard to the moratorium, was abolished by decree of the Military Government of the 19th January, 1916. In virtue of this decree, Austrian and German creditors can legally and without hindrance claim payment of all their debts plus 6 per cent. interest, in quick installments, and in either Austrian or Serbian money (which is accepted at only half its nominal value.) The decree was passed at the instigation of Austrian and German creditors. It has ruined Serbian trade.

"The Austrians have pillaged all the houses in Belgrade and in other towns where the owners were absent. According to reports received, such houses have been completely ransacked. Private property has never been so little respected in any war. The royal palace has been plundered.

"The Ethnographical Museum and the National Museum have been pillaged, and all valuable objects taken away, contrary to Article 56 of The Hague Regulations, according to which museums are as inviolate as private property.

"The Bulgarians, like the Austrians, have plundered all the houses abandoned by their owners. At Monastir, for instance, it was proved upon the entry of our troops that the personal property of all our officials had been carried away to Bulgaria. The Bulgarians designate all lands, factories, buildings, furniture, and other property belonging to those who had emigrated from the occupied provinces as unowned property, putting up such property for sale or letting it on lease for the benefit of their treasury.

"The National Library, the University Library of Nish, and the Library of the School of Theology at Prizzen were taken by the Bulgarians as war booty. The books and manuscripts of all these libraries were carried away to Bulgaria.

"The Serbian Legation at Sofia was pillaged, and also the private belongings of the Minister and his secretaries.

"It must be especially remarked that the Bulgarians have plundered to an extent and with an effrontery unexampled in modern warfare. They have sold as booty silk, calico, linen, glass, furniture, kitchen utensils, agricultural implements, and even tombstones.

"The Austrians and Bulgarians, without having formally annexed the occupied provinces, behave as veritable sovereigns. Their economic administration has an evident tendency to ruin the population."

CHILD FALLS 18 FEET INTO STREET MANHOLE

While playing with other children in West Forty-seventh Street, near Eighth Avenue, last night Mary Gentily, 4 years old, of 264 West Forty-seventh Street, stumbled and fell into a manhole, the cover of which had been removed for some unexplained reason. The accident was seen by Tessie, a six-year-old sister, whose cries for help attracted Joseph Byrne of 423 West Forty-seventh Street, a recent recruit to the Sixty-ninth Regiment.

Byrne descended into the manhole and climbed down the ladder rungs, the last one of which was five or six feet from the bottom of the pit, where the child stood screaming. Hanging from this rung, Byrne dropped his feet and Mary seized them. Then Byrne lifted her until she was able to reach the lower ladder rung.

Meanwhile Mrs. Tony Gentily, whose husband has a saloon at Eighth Avenue and Forty-seventh Street, learned of her child's accident and became hysterical. Her screams brought a crowd and traffic in the neighborhood was blocked for a while. One of those who heard the woman was Lieutenant Walter Dugan of Hook and Ladder Company 4, who, when he learned of the nature of the accident, brought a ladder and rope. With the aid of Fireman Don Leavy, Dugan was lowered to where Byrne and the child were, and the three were lifted to the surface.

An examination of the child made by Dr. Caffery of the Polyclinic Hospital disclosed that although she had fallen eighteen feet the only injuries she had received were a few minor scratches.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., July 24.—C. D. Langhorne of Greenwood, Albemarle County, Va., father of the famous "Langhorne sisters," filed a deed of conveyance today in the Chancery Court here in which the estate, valued at more than a million dollars, is placed with a trust company to be administered according to the provisions of the deed.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 24.—Luther Burbank is lying at the point of death at his home in Santa Rosa Avenue, Santa Rosa. The noted horticultural scientist was stricken today with appendicitis, and attending physicians only hope for his recovery. Late tonight Dr. Joseph Shaw, one of the physicians who have been at his bedside since he was taken ill, said:

RHEIMS CRUMBLING UNDER GERMAN FIRE

POPULATION DOWN TO 5,000

Women's Work, School Classes and City Government Conducted Below Street Level.

FRENCH FRONT, July 4, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—Rheims is wilting. The big cathedral city of the Champagne district has the appearance of a hollow shell which has collapsed in parts and is rapidly subsiding into a shapeless mass.

Not only the cathedral, but all the public buildings and private dwelling houses have suffered terribly in the last half year from the raging vengeance of the German gunners, who have turned a rain of shells on to the stricken city whenever their armies have been defeated at any point of the front. These defeats have been so frequent, either on a small or large scale, since the Allied offensive began this year that the city has rarely passed more than two or three days without undergoing severe bombardment.

The extent of the undeserved punishment may be gathered from the figures relating the number of shells of all calibres poured into the streets and on to the cathedral during a single fortnight, from June 15 to June 28. The total between those two dates was no fewer than 16,652. On June 15 the number was 298; June 16, 1,211; June 17, 2,000; June 18, 317; June 19, 2,431; June 20, 400; June 21, 945; June 22, 1,330; June 23, 625; June 24, 1,870; June 25, 1,517; June 26, 1,400; June 27, 600, and June 28, 1,200.

There are only 5,000 persons left out of a peace time population of about 115,000. Among them are a goodly proportion of women and children. Some of the younger women have continued their work throughout, many of them being employed in the champagne cellars, where during the day they are comparatively safe from the German fire.

Underground Meeting Places.

School is still being carried on, the classes being held far below the street surface, and the municipal government is also conducted in the bowels of the earth, where the city fathers meet to discuss relief measures.

A visit to Cardinal Lucon, the Archbishop of Rheims, who has never for a moment thought of deserting his post close to the cathedral, found him in very confident spirits and in full belief that the Allied victory was assured. He referred in course of conversation to the great help he had received from America and from the other Allies. He said:

"The entry of America into the war will surely hasten the defeat of the Germans, who in the name of their Kultur have done so much harm to civilization.

"My flock has suffered much. Over 200,000 of the people of my diocese are still in the hands of the Germans, and many of the others have taken refuge in various parts of the country, driven from their homes before the invaders. With the help placed at my disposal by Americans and other sympathizers I have been able to relieve much distress, but there is still much to do.

"Many have lost their all, and I should like to have at my disposal in readiness for the return of the refugees a reserve of blankets and bedding, clothing, and other essentials, so as to be able to provide at least some of the more urgently required needs of my people, when the Germans have been driven away, as they assuredly will be."

The American Consulate, which has not been occupied since early in the war, has not suffered greatly from the constant bombardment. One shell pierced the roof and left some marks of its explosion, while all the windows have been destroyed.

Damage to Cathedral.

In the cathedral itself a great change has taken place in recent months. Great gaping holes show in the roof. All the ancient stained glass has fallen out in millions of fragments on to the stone floor as a consequence of the shell explosions in and around the building; the statues of saints are calcined and crumbled; frequent craters show in the floor; all the woodwork has succumbed to the flames, and at any moment a big shell may cause the whole structure to collapse.

Nearly seven hundred shells have hit the building. One of them—a twelve-inch projectile—did not explode, and it now stands on its base beside one of the pillars of the nave.

EDISON CO.'S POLES MAY GO.

Residents of the Thirtieth Ward section of Brooklyn won yesterday what they regarded as an important success in their long fight to compel the removal of electric light poles and wires from the streets of that district. On the application of Albert Clements, Supreme Court Justice Benedict decided that the Edison Electric Illuminating Company should appear in court to defend its use of the streets in the Bay Ridge-Borough Park-Bath Beach section for carrying electricity to private consumers. The alternative writ of mandamus is directed against Borough President Pounds of Brooklyn and the Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity. The question of whether the poles and wires are to remain will be decided at the hearing on the writ, to be held in the Fall.

The fight for the removal of the poles was started about eight years ago by John J. Gordon of 8,650 Nineteenth Avenue and many of his neighbors. Corporation Counsel Archibald Watson held that the electric light company had no legal right to the use of the streets, but the company obtained an injunction restraining the city from removing the poles and wires. The matter was sent to a referee, who sustained the opinion of the Corporation Counsel. It was alleged, however, that despite this the authorities continued to issue permits for the erection of poles and the stringing of wires. In granting the writ, Justice Benedict said the charters of the old City of Brooklyn or the amendments thereto up to the time of consolidation did not give the Common Council of the former city power to grant franchises for supplying electric light, heat, or power except for public use, such as street and park lighting.

TAMPICO OIL MEN OUT.

General Strike Said to be Due to Difficulties Over Wages.

MEXICO CITY, July 24.—A general strike of the workmen employed in the Tampico oil fields began today. It affects the entire territory and refining plants in that section. About 15,000 men are employed in the various trades. There has been no disorder so far, according to reports received by the American Embassy, and the Government troops have been instructed to give protection to the property of both foreigners and Mexicans.

The general strike was preceded by a strike of the river boatmen, who asked for an increase in wages and a betterment of conditions. This was denied them. The men engaged in the general strike also demanded an increase, which the companies declined to grant.

The Mexican Foreign Office has been requested by the American Embassy to investigate a letter printed in a pro-German paper here. The letter is alleged to have been written by the Mexican Consul at Tucson, Ariz. It advises Mexicans to remain out of the United States, where, the writer of the letter says, they are subjected to outrages and bad treatment by individuals, companies, and even the authorities.

Officer Killed on Target Range.

EL PASO, Texas, July 24.—Struck by bullets from a machine gun on the target range near Fort Bliss, Second Lieutenant Lopp F. Patten, Thirty-fourth United States Infantry, was fatally wounded yesterday and died a short time afterward, it became known today. A board of inquiry is investigating to determine the cause of the killing.

The Soldier and his Teeth

Of the 45,000 Dentists in the United States Who Are Preparing the Teeth of the American Soldier for the Stress of War, over 39,000 are Recommending Kolynos

WHILE America is providing herself with the teeth of war, every man who looks forward to the privilege of serving her must put his own munition plant in order.

If you are to be permitted to serve your country in its Army or Navy, your teeth and your mouth must be in good condition. Diseased teeth cannot deal with Army rations under the strain of a hard campaign.

More men are being turned down because of defective teeth than for any other single cause. Dentists all over the United States are organizing to bring the mouths of recruits up to the passing mark.

Have your teeth put in order immediately by an efficient dentist—and then take care of them.

Learn quickly what the British and French troops have learned—that one of the greatest boons on the march, in the camp and in the trench, is that efficient, antiseptic, refreshing dental cream, Kolynos—one of the best known American products in Europe.

It is recognized as the one dentifrice which perfectly cleanses the teeth and also acts as an antiseptic and germicide. It leaves the entire mouth and the throat in a sweet, clean, refreshed and sanitary condition, and this healthful condition endures for hours.

Kolynos Dental Cream

Is the Dentifrice of the Trenches of the Field Hospitals and of the Battleships of the Leading Military Nations of the World

Over four-fifths of the entire dental profession in America and over three-fifths of the profession in England use and recommend it in their practice.

In military hospitals, especially in base hospitals, where jaw and mouth wounds are numerous and every precaution must be taken against infection, Kolynos is supreme.

As a soldier, on land or sea, keep Kolynos in your kit. It will be your friend in the hour of your greatest need. Brush your teeth with it systematically several times a day—preferably after meals and before taps.

We have supplied the British Expeditionary Force in France on order, during the past six months, with more than 115,000 tubes of Kolynos. This is in addition to the hundreds of thousands of tubes sent to the men personally in their "parcels" from home, and other thousands used in the military hospitals in England. Include a tube in your next parcel.

Gentlemen:

I received a tube of your Kolynos Dental Cream through a friend of mine a few weeks ago and it is the best thing that I have tried yet. Can I get your cream through a druggist in England as it is nearer for us than to send to U. S. for it.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Sirs:

I am sending you a little account of how Kolynos was used in a far different way than usual, by my brother, a soldier on the Peninsula. In each parcel we always enclosed a tube of Kolynos.

He landed soon after the first lots, and water was still very scarce, they had none at all, except that kept for emergency in their bottles, which they had strict orders not to touch.

Then they were ordered to charge the enemy!

This acted better than water. He was so pleased that he passed it round to his pals, who were all done up. They, too, used it to the last squeeze, and gave three cheers for "Butler and his tube!"

Gentlemen:

Please accept my warmest thanks for samples of Kolynos received today. It is a great boon to soldiers on active service to receive a tube of your dental cream, as often there is great difficulty in obtaining such necessities when in the field.

With many thanks,
Believe me,
Yours faithfully,

Gentlemen:

Please excuse the liberty I am taking in writing to you.

I happened to be in Port Said today, purchasing some articles to substitute articles lost some few days ago when we had rather a sharp brush with the enemy. Along with other things I purchased a new tube of my usual tooth paste, "Kolynos," and with it I received the enclosed card asking for the names of people to whom you would send samples of your tooth paste.

We are situated in the centre of the desert and Port Said, which is over 40 miles distant, is our nearest town, so it means both time and money for the average "Tommy" to get into town, and the majority of them can't afford the luxury.

You have no idea how much trouble we have out here with the men's teeth and I think a good deal of the trouble is caused by the men not having proper tooth paste. Furthermore, things out here are ever so much dearer than at home. Kolynos costs 1/6 out here.

Consequently I am taking the liberty of asking you if you could see your way to send out some of your samples to us here, and I need not mention that they will be appreciated far more than were they sent to people at home.

I hope you will not take this letter as presumptuous but I am really speaking in the interest of my men, knowing the power of Kolynos as I do.

Apologising for troubling you in the matter and wishing your paste and firm the greatest success

I beg to remain, gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,
(Signed) J. M. B.

PENROSE SAYS CREEL TRIFLES WITH NEWS

DEMANDS AN INVESTIGATION

Declares Daniels Was Not Candid in Defense of Creel—James and Swanson Resent Attack.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—In a scathing speech today, Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania assailed George Creel, head of the Committee on Public Information of the United States Government, as having mismanaged the war publicity work. He urged the passage of his resolution, offered two weeks ago, to investigate the committee, saying the public ought to know how it was being run.

The attack brought sharp protest from Senator Swanson of Virginia, Chairman of the Naval Committee, and Senator James of Kentucky, who defended Mr. Creel and the Administration. Senator James accused Senator Penrose of playing "peanut politics," and said Mr. Penrose and other Republican Senators were "sniping." He also referred to copperheadism as being practiced by Republican Senators.

"If this spirit of baseless criticism of the Administration is allowed to go on," said Senator James, "America will find itself crippled before the war has got very far along."

Senator Penrose in urging his resolution said he wanted a "fair and open" inquiry made.

"Widespread dissatisfaction exists all over the country, among newspaper correspondents and newspaper publishers, with the management of the so-called Bureau of Public Information," said Senator Penrose. "Instead of a person having been appointed to that important place, the head of the commission, representative of the best elements of professional life in journalism, a gentleman has been called to fill the post who, to say the least, does not command the confidence of the public or of the newspaper profession. His publication, the official Bulletin, I am informed by newspaper people, is not thought worthy of being utilized in the public press throughout the country. It is not considered a work of any particular value.

Ornamented President's Speech.

"However, that the head of the Bureau of Public Information takes a great deal of responsibility on himself and seems to have the cares of the nation on his shoulders is illustrated by his publication of the address of President Wilson to the mine operators and manufacturers of the United States when they came down here to Washington and endeavored to obtain an interview with Mr. Lane, the Secretary of the Interior, to adjust prices on a basis satisfactory to the Government. This official, Mr. Creel, undertook to edit the address of the President, putting italics in it and ornamenting it in other respects in which he adorned the account of the alleged naval battle in mid-ocean."

Senator James interrupted to say that Senator Penrose's resolution was not directed to coal, but to Mr. Creel and his management of the committee.

"The resolution is broader than that," replied Senator Penrose. "It asks for information regarding this alleged combat in mid-ocean, but it also asks for information concerning the Committee on Public Information and the persons employed by such committee, the salaries received by them, and the duties performed by them."

"But, Mr. President, the Senator predicated his resolution primarily upon an editorial which appeared in THE NEW YORK TIMES, in which it was stated that a correspondent slept during the time an encounter was supposed to have taken place, and when he arrived in France reported that no attack was made," persisted Senator James.

"That was the resolution, as I understand it. The Senator from Pennsylvania introduced this resolution, I say, because there was the editorial in THE NEW YORK TIMES that said it ought to be investigated; that there was a correspondent of The Associated Press aboard one of these transports and he sent back a cablegram saying they had an uneventful voyage, and that these reports coming here from the Admiral of the Navy, given out by the Secretary of the Navy, must at once be impeached, because an Associated Press correspondent failed to be upon one of the four different and distinct units of transports that were sent abroad.

"Now, I hope the Senate has not arrived at the time in this war when it is willing to impeach the official dispatches of an Admiral of the Navy simply because some correspondent failed to be on board one of the transports that was fired upon."

The Battle in Midocean.

"I had only intended to refer, before being interrupted, to the fact that the head of the bureau seems to have varied activities," Senator Penrose went on, "and that, in editing the President's address to the mine operators and manufacturers of the United States, Mr. Creel in his official bulletin undertakes to ornament it to suit his own fantastic ideas.

"Now, I referred the other day to the fact that the representative of The Associated Press was with the squadron and that he never reported any battle in midocean with a flotilla of submarines, but, on the contrary, sent a dispatch to this country that the seas had been peaceful and the voyage uneventful; and yet we have this Fourth of July proclamation, in which a wonderful description has been given of the fleet being twice attacked by German submarines on the way across. I quote from Mr. Creel:

"'Our high seas convoys, circling with their searchlights, answered with heavy gun fire, and its accuracy stands proof for the fact that the torpedoes discharged became increasingly scattered and inaccurate. One torpedo boat was certainly sunk, and there is reason to believe that the accurate fire of our gunners sent others to the bottom. Five torpedoes were counted as they sped by the stern.'

"Then he goes on to describe a second attack, where he repeats: 'One submarine at least was sunk.'

"It seems to me that this is trifling very seriously with the information which the American people are entitled to receive of these events, and any person who is responsible for this kind of publicity should well be investigated by the Senate or by some committee of the Senate.

"The Associated Press on July 5 said that there was no submarine attack whatever; no torpedoes were seen, and there was no gun firing at submarines from our destroyers. This is a committee, Mr. President, on misinformation, not on information. It seems that there was no flotilla of German submarines engaged, either in the first or in the second attack.

Daniels's Defense of Creel.

"In defense of Mr. Creel, Secretary Daniels—and he seems to be the only person in Government circles who assumes any responsibility for Mr. Creel—makes the matter worse than before, because the only explanation Mr. Daniels can give for the elaboration and misstatements of the original Gleaves report is that the troops had got over safely, and it was an occasion of great rejoicing, and it was owing to the way he was rejoicing that this exuberancy of language occurred. He then describes how he received a telegram.'

After quoting from Secretary Daniels's letter of last Saturday to Senator Tillman, Senator Penrose continued:

"Mr. Daniels is not candid in that statement. He does not say, when he refers to two attacks made by submarines, that our squadron had been attacked by submarines. On the contrary, he says that the voyage was peaceful and uneventful. There is a lack of candor and square-dealing in this letter of the Secretary of the Navy."

After quoting Mr. Daniels as saying that he hastened to the War Department to inform Secretary Baker of the "attack," Mr. Penrose said: "What attack, Mr. President, in a voyage which the Secretary says was 'peaceful and uneventful?'"

"Mr. Daniels goes on to say," Senator Penrose continued, "The facts were stated not in the very words of the Gleaves telegram, for it is the immemorial policy of the department in time of war not to employ the language of a message coming in code; otherwise it would be easy for the enemy to learn the cipher.'

"How ridiculous, Mr. President! No one expects a message to be printed in code. It would be unintelligible to the American people without the key. It seems to me this whole business displays a lack of candor and of direct dealing which only makes the original Creel offense worse.

"The Secretary went on: 'Moreover, the message of the Rear Admiral contained the names of the ships, which, for military reasons, are never given out during a war.'

Unnecessary Mystery.

"I cannot see what great amount of mystery or secrecy is necessary to surround the names of the ships. They left the shores of the United States with several hundred thousand people witnessing the spectacle from the shores and their bands playing, and their safe arrival on the other side was heralded to the American people two or three days before the news was received by the Navy Department censorship.

"It seems to be the height of military strategy to conceal the names of ships that left our harbor in New York with bands playing within the sight of people on the shores to the number of several thousand in two contiguous States.

"And therefore, Mr. President, as one of the symptoms of that rejoicing, the American public is regaled on the Fourth of July with a bombastic account of a battle which never occurred, and relating to a squadron which crossed the ocean in placid seas and arrived on the other side without an important event.

"Now, the resolution also asks information concerning the rules and methods of censorship adopted by this remarkable bureau. The newspapers of the country, I am informed, have been frequently at a loss to know what news to publish and what news to suppress. I will cite only one case.

"This Bureau of Public Information only a short time ago made public a piece of news relative to the agreement entered into between coal producers, rail carriers, dockers and ocean carriers, which gave sailing dates and other data regarding prospective coal shipments from the ports of Newport News, Boston, Philadelphia, and New York in flagrant contravention of their own rules regarding the mention of shipping matters.

"The manager of The Central News Limited of London and New York started the story on the transatlantic cables a few nights ago, on a certain night. The censor in the cable office in New York strongly objected and demanded information as to how The Central News Limited got the story. He was shocked and surprised when he heard that it was the emanation of the Creel bureau.

"The authenticity and the authority for this statement can be had from the gentleman in charge of The Central News Bureau in New York City. In other words, after formulating a rule of censorship on the press news concerning the sailings of certain vessels carrying coal, this bureau authorizes such information, to the complete demoralization of the censorship which has been established by the shipping people in this connection."

Stone Asks the Purpose.

When Senator Penrose had finished, Senator Stone of Missouri remarked that he was "puzzled to comprehend the purpose or to understand the object" Senator Penrose expected to accomplish by his resolution.

"Suppose it should be ascertained by the reply to the resolution or by a Congressional investigation, if the Senator should think it necessary to go that far, that there was no battle between our armed convoys and German submarines, what then?" asked Senator Stone. "It might be a subject of some criticism of Mr. Creel, but Mr. Creel has as much right as any other writer for newspapers to bombard and sink submarines. What will be accomplished by it?"

"Well, the Government is paying Mr. Creel," responded Senator Penrose. "He is not an ordinary newspaper writer, in the sense of working for private parties. He is an official of the Government and should be held to account; and if he has perpetrated a colossal fraud in the way of deception on the American people he should be called to account for it, in order that such an offense shall not be perpetrated again."

Senator James conceded that Congress had the right to ascertain how the money it appropriated for the war was being spent.

"No one will dispute that right," he said. "But I do not believe that this early in the war this spirit of copperheadism, this spirit of attack on men who are bearing the multiplicity of duties and burdens imposed on them, ought to be tolerated. It only makes heavy war duties more onerous.

"The American people are back of this war. They are back of the President. Certain attempts to play peanut politics, as has here been attempted by the Senator from Pennsylvania, are, to say the least, reprehensible.

"The Republican Party, whose proudest boast of Lincoln is that he saved the Union, has surely not descended to the low level where it undertakes to become a sniper in the days of greatest peril to the American Government."

Swanson Defends Creel.

Senator Swanson characterized Senator Penrose's criticism of Mr. Creel as "unfair and misleading."

"I saw in the papers a notice, almost in flaming letters, that the Senator from Pennsylvania would introduce this resolution, that he would demand an investigation," said Senator Swanson. "In other words, information was given to the papers that the Senator from Pennsylvania would be on the rampage on a certain date, and I thought it would be wise to nail down the desks of Senators on account of what had been prophesied in these papers he would do in the demand for that investigation.

"As soon as I saw it I went to the Senator from Pennsylvania, and suggested to him that, before he introduced his resolution, it would be well and proper to read these cablegrams in connection with this affair. He could have gotten all the information that I possess, and all the information in connection with this matter. [illegible] had the misinformation that he has sought to deal out to the [illegible] if he had read the cablegrams from Admiral Gleaves, which, I assume [illegible] the Secretary of the Navy would be glad to have him read."

"Now, the Senator from Pennsylvania, in starting this resolution, invoked an editorial from that great paper, THE NEW YORK TIMES. It is a great paper. It is a conservative paper. I have no doubt that that and other papers, when they received The Associated Press dispatch of the fifth of July, announcing the arrival of troops in France, had an idea that publication had been made. The last two units did have an uneventful trip. The first and second units, as Secretary Daniels said, were attacked.

"That paper had a correspondent in Paris. It is the same correspondent The Public Ledger has—a great conservative and reputable paper, published in Philadelphia. I am satisfied that a great journal like The Public Ledger and like THE NEW YORK TIMES would not have as its correspondents in Europe to transmit news and information regarding the transactions of the American Army and Navy, any but reputable, reliable, worthy, conservative men. I ask the Secretary of the Senate to read the cablegram published in THE NEW YORK TIMES of July 7, 1917, reproduced in The Public Ledger in Philadelphia at the same time."

The cable dispatch, telling of two U-boat attacks upon part of the Pershing flotilla, was read into the record.

"Mr. President, that is the report which came from the correspondent of these two reputable journals in Paris," Senator Swanson proceeded. "I do not think there is an American who is not proud of that achievement.

Condemns Ridicule of Navy.

"I desire at the beginning of this war to express my condemnation and my disapproval of the effort to ridicule the achievements in efficiency of the American Navy, and every time anything is accomplished to try to make it the subject of ridicule.

"This resolution seeks to obtain the official cablegram, word for word, translated from the cipher. What would that furnish the enemy? A keen, alert man who was acquainted with ciphers would get this cipher. We do not know who would get it. Spies with a copy of the cipher and a copy of the cablegram translated would be furnished a great deal of information to enable Germany and our enemies to obtain a clue to our code regarding cablegrams sent to the Secretary of the Navy. From time immemorial it has been a rule of the navy, even in giving out interviews, never to give the words used in the cablegram; that would betray the cipher."

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts insisted that no one had ridiculed the American Navy as Senator Swanson had maintained.

"That is not the issue," he said. "Criticism has been aimed at Mr. Creel, and, thank God, Mr. Creel is not the American navy. The Senator from Pennsylvania is being blamed here for his resolution on account of the fact, as it is stated, that it will disclose information to the enemy. These ships were attacked outside of the war zone. Somebody knew why they would be at a certain hour in the ocean outside the war zone. Some German knew that fact.

"It came because there are spies in this country, spies in this city, spies in the department. I do not imagine the Senator from Pennsylvania has the faintest idea of doing anything which would reveal our naval code.

Indiscreet Publication.

"The objection is made that these simple facts, greatly to the credit of the American Navy, were treated by Mr. Creel with a large and bombastic account. Dispatches came to this country showing that part of our troops had arrived. They ought not to have been published. The news bureaus had that information but did not publish it. It got out through the commission of Mr. Creel, and that disturbed the Secretary of War, and justly, when the news got out.

"Congress refused to give Mr. Creel the powers he asked, and rightly refused. Both Houses refused. But he goes on—one of those irresponsible personal agents, without responsibility, without definite office. He employs men, he spends large amounts of the public money, and it is construed as an impertinence if we ask where the public money is spent.

"The Senator from Virginia says it is not desirable to have it known where our ships land in France. I know where they landed, and I did not get the information from the Navy Department or in confidence.

"It is known to the press, and the press, which has shown throughout this country a most amazing and fine spirit of holding back any information that could possibly do harm to the American cause, is meddled with and interfered with by Mr. Creel. The things that have come out, like Mr. Root's party being in Chicago and the landing of the first troops, have come out through misunderstanding of Mr. Creel's office.

"It is never the fault of the press. I am, as I say, amazed by the tact, sense, and patriotism it has displayed in regard to keeping secret information which could be of any effect.

"If you will find out who told the German submarines where our units were to be on a certain day in the open ocean, you will do some great good in protecting our troops. Stopping a Senate resolution will not protect them. It is not through Senate resolutions that these things get out."

REVIEW OF RECORDS MADE IN ASSEMBLY

Citizens Union Summarizes the Services of Kings, Queens, and Richmond Members.

PRAISE YOUNG LEGISLATORS

Report Says City Assemblymen Had Better Record Than Senators and Democrats Improved.

A summary of the personal service of the Assemblymen from Kings, Queens, and Richmond Counties at the last session of the Legislature was made public yesterday by the Committee on Legislation of the Citizens Union. The committee emphasized the fact that in forming its judgments it primarily considered the attitude of members toward measures that directly affected New York City as well as toward those of general application necessarily affecting the administration of the city government. In characterizing the records of members on legislation and votes the committee stated that the summaries referred to particular bills in the classes of legislation which were considered as tests. The summaries are as follows:

Kings County.

AHERN, FRED M., (Rep., Tenth District.)—Supported bills giving courts power to nullify Public Service Commission orders. Failed to vote on several important roll calls. Record decidedly inferior to that of previous [illegible].

BRENNAN, GEORGE R., (Rep., Eleventh District.)—One of Kings County's most capable representatives. With but little exception, the measures he worked for were sound. Good voting record.

BURR, FREDERICK S., (Dem., Ninth District.)—Has not been active since his illness of last year.

CAULFIELD, JAMES H., Jr., (Rep., Fifth District.)—New member. Conscientious and attentive. Attained high percentage of success on bills he fostered. His alertness blocked the progress of at least one bad measure. Creditable voting record.

DONNELLY, MORGAN J., (Dem., Thirteenth District.)—New member. His bills lacked merit and voting record was generally poor, but deserves credit for opposition in committee to bill exempting motor bus lines from regulation.

DUFF, CHARLES H., (Rep., Twenty-second District.)—His record has a few good features, including opposition to two bad "salary grab" bills, but he too frequently failed to vote.

ERICSON, GEORGE H., (Rep., First District.)—A new member who made an unsatisfactory showing.

GREEN, SAMUEL R., (Rep., Sixteenth District.)—Sponsored two distinctly bad bills and on the whole made a disappointing record.

LARNEY, PATRICK H., (Dem., Second District.)—A new member who introduced labor legislation of interest, but made a distinctly poor record in votes, being also too frequently unrecorded.

McARDLE, PETER A., (Dem., Fourth District.)—A member of some ability who fails to develop aggressiveness and makes a record far short of what it should be.

McKEON, JOHN J., (Dem., Eighth District.)—Returned for the eighth time, but has yet to justify his district's favor.

SHAPIRO, NATHAN D., (Rep., Sixth District.)—An active legislator with uneven record. Sponsored scheme for bi-partisan appointment of Magistrates and unsound financial measures; on the other hand worked for several desirable administrative changes. Voting record good.

SHIPLACOFF, ABRAHAM I., (Soc., Twenty-third District.)—Active in connection with social and labor legislation. At times unreasonably obstructed the work of the House. Deserves credit for consistent opposition to unsound Labor law amendments. Voting record has become distinctly good.

TWOMEY, JEREMIAH F., (Dem., Fifteenth District.)—In his two years of service has developed no conspicuous qualifications and made a generally poor showing.

WELLS, FREDERICK A., (Rep., Seventeenth District.)—His duties as Chairman of Military Affairs Committee monopolized his attention, and he made only a fair record generally.

WHITEHORN, JOSEPH A., (Soc., Twenty-first District.)—A new member who displayed discrimination and made an excellent voting record. Among the bills he introduced were some distinctly unsound ones.

YOUKER, WILFRED E., (Rep., Eighteenth District.)—In first year his services became of immediate and substantial value. Was helpful in the constructive work of the House, and made an excellent record in all respects.

Queens County.

HOPKINS, FRANK E., (Rep., Fourth District.)—A new member of apparent ability, which he failed to employ with effectiveness. His first year's work was decidedly disappointing.

O'HARE, WILLIAM H., (Dem., Third District.)—The most aggressive member of the Queens delegation. Actively opposed the Rockaway secession and had several other good things to his credit, but distinctly failed to come up to the mark in his votes.

Richmond County.

SEESSELBERG, HENRY A., (Dem.)—A new member of apparent ability, which was not effectively applied to his work. Supported much unsound legislation and made a poor showing.

Discussing the work of the New York City Assemblymen as a whole the report stated:

"A study of the roll calls in both houses reveals the fact that while several thoroughly objectionable bills which originated in the Assembly were rejected by the New York City Committee in the Senate, the New York City Assemblymen made a higher general average in their votes on bills which passed both houses than did the Senators. A number of younger Assemblymen made enviable records on city bills. It is interesting to note that the average of public service on the part of the Democratic Assemblymen from New York County was an improvement over that of other recent years. The Kings County Democrats, almost to a man, fell below the average. A majority of the Bronx delegation, all Democrats, made good showings."

WASHINGTON SINGER FREED.

LONDON, July 24.—When the charges of conspiring with Princess Edmond de Polignac to avoid payment of income tax by the Princess came up at the Old Bailey, the Attorney General offered no evidence against Washington Singer, brother of the Princess, and he was found not guilty and discharged.

The Attorney General said he was satisfied there was no justification for asking the jury to find any moral taint or criminal intent in Mr. Singer's action. Princess de Polignac was formerly Winnaretta Singer, of New York.

POISONED SALT KILLS STOCK

SACRAMENTO, July 24.—Poisoned salt placed on the stock ranches of Modoc County, North California, has caused the death of a large number of hogs and cattle, in the opinion of Dr. Charles Keane, State Veterinarian, who completed an investigation today.

In making known the result of his work Dr. Keane indicated a belief that enemies of the Government or of stockmen were responsible for the poison plot.

Elevated Ticket Agent Held Up.

John A. Breder, ticket agent at the Junction Avenue station of the Corona elevated line, was held up and robbed of $115 by a masked man at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. The man asked for a ticket, but instead of offering a nickel he shoved a revolver through the netting and forced Breder to step outside of his cage. Then he rifled the cash drawer. Detectives of the Eighth Branch have been unable to find the robber.

Bill to Return Liable Aliens.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—A bill to return aliens of draft age to their home countries is being drawn by Chairman Webb of the House Judiciary Committee, who said today he had talked to Administration officials and hoped to have Administration support for the proposal.

BARON ASSISTS BROTHER.

Robert Oppenheim Testifies He Is Now His Sole Support.

Baron Robert Oppenheim was examined in the Supreme Court yesterday in supplementary proceedings brought against his brother, Baron Eugene F. E. Oppenheim, on a judgment held by Morris K. Parker, head of the bond department of the Equitable Trust Company.

Baron Oppenheim said he didn't remember indorsing a $500 note for part of the fee of State Senator Elon R. Brown, who defended Baron Eugene in criminal proceedings at Rochester, because the sum was too small to bother with. He paid $2,500 to his brother's attorney, he said, and was now his sole support. He asserted that his brother got $10,000 from their sister, the Countess de Quelen, several years ago, and in 1893 received about $300,000 as his share of the estate of their father and mother.

L. I. R. R. COAL BILL GROWING

In the hearing yesterday before the Public Service Commission on the application of the Long Island Railroad Company for permission to increase its rate of fare, James A. McCrea, Vice President, testified that his company had just made a new contract with the Jamison Coal Company for a supply of coal for the next twelve months. The purpose of his testimony was to show the increase in the operating expenses of the road.

The present contract, Mr. McCrea said, calls for a rate of $3 a ton at the mine, about double the price paid a year ago. It is provided that the contract may be canceled by the company if the Government fixes the price at less than $3.

TO TEST PLACE ON BENCH.

Delehanty's Claim to McIntyre's Seat Will Be Tried.

ALBANY, July 24.—An extraordinary term of the Supreme Court was authorized today by Governor Whitman to be convened in New York on Aug. 7, with Justice Rodenbeck of Rochester presiding, to test the title of John F. McIntyre, Democrat, to the office of Judge of the Court of General Sessions of New York.

James A. Delehanty, Republican, Mr. McIntyre's rival at last Fall's election, has questioned the validity of the count by which Mr. McIntyre was declared elected.

There are 70,000 Bate-built Mitchells running. So 70,000 owners, scattered all the world over, are voicing opinions on this unusual car.

But the ideal Mitchell which we aimed at has but lately been completed. It has been a slow evolution under Mr. Bate's direction—the final result of 700 improvements.

It has taken three years, for instance, to double our margins of safety. This year, for the first time, we were able to announce our 100 per cent over-strength.

It has taken years to develop—to build and equip—this modern efficiency plant. This year, for the first time, we occupy our model body plant.

All Cars in One

In the New Mitchell have been combined the best from all cars. And besides, it has many features offered by none of them.

It has 31 extra features which nearly all other cars omit. These include a power tire pump, a dashboard engine primer, reversible headlights, a ball-bearing steering gear. There are handles for entering, a light in the tonneau, a locked compartment for valuables.

The greatest Mitchell advantage is 100 per cent over-strength in every vital part. Over 440 parts are built of toughened steel. All parts which get a major strain are built of Chrome Vanadium. The result is a lifetime car.

Come and confirm these facts. At the same time see the Mitchell Showroom De Luxe, conceded to be one of the most beautiful in America.

COMPLETE DRAFT QUOTAS FOR NEW YORK, CITY AND STATE

IN NEW YORK CITY

The quotas to be drafted into the new National Army from all the districts in New York City and State were announced by Governor Whitman at Albany last night, and are tabulated below. It is to be borne in mind that the quota in each case is the exact number of men who will go into service. Twice that number will be called for examination immediately.

To determine whether you are included in this call and the order in which you will be summoned, double the quota in your district and compare with this figure the order in which your red number was drawn in the draft lottery at Washington. Full instructions for finding your order in the drawing, with the necessary table, were published in THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday. The work of doubling the quotas for New York City districts has been done for you in the small table printed below the large one.

Instructions to the Local Boards Cover Any Mistakes Made In Numbering Cards.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The master sheets determining the order in which every registrant who enrolled under the provisions of the army draft law is liable for military duty are being sent to each of the 4,557 local exemption boards tonight over the seal of the United States Government. They show the order in which each one of the 10,500 numbers was drawn in the national lottery.

The master sheets are accompanied by the rules and regulations prescribed by the President for determining the order in which the persons registered are liable to be called for military service. These rules and regulations may be modified at any time by the President, should it be considered necessary. The master lists proper, which consist of eleven sheets containing the 10,500 numbers in the lottery in the order in which they were drawn, take the form of a schedule prepared by Provost Marshal General Crowder.

How to Mark Master Sheets.

The word of explanation to local boards is included, telling them how to apply the master sheets to the red ink numbers:

"Draw a light pencil line through every number which does not at the present time appear on any registration card in the possession of your local board. The list as thus prepared controls and determines the order of call for every person whose registration card is now within your possession. Each person shall be called in the order in which the 'serial number' on his registration card appears on this list.

"If additional registration cards are received, registration cards which have been wrongly serially numbered and are assigned 'serial numbers' by the Adjutant General of the State, Territory, or District, as the case may be, as provided in the rules and regulations, your list will be changed accordingly so as to include in their exact order such additional 'serial numbers' as fixed in this schedule."

The first three sections of the rules and regulations deal with that part of the draft which has already been accomplished. The rest of the instructions follows:

Section 4.

The method of determining the order to be followed by each local board in calling for military service the persons whose registration cards are in its possession and which have been given a "serial number" in accordance with the rules and regulations prescribed is:

A list of the names of the persons whose registration cards are in its possession and have been so serially numbered shall be made by each local board as required by Section 14 of the rules and regulations prescribed by the President under date of June 30, 1917.

The first name to be entered on the list prepared by each local board shall be the name of the person the "serial number" of whose registration card is first placed in such schedule containing the numbers from 1 to 10,500, both inclusive, reading down from the top of the first column of the first page of the schedule and disregarding the numbers in the schedule which do not appear on any registration card so serially numbered and in the possession of the local board.

Before the name of the first person on each list shall be written the "serial number" of his registration card.

The order number, that is the "number" designating the order in which he will be called for military service to be written on the list made by each local board after the name of such first person on each list, is number one (1.)

The next name to be entered on the list prepared by each local board shall be the name of the person whose "serial number" is next placed in such schedule containing the numbers from 1 to 10,500, reading down the columns from the top thereof and disregarding the numbers in the schedule which do not appear on any registration card so serially numbered and in the possession of the local board.

The order number to be written on the list made by each local board after the name of such person on each list is number two (2.)

The order in which the names of all such persons shall be entered on the list prepared by each local board shall be determined in the exact manner above described for determining the names of the first and second persons on each such list, and this method shall be pursued by each local board until the name of every person whose registration card is in its possession and which has been given a "serial number" in accordance with the rules and regulations shall have been entered upon the list required to be made by each local board by said Section 14.

Section 5.

The list shall be made by each local board on Form 102, provided by the Provost Marshal General.

Section 6.

The list prepared by each local board shall be posted, made accessible to the press, and mailed as required by Section 14 of the rules and regulations prescribed by the President under date June 30, 1917.

Section 7.

In furnishing the quotas required to be called and furnished by each local board in accordance with the directions received from the Governor of the respective State, or Territory, or from the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, as the case may be, acting for and by the direction of the President, each local board shall call the persons whose names are on the list prepared by it as above required in the exact order fixed and stated on such list.

Section 8.

All registration cards received by any local board after July 10, 1917, shall be copied and a list of the names of all persons whose registration cards are so received made by the local board. The original registration card shall be retained by the local board and no "serial number" shall be assigned by such local board to any such registration card, and no "serial numbers" will be placed before the name of any person on the list to be so made. A copy of all such cards and the list of the names of all persons whose registration cards have been so received shall be daily forwarded to the Adjutant General of the State, Territory, or of the District of Columbia, as the case may be, or to the official who, under the regulations, is charged with the duties of the Adjutant General of the State, Territory, or District.

Section 9.

Whenever an examination of a registration card in the possession of any local board discloses that it has not been serially numbered, or that it has been improperly, erroneously, or illegibly serially numbered, or has not in some other respect been serially numbered as required by Section 9 of the rules and regulations of June 30, 1917, it shall be the duty of the local board having jurisdiction thereof to forward such registration card to the Adjutant General of the State, Territory, or of the District of Columbia, as the case may be, without assigning any "serial number" thereto.

Section 10.

Whenever an examination of a copy of a registration card received in the office of the Adjutant General of any State, Territory, or of the District of Columbia, and an examination of the list of the names of all persons whose registration cards are in the possession of the local board which forwarded such copy discloses that the registration card has not been serially numbered, or has been improperly, erroneously, or illegibly serially numbered, or has not in some other respect been serially numbered as required by Section 9 of the rules and regulations of June 30, 1917, it shall be the duty of the Adjutant General, under the direction of the Governor of the State, Territory, or the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, as the case may be, to assign a "serial number" to such registration card and to certify the number assigned thereto to the local board having jurisdiction as hereinafter provided.

Section 11.

All registration cards so improperly, erroneously, or illegibly serially numbered shall be assigned "serial numbers" by the Adjutant General of the State, Territory, or of the District of Columbia, as the case may be, as follows:

(A) When any registration card is found bearing more than one "serial number" there shall be assigned to such card the lowest in order of the numbers which it bears, provided such number is not borne by any other registration card in the possession of the local board having jurisdiction thereof. The remaining number or numbers appearing on any such card shall be disregarded.

(B) When two or more registration cards are found bearing the same "serial number" with fractions added to the number for the purpose of distinguishing the cards, or with letters of the alphabet or other distinguishing marks preceding or following the serial number for the same purpose, one card of any such group of cards within the jurisdiction of any local board shall be drawn by lot and shall be assigned the common "serial number" which they all bear. All the other cards of any such group shall be regarded as having no "serial number" and shall be assigned serial numbers as hereinafter provided in the case of registration cards having no serial numbers.

(C) When the "serial number" on any registration card is found to be illegible and no unused number in the consecutive numbers from 1 upward on the list furnished by the local board having jurisdiction of any such card can be found to correspond with it, such card shall be regarded as having no "serial number" and shall be assigned a "serial number," as hereinafter provided in the case of cards having no serial numbers.

Section 12.

All registration cards received by any local board after July 10, 1917, and copies of which have been forwarded as hereinbefore required to the Adjutant General of the State, Territory, or district, as the case may be, and all other registration cards which have been forwarded to the Adjutant General of the State, Territory, or district, as the case may be, and which have not been assigned a "serial number" by any local board, or by the Adjutant General in accordance with the foregoing provisions, shall each be assigned by the "serial numbers" by the Adjutant General of the State, Territory, or district, as the case may be, under the direction of the Governor or Commissioners, as the case may be.

"Serial numbers" so to be assigned to such registration card shall be determined by lot for cards within the jurisdiction of one local board as expeditiously as possible, at such times and places and in such manner and under conditions insuring absolute fairness, impartiality, and the necessary publicity as may be prescribed by the Governor of the State or Territory or the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, as the case may be.

The "serial numbers" so to be assigned by the respective Adjutants General to all such registration cards within the jurisdiction of one local board shall consist first of all "serial numbers" on the consecutive list of the names of persons whose registration cards are within the jurisdiction of such local board which have not been assigned to any registration card within its jurisdiction. If there are no such "serial numbers" on the consecutive list from 1 upward, or when all such numbers have been assigned to registration cards, the "serial numbers" to be thereafter assigned by the Adjutant General to registration cards within the jurisdiction of such local board shall consist of the "serial numbers" in their consecutive order, beginning with the next "serial number" following the highest "serial number" on the list of persons whose registration cards are within the jurisdiction of such local board, filed with the Adjutant General by such local board.

The Adjutant General of the State, Territory, or of the District of Columbia, as the case may be, shall forthwith certify to the local boards having jurisdiction in the respective registration cards to which "serial numbers" have so been assigned a list showing the "serial numbers" assigned to each such registration card. It shall be the duty of such Adjutant General to send a copy of such list to the proper district board.

It shall be the duty of any local board upon receiving any such list from the Adjutant General of the State, Territory, or District forthwith to assign "serial numbers" to the original registration cards in accordance with such list, unless the original registration card has been assigned a "serial number" by the Adjutant General as hereinbefore provided, and such local board shall thereupon place the names of all persons whose registration cards have as herein provided been assigned "serial numbers" on the list of the names and residences of persons in the order they are liable to be called for military service as required by Section 14 of the Rules and Regulations of June 30, 1917.

DRAFT ERRORS CORRECTED.

Few Mistakes Made in Reporting the Lottery Numbers.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The final draft list shows only a few errors in the unofficial report of the drawing already transmitted throughout the country by the press. Including all the adjustments found necessary in correcting the official list to make up for numbers that were read upside down, or were misread, and also all errors in transcription in the rush of the drawing and the haste to get the figures to the wires, there are fewer than two-score variations between the lists compiled by the Associated Press and the master sheet.

The surprise of the official record is the fact that the missing number indicated by the drawing of a blank capsule as Serial No. 10,004 was found to be 5,795. It was placed last in the master sheet and became Liability 10,500. No. 2,780 drawn as 10,498, was found to be duplicated and was stricken out. The other variations, many of which already have been corrected, are as follows:

VOLUNTEERS FLOCK TO REGULAR SERVICE

Volunteers continued yesterday to flock to the regular army recruiting offices in New York at a rate which indicates that the present week, the first after the result of the draft became known, will not only be the best for volunteers this city has had, but will almost certainly fill New York's quota for the regulars. Altogether 186 men were accepted and sent to Fort Slocum yesterday, and fewer than 600 more are needed to fill the quota for the State.

As on the preceding day, nearly all the new recruits were men who had not been drawn for the first draft army, and who had waited to volunteer until they were sure they would not be so drawn. However, Colonel R. D. Walsh, in charge of army recruiting for this city, specially requested the newspapers to make it clear that men who are on the draft list are still eligible to volunteer and choose their regiments until they are actually summoned before an exemption board.

Colonel Walsh received a telegram yesterday authorizing him to enlist married men whose wives are not absolutely dependent upon them, or can get along with a small amount of help, in the Tenth Engineers, which is the regiment of foresters and lumbermen.

Three batteries of the First New York Field Artillery, composing the second battalion of the regiment, attached to the Sixth Division, Major Gen. O'Ryan's command, left for a training camp yesterday, entraining from their armory, 166th Street and Franklin Avenue, early in the afternoon. They were reviewed by Borough President Mathewson of the Bronx before their departure. They will be about eighteen hours on the road. The battalion numbers 625 men, besides officers. Fully 5,000 people saw them off with hearty cheers. Major William T. Wright is in command.

The Sixty-ninth Infantry was mustered for the Federal service yesterday afternoon by the Federal mustering officers. This ceremony merely amounts to checking up the rolls, verifying equipment, and otherwise seeing that the details are correct when the regiment is drafted into the Federal service on Aug. 5. The clerical work connected with this has been going forward for the last week. The men are not, as has been stated, sworn into the Federal service, because, under the Hay Army act of a year ago, they were all sworn into the Federal service when at that time of on their enlistment since.

It was announced at General O'Ryan's headquarters yesterday that Colonel Cornelius Vanderbilt, commanding the Twenty-second Engineers, has passed his examinations for a Colonelcy in the regular army, and is consequently eligible to be continued in his command after his regiment is mustered in.

Commander Charles A. Adams, U. S. N., in charge of navy recruiting in New York, announced yesterday that the orders issued on Monday debarring any man on the draft list from enlistment in the navy had been rescinded from Washington, and that such men are now eligible for navy enlistment, just as in the army and Marine Corps, until they are actually called by the exemption boards. More than 100 men on the draft list had applied at the navy recruiting office, 24 East Twenty-third Street, and been turned away before this order became known.

WAR RELIEF BODIES BOW TO RED CROSS

Independents Will Insist on Representation on Distribution Committees.

FULL ACCOUNTING ASKED

Organizations Collecting Money Expected to Publish Complete Financial Statements.

When the representatives of the independent war relief organizations meet with the Co-operation Committee of the American Red Cross in the office of Robert S. Lovett, its Chairman, this afternoon, they will announce their willingness to become auxiliaries of that organization on condition that they receive representation on the joint committees in charge of distribution in Europe. This was learned yesterday from a member of the committee appointed to negotiate with the Red Cross. In case this is denied, the independents will ask that some other arrangement be made which will enable them to retain supervision of supplies collected by their organizations for special purposes.

"Some harmonious arrangement will be made, of that I am sure," said John Moffat, Executive Secretary of the Federal Council of Allied War Relief Organizations. "We are, of course, deeply interested in the question of transportation. Personally, I cannot believe that Red Cross supplies will be shipped free, and a charge laid on the shipments of all other relief organizations."

Mr. Lovett, when seen at his office at 105 Broadway, agreed that the problem of transportation of relief supplies would probably be an important feature of the discussion, but declined to make a formal statement.

One of the indirect results of the negotiations for a working arrangement between the Red Cross and the independent organizations has been a demand that these associations render an accounting of their receipts, expenditures, and overhead charges. Yesterday Barry C. Smith, Secretary of the Bureau of Advice and Information of the Charity Organization Society, added emphasis to this demand in a statement in which he alleged that many of the war relief organizations rendered no statements whatever, and that those who contributed had no way of knowing, therefore, what became of their money.

Urges Full Publicity.

"It is believed that the time has come for the newspapers of New York to make a determined effort by adequate publicity, both news and editorial, toward remedying this condition," said Mr. Smith. "The public which is asked to contribute has the right to demand from any charitable organization a complete detailed financial accounting. The failure of some of the best organizations to issue such statements does them no good, and probably injures them through the loss of contributions from people who have learned to demand such evidence of integrity.

"The failure of standard organizations to issue such statements has undoubtedly made it easier for frauds to operate, because no financial standards for war relief work have been been laid down, and it is therefore impossible to judge an organization's standing from its financial methods. It is therefore suggested that the newspapers cooperate by urging all organizations to make public accountings and that they urge the contributing public to refuse contributions to any organization which does not issue, upon request, an audited financial statement.

"The Joint Distribution Committee of Funds for Jewish War Sufferers provides a model of financial administration which other war relief organizations might do well to follow. Complete statements, not only of collection of funds in this country, but also as to the disposition of funds abroad have been issued."

Willing to Make Accounting.

Mr. Moffat admitted yesterday that the organizations represented by him and the Federal Council were among those that had been asked to furnish a financial statement to the Charity Organization Society.

"The purpose, of course, is to learn what part of the funds and supplies collected actually reach the war sufferers," said Mr. Moffat, "and, of course, we are ready to render an accounting, and will furnish the Charity Organization Society with the information it desires.

"Although I have no definite data at hand, I should say the overhead expenses of the war relief organizations in the Federal Council have been from 1 to 11 per cent. of the money collected. The average for most of the societies is 5 per cent. The highest, 11 per cent., is reported by the National Allied Relief Committee, but this is due to the fact that this organization does a great deal of work for other relief bodies, such as distributing circulars, sending out appeals, arranging campaigns, &c.

"The 74 relief organizations represented in the Federal Council have 5,000 branches in the United States, and have collected about $30,000,000 at a cost, I should say, of about $300,000 or $400,000.

"I do not think this is high, and I would like to add, furthermore, that none of the relief organizations with which I am affiliated employs any one who collects money on a percentage basis. All except the volunteer workers, who work without pay, are on a definite salary.

A day of reflection over the incidents of the meeting on last Monday at the Ritz-Carlton softened the asperities developed at that meeting. Representatives of some of the independents said that, after all, the thing was to help those who needed it, and that it did not matter so much through what agency this help was distributed.

Women's Bureau Formed.

A Women's Bureau of the Red Cross, composed of prominent women from all parts of the United States, has been established at Washington, the New York County Chapter of the society announced yesterday. Its purpose is to develope relief work by women throughout the nation, to stimulate the establishment of new workrooms, and to create new units in the rural districts. One of the first and most important undertakings of the bureau will be to assume supervision of the making of surgical dressings. The director of the new bureau will be Miss Florence M. Marshall, director of the Manhattan Trade School.

Additional donations totaling $22,000 were received yesterday by the War Fund Committee of the Red Cross. The largest contribution came from C. H. Ruddock, who sent a check for $5,000. Other contributions were:

Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, $1,000; William L. Porter, $1,323; Clinton H. Crane, $500; J. L. Kennedy, $500; Daley A. Storey, $450; Clara K. Hodges, $700; anonymous, $370.07; Eversley Childs, $100; Thompson & Norris Co., $250; Mrs. Sarah A. Moore, $100; Anita D. Forster, $182.50; Fannie W. Benedict, $150; I. H. Lehman, $250; Frances A. Donohoe, $175; Ida Underhill, $250; Hugh Martin, $200; Mrs. T. E. Hardenbergh, $100; L. M. Starr, $220; Otto L. Mayer, Zurich, Switzerland, through the Farmers Loan and Trust Company, $200; Gertrude G. Webb, $100; H. C. F. Randolph, $100; J. Victor Onativia, Jr., $400; Pan-Hellenic Union, $700; W. J. Baxter, $100; A. L. Gundrau, $425; Dr. Charles H. Chetwood, $100; R. B. Van Cortlandt, $375; Emma L. Wilmerding, $120; Goldman Costume Company, $100; Annie E. Benjamin, $200, and the Estate of Julius Fleichhauer, $118.50.

Makes Special Appeal to Jews.

The Central Committee for the Relief of Jews Suffering Through the War announced yesterday that a special nationwide appeal in behalf of the $10,000,000 Jewish war relief campaign would be made on next Sunday when Tisha B'Ab, one of the great religious days of the Jewish people, will be observed. "Was there ever sorrow like unto their sorrow now," says the appeal. "Their countless voices cry to us Jews in America. No man can escape this duty; rich and poor alike must give."

AUTOMOBILES KILL 4 AND INJURE 16 HERE

TWO HELD FOR HOMICIDE

Three children and an aged man were run down and killed by automobiles, and sixteen other persons were injured in automobile wrecks and collisions and by being struck by speeding cars in New York City yesterday. Two arrests were made in the cases of the deaths of the children, and technical charges of homicide were made against the chauffeurs.

David Goldberg, 11 years old, of 128 Allen Street, accepted an invitation yesterday to accompany a crowd of children from a home on the east side to Van Cortlandt Park for an outing. The children were playing games near Mosholu Parkway, and David ran into the roadway to avoid being captured by his playmates when an automobile driven by Mrs. Ethlyn Collins came around a bend in the road. Mrs. Collins was not going at excessive speed, witnesses said, and she put on her brakes and brought the car almost to a stop, when David made a sudden leap and ran directly into the path of the car. He was killed instantly. Mrs. Collins was not held by the police.

Louis Bernstein, 5 years old, of 747 St. Ann's Avenue, the Bronx, was also instantly killed by a motor truck at St. Ann's Avenue and East 156th Street, the Bronx, last night in almost the same manner as the Goldberg boy was killed in the park. Louis was playing with companions and ran into the street to get a ball without noticing that a truck was approaching. Frederick Nemeier of 308 East 154th Street, the Bronx, who was driving the truck, also put on his brakes and sought to swerve the car to avoid the boy, who was running toward the course to be taken by the car. Louis did not see the truck and ran into the slowly moving rear wheel. A part of the wheel caught him and flung him to the pavement, killing him instantly. A technical charge of homicide was entered against the chauffeur, but he was paroled in the custody of his employer.

Helen Birsowsky, 2 years old, of 224 East Ninety-ninth Street, was also killed while she was playing in front of her home yesterday. The driver of the motor truck, Lawrence Lander, of 443 Tenth Street, Brooklyn, was not held.

Herman Herwitz, 67 years old, of 576 Fox Street, the Bronx, was crossing Union Avenue near East 151st Street, the Bronx, last night and failed to see an automobile coming down Union Avenue. He ran into the car and was thrown to the roadway and killed instantly. The driver of the car did not stop and Maurice Becker of 819 East 150th Street was arrested later on a charge of homicide. He admitted that he had passed the corner where Herwitz was killed, but denied that he had struck any person.

CRUSHED IN NEW AIRPLANE.

Richard G. Andrews, twenty-eight years old, of Jamaica Avenue, Flushing, and Jean Petre, a professional aviation instructor, were flying above the L. W. F. aviation field at Mineola, adjoining the United States Army field, yesterday afternoon in a Curtiss airplane which Andrews had recently purchased, having engaged Petre to teach him to fly it.

When about 500 feet in the air the machine side-slipped and plunged to the ground. Petre was thrown clear and escaped with only minor bruises, but Andrews was buried in the wreckage, and it was half an hour before he could be extricated. It was then found that he had a dislocated right thigh and a fracture of the right leg below the knee. He was taken to Nassau County Hospital. The machine, costing $5,000, was a total wreck.

3 WOMEN DEAD FROM GAS.

Three women died yesterday from gas poisoning.

Grace Odlin, 22 years old, who came to this city from Lewiston, Me., nine months ago, was found dead in an apartment at 71 West 109th Street. Ludwig Nathan, who lives in the house, discovered the body in a gas-filled room. Miss Odlin left a sealed letter for her mother in Lewiston.

Caroline Classell, a stenographer, who lived with her parents at 7,833 Boscobel Avenue, the Bronx, was found dead in bed by her father. Gas was escaping from an open jet. She was 27 years old.

Emma Mulmeyers, 29 years old, a school teacher, was asphyxiated in her home, 964 Simpson Street, the Bronx. Miss Mulmeyers has a brother in the American army in France, from whom she received a letter a few days ago.

NEW PRISON INQUIRY HEAD.

Gov. Edge Names Dwight W. Morrow for Commission Chairman.

TRENTON, N. J., July 24.—Governor Edge announced today that Dwight W. Morrow of Englewood, a member of J. P. Morgan & Co., would succeed William B. Dickson of Montclair as Chairman of the State Prison Inquiry Commission. The Governor has also asked former Assemblyman Ogden H. Hammond of Bernardsville to fill a vacancy in the commission. Governor Edge said the progress of the commission was highly satisfactory to him.

"The task of the commission is at least half finished," the Governor said, "and it is now shaping a report which will be submitted to the next Legislature, suggesting legislation which ought to bring about practical reform. This will be the second legislative report, and I have been informed it will be far more comprehensive in suggesting reforms than the first report.

"The commission is rapidly completing its plan for the psychopathic examination of prisoners, and when this is put into operation it ought to insure proper discrimination in the treatment of criminals and those who are merely defective mentally."

'TOSCA' SUNG AT COLUMBIA.

Columbia University's gymnasium was filled with a gala throng last night for Puccini's "Tosca," the third production in New York's most artistic Summer opera series, which, indeed, gives every indication of leading to further ambitious plans for next year. With all limitations of stage, the borrowed Metropolitan scenes were set in small compass in a way to give real illusion and charm.

The Roman procession in the first act, literally contrived along a narrow strip of projecting wall, was a triumph of adroit stage management. Luca Botta of the local opera sang well in the tenor rôle, and Luisa Villani and Auguste Bouillez of the Boston troupe were wholly acceptable in famous parts associated with the greatest stars of Broadway, from which locality came most of the rest of the cast, as well as orchestra and chorus.

This was the halfway point in the Summer operas. Tomorrow "Faust" will be repeated, and next Monday "Tosca" again, while both Saturday and Tuesday next are devoted to the double bill, "Cavalleria" and "Pagliacci," with Botta and Villani, and, as Nedda in "Pagliacci," the newest of the Italian stars, Claudia Muzio.

WAR BENEFIT IN MELBOURNE

Mme. Melba and Cyril Maude Aid Soldiers' Fund $11,000.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MELBOURNE, Australia, July 24.—At a matinée, held here today for the distressed soldiers' fund, Mme. Melba and Cyril Maude, the actor, raised $11,000 for the war charity. The Governor General, together with the State Governor and the Prime Minister, attended. Mme. Melba sang several songs, in addition to Desdemona's air in the chamber scene from Verdi's "Otello." The prima donna also sang while Mr. Maude recited the verses to Elgar's "A Voice in the Desert."

Mr. Maude in turn played Sir Peter with Lady Susan FitzClarence as Lady Teazle, in a scene from "The School for Scandal." One incident of the matinée was an auction in which Melba as the central figure on the stage was showered with money by her countrymen.

Hopkins Takes New Shubert Theatre

Arthur Hopkins yesterday leased from the Shuberts their new theatre, now approaching completion in West Forty-fifth Street, adjoining the Booth. The house will be finished in September, and will open with one of Mr. Hopkins's productions. It will have a seating capacity of 1,000 and stage space which will permit of any type of play.

MUSIC NOTES.

Sascha Heifetz, a sixteen-year-old Russian violinist, is now on his way to this country, and will be welcomed in New York by at least two firms of musical managers claiming contracts for his American tour. Both the Wolfsohn Bureau and Haensel & Jones have announced the new star.

The Metropolitan Musical Bureau has telegraphed to Secretary of War Baker an offer of Pasquale Amato, the opera baritone, to give his services for recitals in the great army cantonments "as a return for the generous kindness he has received from the American public."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Mrs. Fiske is to appear under joint direction of Klaw & Erlanger and George C. Tyler in a new comedy, "The Bells," by Catherine Chisholm Cushing, with scenes laid in the South. The play comes to New York in November.

"The Thirteenth Chair" passed its 300th performance at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre last night. Its neighbor, "The Man Who Came Back," at the Playhouse, has a 400th hearing this coming Friday.

Helen Montague of the chorus of "The Passing Show of 1917," at the Winter Garden, will attempt to swim across the Hudson River on Friday afternoon. She holds already swimming records on the Solent and the Clyde.

The Long Beach branch of the Red Cross starts a $100,000 fund for a soldiers and sailors' hospital next Sunday at the Hotel Nassau, for which L. J. Selznick donates a photoplay, "The Lesson," with Constance Talmadge.

A. H. Woods has added to his activities for 1917-18 the production of a new musical play by Earl Carroll, entitled "Welcome Stranger."

Mooney Jury Still Out.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—The jury trying Mrs. Rena Mooney for murder growing out of a bomb explosion here last July filed into the courtroom this afternoon and asked Superior Judge Seawell to define second degree murder. The court also reread his instructions at the request of the jury, which announced it had reached no verdict.

A letter written by E. B. Morton to Thomas J. Mooney, under sentence of death for one of the bomb murders, in which Morton said "Rena is always on the job," was read to the jury. It was in evidence. The State contends this letter shows Mrs. Mooney's connection with the alleged bomb plot conspirators.

Mrs. Bella Hansmerberg, sister of the defendant, collapsed as the jury came into the courtroom for the first time since it began deliberations yesterday afternoon.

HAIL SIMS'S IRISH SEAMEN.

BASE OF AMERICAN FLOTILLAS IN BRITISH WATERS, June 26, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—"And sure they're after coming back home," remarked a good-natured Irish mother today as she beamed on a procession of American bluejackets passing through the main street of this seacoast town. She expressed the feeling of the townspeople, who all take pride in the "return of the boys," and, by way of proving it, they point to the high percentage of men of Irish ancestry and birth in the American Navy.

It would be hard to imagine a foreign port where American sailors could be made more genuinely welcome. There has been nothing in the way of a formal welcome, but that is not the fault of the hospitable people. It has been discouraged because this grim business of war gives men little time for celebrations ashore. Therefore the American jack tars set foot ashore in the same quiet, confident, businesslike manner as that of their destroyers in entering the port.

Almost instantly they captivated the hearts of the townspeople, many of whom doff their hats to them when passing along the narrow, winding streets. Vice Admiral Sims is particularly revered.

One of the favorite ways of being hospitable to the Americans is to invite them to tea. There is hardly one of the villagers who has not a close relative living in the Western Republic. Indeed, there are few homes unadorned by some memento of America.

BONDS

LAST week's market in bonds, outside of the irregularity in corporation issues, showed marked improvement, with strength in the foreign list and some notable gains in first mortgage rails. The optimism is generally expressed that a turn has been made, and it is confidently expected that any new financing by the Government can well be delayed until later than September.

The remarkable success of the offering of $15,000,000 General Electric Company three-year 6 per cent. gold notes had a most stimulating effect on outside securities, particularly in short-time obligations. The books were opened and closed again within an hour, with the loan approximately four times oversubscribed. From a price of 99⅝, a 6.10 per cent. yield, the notes rose on the Curb almost immediately to a ¾ premium, a phenomenon stimulating to this market since the issue of the telephone collaterals in the Fall. A corporation showing thirty-three times interest charges is entitled to a reception of this character, but the instantaneous success exceeded the guess of the underwriters.

STOCKS

THERE are occasional periods in financial history when it seems almost as though the Stock Exchange might as well be closed for several weeks without in any way affecting the business of the nation, or bringing any marked changes in prices upon reopening. Last week's stock market was extremely unimportant, although there was a moderate degree of activity at all times. With the controlling factors almost the same throughout the week as they were for the fortnight previous, prices backed and filled without throwing any light whatsoever upon the interpretation the ticker was putting upon the changed situation.

The three leading elements in the present confused state of business in the order of their importance as they bear upon security prices are: The attempt which Washington is making to reach a satisfactory basis of price fixing; the blundering progress of the new war revenue measure, with its possibilities for revolutionizing business and individual prosperity, and the actual war situation abroad, particularly as it has been developing in Russia.

The Annalist because of the accuracy of quotations of listed and unlisted securities, and the comprehensiveness of the general articles, is to be considered as a standard.

NOW BUILD SHIPS.

The President has ended in the best way the quarrel that has delayed the building of ships for war service by accepting the resignation of General GOETHALS, General Manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, and requesting that of WILLIAM DENMAN, Chairman of the Shipping Board. Both men are capable of great service to the country, both have rendered service. They have been treated with the greatest consideration by the President and both will treasure his letters of dismissal as examples of the highest standard in the art of softening the performance of disagreeable duty by language of high appreciation and compliment.

There was no other way; doubtless it is a way that should have been adopted weeks ago. Nothing but the very great patience and consideration of the President for General GOETHALS and Mr. DENMAN had left them free to continue their bickering. If one went, the other had to go, since the President could not desire to take sides in the controversy. Moreover, while the charge of incompatibility rests more heavily upon General GOETHALS, while the country is probably convinced that the responsibility for arresting the execution of the shipbuilding program is chiefly his, to let him resign without also accepting the resignation of Mr. DENMAN would not have ended the strife; it would have been renewed with added vigor, for General GOETHALS has many friends and admirers in Congress and outside of Congress who would not willingly or quietly have accepted a decision that appeared to put the blame altogether upon him.

It has been a costly delay, terribly costly for ourselves, our soldiers, our allies. The emergency was immediate and great, yet through General GOETHALS's interference with the program already decided upon, three precious months of shipbuilding have been practically thrown away. But for this delay a large fleet of commerce carriers would have been already in the water, thousands of tons of ships would have been ready for service by Oct. 1, every day three ships would have been launched after Aug. 1. As Mr. JOHN BATES CLARK puts the matter in his letter to THE TIMES published yesterday:

> Not till the armies of freedom have been hampered by lack of supplies and reinforcements, and probably not till some battles which should have been victorious for them have been drawn engagements if not defeats, will any of the ships now planned appear in European waters.

But regrets are altogether vain. The way is now clear and President WILSON, in his letter to Mr. DENMAN, declares that we must begin afresh "not upon the program, for that is in "large part in process of execution, "but upon the further execution of "it." The utmost speed of construction is imperative, to the end that we may make up, so far as possible, for the time lost. The work will now be in the hands of Rear Admiral CAPPS, Chief Constructor of the Navy, who succeeds General GOETHALS, and of EDWARD N. HURLEY, formerly Chairman of the Trade Commission, who takes Mr. DENMAN'S place. For the place held by Mr. WHITE on the Shipping Board Mr. BAINBRIDGE COLBY, a member of the New York Bar, is named. The appointment of Rear Admiral CAPPS is worthy of all commendation. Like General GOETHALS, he has a record of efficiency and achievement, and, what is of very great importance, he has the added qualification of knowing how to build ships. Mr. HURLEY is a man of business experience, he has a sound understanding of business problems, he did good service as Chairman of the Trade Commission, resigning when he found it impossible to persuade the Commission to be guided by good business principles. There is no apparent reason why these new men should quarrel. There is no time for quarreling. The country expects them, the President commands them, to carry forward with all speed the program of ship construction.

ANTI-PATRIOTIC POSTMASTERS.

Senator MCCUMBER is perturbed. "No more seditious and unpatriotic people exist in this country," he tells the Senate, "than some now holding down jobs as Postmasters." He quotes some outrageous language of North Dakota Postmasters, and wants the President to know that "there are "no more seditious people in the coun- "try than some of his appointees as "Postmasters."

If Postmasters of whatever politics are talking or writing sedition, if they are publicly opposing the war and conscription, they should be removed. The freedom of speech, however ill-employed, that is tolerated in a private citizen, so long as it does not urge resistance to the law, does not extend to anti-patriotic utterances by servants of the United States.

The Non-Partisan League is the ruling political power in North Dakota. Its chief has talked in the manner justly reprobated by Mr. MCCUMBER. Possibly some Democratic Postmasters of North Dakota have followed more striking distant examples.

It is possible to pardon a few Postmasters whose adhesion to the Democratic Party or succession to Republicans is crime enough in a good Republican eye like Mr. MCCUMBER'S. What excuse is there for the men, Democrats and Republicans, in both branches of Congress, who lose no opportunity, by word and vote, to manifest their disaffection and want of patriotism, their continuous opposition to the war? Why blame a few obscure Postmasters when they but repeat the lessons of disloyalty given in the Capitol?

A FAIRY TALE OF CHICAGO.

Dr. MICHAELIS has found a sympathetic and benevolent interpreter in Senator LEWIS of Illinois. Stimulated by telegrams from certain German citizens of Chicago, "whose loyalty in the present trying hour" he himself attests, Mr. LEWIS, by some mystical, intuitive, or dream process, discovers in the Chancellor's speech an intimation that Germany would accept peace on the terms of the Allies.

"The Germans wish to conclude "peace," the Chancellor said, "as "combatants who have successfully "accomplished their purpose and "proved themselves invincible." That is, they are bent on a victorious peace, whose terms are to be reached by barter, "by understanding," and "give and take." The mediaeval monk who "moralized" OVID'S "Metamorphoses" wasn't as ingenious as Senator LEWIS, who reads into these hard and defiant terms the willingness of Germany to give up the territory she occupies in Northern France and return Alsace-Lorraine to France, to restore Belgium, to reconstitute Rumania, Serbia, and Bulgaria, which now holds part of Rumania and three-fourths of Serbia, on the status quo ante basis, and so on. That Serbia has any other claim than to recover her ruins doesn't seem to occur to Mr. LEWIS, whose notion of the "restoration" of Belgium is so original as of itself to stamp its author as a man of creative imagination.

All the Powers at war are to contribute to a fund to restore Belgium. To amerce the innocent to pay scot for the guilty is a peace proposal worthy of an inventive mind, almost worthy of a German mind.

"Does the Senator not think," asked Senator NELSON, "it will be time "enough to talk of peace after Ger- "many has evacuated Belgium and "Northern France?" A Senator who appears as a sort of Peace Commissioner in behalf of certain German citizens, however loyal, and turns a war speech into a fairy tale of peace, must have a singular conception of the prosecution of the war. "We are "at war," Senator KING said, "and "the thing to talk about is not peace "but war." "A public discussion of peace is out of place," said Senator PHELAN. Mr. LEWIS was alone in his discovery. If his subtle object was to reduce peace talk to an absurdity, "in the present trying hours," he succeeded.

THE WORLD SHIPPING TRUST.

For the moment the shipping of the Central Allies does not count. Only the shipping of the Entente Allies and the neutrals can keep the sea. Practically all this shipping is embraced in the arrangement under negotiation between England and the United States to reduce the extortionate freight rates prevailing by controlling the shipping. The neutrals are not formally parties to the plan, but the world needs their ships, and it is not difficult to make it for the advantage of the owners to see that the world's needs should prevail over the owners' convenience. It is not necessary to commandeer their ships. They cannot stir without our fuel and cargoes, and they can obtain them only on the terms our Government can fix. There are now 800,000 tons of Dutch shipping anchored in this port, at the end of a long wait for British letters of assurance, it is thought. Now there is the new obstacle of meeting the terms of our export regulations. A score more such ships are expected here, and there are many others in other ports.

In the present state of the freight market this volume of idle shipping can be held idle only for reasons contrary to the world's welfare. The owners would gladly carry cargoes if they were innocent of offense to the cause of the Allies against German piracy. Now conditions are shaping so that these owners will see their advantage in risking the submarine blockade upon lawful commerce. They will not be asked to carry contraband, but they will find it difficult to carry anything or to charge rates not approved by the world "combine."

It is a long time and much has happened since England was affrighted by the organization of the Morgan combination, against which England arrayed the force of a rival organization with Government assistance. It is probable that none of the parties would approve the new arrangement even now if the world's shipping were operated on an economic basis. But there is nothing economic in the increase of transpacific rates sevenfold. Profits have corresponded to similar increases in the Atlantic trade. The White Star Company has divided a 400 per cent. bonus, and is paying dividends at the rate of 100 per cent. on the old capitalization. The Leyland Line has paid 88 per cent. after thirteen years without payment. The Cunard Line pays 20 per cent., after enlarging its capital and tripling its depreciation allowance. Five leading British companies show 133 per cent. increase in profits, and it is thought that their war taxes are $70,000,000. The accounts are not as clear as they might be, and these calculations are subject to reserve.

Hitherto there has seemed no way to correct the rates which had these results. If the rates were controlled by the Allies, the business would simply go to the neutral ships. No one nation could afford to reduce the rate on its own shipping alone. Taxes in general already were made so high that to raise them on shipping specifically savored of discrimination. England has dealt with its own ships with a high hand, and not with unmixed success. It has been extravagant in the use of tax money, and in lack of economy in use of the shipping which the tax money bought away from commercial uses. The Liverpool Steamship Owners' Association by formal resolution denounced "constant and serious wastage" after two and a half years of State management, and declared that the only remedy was "commercial pressure, individual "profit and loss acting directly on all "those concerned, whether as traders, "shipowners, or transport workers." The United Kingdom Chamber of Commerce passed similar resolutions, denying that there was any fair argument from control of land transport, and asserting that there was no substitute for "the free play of individual enterprise." Now we have England and the United States leading the world in the contrary direction.

In war even the laws of economics are silent. The thing is done which must be done, and there is only room for such alleviations as the case allows. If there is a deficiency of anything whatever, there is no hocus-pocus by which the deficiency can be turned into abundance. More shipping is the only remedy in economics. Efficient administration of existing shipping is the second best remedy, and best by control of the thing, rather than of its price, except secondarily, as a result, not as an object. The price problem is elusive to the last degree. The strong hand can control the thing surely, although with inconveniences. And there is reason to hope that a world "combine" can do better than a single nation.

The case would be hopeless if the neutrals were allowed to stand aside, to carry competitively, and obnoxiously in a war sense. There is no excuse for our delay in discovering that we are at war, or for acting as though it would be a short war, because already it has outlasted expectation. We should throw our weight into the balance with whatever speed we may, and we should trust and support those into whose hands we have put power.

DELAYING FOOD CONTROL.

In his letter to Representative LEVER, the sponsor of the Food Control bill passed by the House in June and since practically rewritten in the Senate, President WILSON says that if the Senate's rider, known as Section 23, is permitted to stand in conference, it will render his task of conducting the war practically impossible. No stronger argument than this for the elimination of the section should be required by the conferees. All war legislation should be designed to make the President's great task easier, not harder. The institution of a joint Congressional War Board, with power to interfere in every operation of the Executive, would result in an intolerable situation. The precedent of the Congressional Joint Committee of the civil war should serve to convince any member of Congress willing to look into that page of our history that legislative interference with the Executive in a period of war causes needless confusion. Responsibility for the conduct of the war must be concentrated on the President. He, not Congress, must appoint the military and naval commanders, and they are responsible to him. If they fail, he must displace them. There are, as the President says, abundant existing means of investigation and of the effective enforcement of his responsibility.

He speaks forcibly, indeed, when he says that he could only interpret the adoption of Section 23 as arising from a lack of confidence in himself. Of course the Senate had no idea of expressing a lack of confidence in the President. It is doubtful if even Mr. REED of Missouri would care to go as far as that. So there is reason to hope that the objectionable rider will be removed from the Food bill in conference. We suspect that it has already served its chief purpose in delaying the final action on the bill another week.

Delay has been the real object of most of the amendments to the original measure made in the Senate. The juggling with the liquor amendment was open to that suspicion. The attacks on Mr. HOOVER had no other purpose. The compromise amendment providing for a control board of three, instead of a single head, makes for delay. It must have been perfectly well known that the House of Representatives would resent this change. As for the War Board, it is an afterthought, a sort of drag chain to keep the bill from moving. Even if such legislation were actually needed, it would be wholly out of place as an amendment to the Food bill. It would surely be important enough to stand on its own feet. But the President obviously objects to the measure in any form, and the country will approve the objection of the President. The bill still lags, however. Mr. MANN of Illinois managed to prevent sending it to conference for another day. As the House conferees have been instructed to reject all the Senate amendments, the conference is likely to be long. The prospect for food conservation is dubious, and the situation grows more perilous every day. Senator OLLIE JAMES of Kentucky denounced "copperheadism," "sniping," and "peanut politics" in the Senate. He and the other clear-sighted citizens of the United States have noted all three in the recent misadventures of the Food bill.

NORWAY'S HUMILIATION.

How will the Commissioners sent from Norway to plead for exports of American foodstuffs explain their country's meek acceptance of repeated humiliation by Germany and its failure to resent a long series of acts which were virtually those of a hostile nation? What will they say about the sinking of 537 Norwegian ships by German submarines, the murder of scores of sailors in lifeboats, the employment of spies at their ports to give information afterward used for the destruction of merchant vessels? If they point to an occasional message of regret from Berlin, they will have to admit that each message of this kind was followed by the sinking of more ships. To the reports which have been published in the last two years The Associated Press has now added a record of recent events, with a statement showing the attitude of the Norwegian people.

Cargoes of meat on their way to a Norwegian port from Denmark were taken a few weeks ago by submarines, with a shipload of hay sent to relieve fodder famine in the northern part of the country. Submarines sank small boats near the coast carrying men who, it was well known, were catching fish for the Germans. Norwegians hired by Germany to send reports which were used for the pursuit and sinking of Norwegian vessels and the murder of sailors have been punished by imprisonment for only a few months. Indignant protests in Norway's Congress have drawn from the Government no explanation of its course. Crops are deficient and there is a scarcity of food. Demands from the people that no more food shall be sent to Germany have had no effect. Export shipments continue to be made. For what is called a neutrality guard $100,000,000 has been expended, but not a dollar of this sum has been used in defense of Norway's rights.

The Government's curious policy is denounced by the people and the press. Prominent newspapers are saying that Norway is in danger of losing her self-respect, and that such a loss would be worse than war. The royal family is hostile to Germany. This is the attitude of a great majority of the people. But the Cabinet Ministers and a few men enriched by war trade have thus far exercised control. Why do the people and the King and Queen submit? Are they to be powerless until Norway's entire merchant marine is destroyed? It may be that the Commissioners will explain.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

More Army Surgeons Are Needed.

Senator GORE has performed an important public service by the introduction—and will perform one vastly more important if he can bring about the enactment into law—of an amendment to the National Defense act providing for a larger number of officers of high military rank in the Medical Corps of the regular army. The amendment would give to each 1,000 men in the National Guard regiments and in the national army seven officers of the Medical Reserve Corps, and to these officers the same grades and titles as exist in the regular army.

In support of the changes proposed, Senator GORE presented and had printed in the Congressional Record articles written by Dr. V. C. VAUGHAN, Chairman of the General Medical Board of the Council of National Defense. They recall the dreadful experiences as regards health of our troops in the war with Spain, emphasizing particularly the need of endowing the members of the Medical Corps with enough authority over the location and protection of camps to overcome the antagonism felt by too many line officers, then and now, to what they consider needless precautions by the military sanitarians. Dr. VAUGHAN quotes, too, the amazing testimony of General BROOKS as given in the Dodge report—testimony showing that the General had learned nothing from the fact that at Chickamauga 10,000 of his men—25 per cent. of his force—had been stricken by typhoid and 700 of them had died of it, and that he still resented the attempts of his medical officers to reform the conditions to which this epidemic was due.

Typhoid has now been practically eliminated from armies, but there are many other almost equally dangerous infections that are not yet conquered in the same way, and our men are sure to suffer from them if not adequately provided with competent sanitarians and if the latter do not have the power they should have in their own domain, as against officers who have been trained to ignore danger and who incline to see mere fussiness in the giving of careful attention to purity of drinking water, the maintenance of rigid cleanliness in camp, the protection of the men from mosquitos, and all like matters. Yet, says Dr. VAUGHAN, "this war begins with the medical officer possessed of no more authority than he had in 1898," and the number of trained medical officers in our army is not as great now as then!

His Scorn Had a Foundation.

Being a German, the General in command of the Kaiser's aerial forces writes in the characteristic German way about what the United States can do toward supplying aviators and airplanes for use on the western front. His remarks are irritating enough, of course, as he not only announces that it will be long before we can give the other Allies either many men or many machines, but he also assures his countrymen that the American aviators have not been and will not be "particularly dangerous opponents of the Germans."

As to the latter statement, its accuracy would imply that the frequent giving of decorations and of citations in army orders to our fliers by the French military authorities are for some other reason than courage and efficiency, and credulity of that sort is possible only in Germany. There is an element of truth, however, in what the General says about us. For it is a fact that we are still hardly beyond the point of beginning to create a corps of military aviators in numbers and equipment comparable with our resources, and we have as yet to our credit in this most important branch of military preparation much more of intention than of performance.

Of course the German is wrong in denying to us the power to make ourselves, through numbers, felt as dangerous opponents in the air, and he is absurdly wrong—not to say a deliberate falsifier and misrepresenter—in declaring that even when our aviators get into the field there will not be any or much need to fear them. But he would have been right had he charged us explicitly, instead of only by implication, with a reprehensible dilatoriness in attaining a form of efficiency in which, had we shown a reasonable amount of foresight, we could easily have led the world.

That men can fly at all, otherwise than in clumsy balloons, is due entirely to American ingenuity and the accomplishment by the WRIGHTS of the task in which innumerable other inventors through all the ages had failed—a task the performance of which had been pronounced, and as it was thought proved, by not a few reputable scientists to be impossible of achievement. Yet today the best airplanes and the best engines for them are made in Europe, not in the United States, and all we have really done, up to date, to remedy this humiliating state of affairs is to appropriate a lot of money with which to get to work on it.

Conscript Versus Volunteer.

It is not in Germany alone that Americans are misunderstood and mistakes about their psychology made. Some of our own army officers, when there was a sudden rush of volunteers for one or another of the various forms of military service as soon as the selective draft numbers were out, were ready with an explanation of the phenomenon. They assumed that these were men who were utilizing their last chance to exercise personal preference as to what organization they should join, and that they did it only because they had been drawn and would have to go somewhere. Inquiries soon revealed, however, that a great majority of these volunteers were not men who had been drafted in the great lottery, but those whose numbers were so far down the list that their opportunity for active service would be long delayed and might not come at all.

In other words, what the latest volunteers were escaping was not an arbitrary assignment, but something between a probability and a certainty of not getting into the war at all. Nothing could be more encouraging than that—nothing could be better proof that the vile poison of pacifism has not spread as far or as deep as some too quick despairers among us have believed.

And the men who are now volunteering were fully justified in not volunteering before. They had more than a right, if they thought best, to wait till their Government put its large hand on their shoulders and said "Come!" In certain quarters, and in too many, a misguided effort is making to draw an invidious distinction between the volunteer and the so-called conscript. In some of the nearby towns the local authorities are encouraging the local newspapers to publish as a "Roll of Honor" the names of the young men who did not wait for the draft, but entered the army or navy out of free will. The description is correct enough in itself—the roll is indeed an honorable one. That nobody will deny. Its implication, however, that the drafted men are somehow less deserving of praise is utterly wrong, and too energetic protest against that implication could not be offered. The advantage, if there were one, would be on the side of the "conscript," for every practical argument is against the volunteer system as compared with a fairly conducted selective draft.

Pickets Repudiated.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent, Benjamin Doblin, in his letter published in THE TIMES of July 23, in which he condemns the actions of the Washington pickets, writes: "I hope that they (the pickets) will be promptly and generally repudiated by all sane women who are sincere proponents of universal suffrage." The repudiation that Mr. Doblin demands has been made many times by leaders and members of the great organizations of conservative suffragists throughout the country, so many times in fact that it is a bit discouraging to find an advocate of the woman suffrage cause like Mr. Doblin suggesting condemnation as a new procedure. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, representing the 2,000,000 members of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, has repudiated the tactics of the pickets and called upon them to stop their futile and foolish demonstrations; leaders of the New York State Woman Suffrage Party sent a delegation to the pickets urging them to abandon their plans; while members of my own organization, the New York City Woman Suffrage Party, have expressed their disapproval of the pickets in most emphatic terms. As Chairman of the city party I would like to repeat my former statements that while I believe the women pickets are not seeking notoriety for themselves but are carrying out their misguided idea of harrying the political party in power in order to force the passage of the woman suffrage amendment, I do not indorse such a policy, denounce their methods as undignified and unpatriotic, and as more harmful than helpful to the woman suffrage cause. The woman's party has no affiliations with the National Suffrage Association, and the methods of the two are quite distinct and dissimilar.

THE REICHSTAG PEACE VOTE

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The recent vote in the Reichstag for peace without indemnities or annexations ought to elicit some encouraging response from the democratic nations of the Entente. To be sure, most professing patriots believe that the overthrow of the German military autocracy can be achieved only by a smashing military victory. Then the democratic forces in Germany will be liberated, the establishment of the public right will be assured, and the world will be made safe for democracy.

But such forces cannot come to maturity overnight. They must be fostered by like forces the world over. The vote in the Reichstag is a faltering but clear expression of the Germany which we all profess a desire to strengthen. Shall we make that voice feeble and ridiculous at home by treating its words as negligible nonsense or as the mask of military bravado? The Allies have once made that mistake. The extravagant conditions with which they answered the German inquiries for peace last Winter have given the military party unquestioned sway for six months. Now once again the people are trying to make themselves heard. We should show that they have been heard in America. Why should our country not reply in some fairly conciliatory fashion? We can at least explain in how far we can regard their terms as a basis for the further exchange of democratic opinion, and in what respects—for example, the indemnification of Belgium—we are obliged to differ from them. Sooner or later the way to the sort of a peace which we profess to desire must be entered upon in some such fashion. Why should we not begin now?

According to Michaelis.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Germany was forced into war by Russia and England, Chancellor Michaelis states, but modesty forbade him saying that Luxemburg and Belgium had also coerced her. He says that sinking neutral shipping on sight is in accord with the usages of civilized warfare, although England's blockade violates such usages.

And the people of Central Europe were asked to believe that unrestricted U-boat warfare would in short order starve England into subjection—that the unrighteous means warrants the deed, for success meant victory. Today these peoples are told that the U-boat was used "to impair England's economic life"—a rather different terminology indeed, and palpable evidence that Germany's conduct of warfare is run on the same old lines and with the same old objective. She wants no peace at this time. Does not Michaelis say that he is not willing to have the conduct of affairs taken out of his hands? His hands or his master's? So those who run may read that the Junkers, the Kaiser, and the Prince are still triumphant, and that there can be no peace so long as they dominate 64,000,000 people.

The "honorable peace" Germany aspires to is the peace of a conqueror resting on the foundation of the enslavement of mankind, and to this end they find it imperative to cram falsehood upon falsehood down the throats of a war-worn people and to crack the whip over their heads to urge them along a road which inevitably must lead to their destruction.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A few days ago my wife received a letter from a friend, a Parisian, who is now keeping house in Paris. This letter, which is dated June 22, contains among other things some interesting information about retail prices of some of the most important foodstuffs. These data I send you, thinking that a comparison of recent Paris prices with American prices in this vicinity might perhaps interest some of your readers.

Good beef costs 5f. for 2 1-5 pounds, (1 kilo.) At the present rate of exchange, which is about $0.177 to a franc, that would be about 89 cents a kilo. Mutton costs 53 cents a pound. The best butter is from 60 to 70 cents a pound. Flour is 11 cents a pound. I paid $1.10 for a 12½-pound bag two days ago. A loaf of bread weighing a kilo costs 9 cents. A very good quality of coffee costs 53 cents a pound. Sugar is very dear, costing 51 cents a kilo. Milk is from 9 to 11 cents a liter, (about the same as a quart.)

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The tabulation according to probable ancestry by your correspondent "H. B. H." of the 158 holders of No. 258 in the draft lottery, as it appears in today's TIMES, is interesting, but I believe it is not as accurate as it can be made.

(A WAR-CHANGE.)

That from on high—yet not too far—
Might send below a rippling bar

But oh, it was not to my will!
My pen—it was an Eagle's quill
That once the savage crags had known
And all the clamors that have blown
Through every land, in every age—
I set my pen along the page.

But now, but now—past all presage!—
Then, to an Eagle's wing it changed;
A hundred barbed quills it bore
What, what! World-Freedom was its theme,
And every patriot's dying dream—

The Eagle's namesake-wind arose
And every heaven-born air that knows
And loves the nidus where 'twas fledged.
The script it was with lightnings edged;
But, all at once, as on it ranged,
The Wing into an Eagle changed—
The Eagle of the Fiery Eye.

"I am of War—I was not thine,
Weak thing, but I have made thee mine,
So, write thou must as I shall will.
But the wild Hymn of Unmatched Days!
Watch how my talons Victory snatch—
Victory with Freedom set on high,

WANT CHURCHILL FOR MAYOR

Progressive Democrats Name Former Head of Education Board.

A new entry in the Mayoralty race was made last night when Thomas W. Churchill, formerly President of the Board of Education, was named by the General Committee of 300 Progressive Democrats at a meeting in the Hotel Astor.

The committee, said to represent 20,000 enrolled "Progressive Democrats" in the five boroughs, issued the following statement concerning the qualifications of Mr. Churchill.

"The next Mayor of New York City must draw his inspiration from the people, and not from great corporate or aristocratic interests. He must stand for real and not sham economy. He must be known as an independent—so big and so able that he will be subservient to no clique or faction. He must be one to put new life and hope into the local Democracy, and align it with the progressive spirit of the National Administration.

"We find such a man in Thomas W. Churchill, the former President of the Board of Education, and we favor him for the nomination for Mayor. We invite public discussion of the qualifications and availability of Mr. Churchill, and we urge his nomination upon the Democratic organizations of the city."

In discussing the resolution of the Executive Committee Patrick J. O'Beirne, Chairman of the Finance Committee of the organization, said that many thousands of independent voters were heartily in favor of a change of administration in the affairs of the city, because the present fusion administration, in their opinion, "has betrayed the people by turning over the property and franchises of the city to the large financial and corporate interests, including the large foundations, which now have a strangle hold on the civic and educational activities of the City of New York."

The officers of the Progressive Democrats are: Dr. Jonathan C. Day, Chairman; Nicholas J. Healy, Jr., Secretary; Henry Stern, Treasurer; Edward J. Dunphy, Chairman Executive Committee; Mayer C. Goldman, Chairman Platform Committee; Patrick J. O'Beirne, Chairman Finance Committee.

It was announced that a complete ticket will be made up and placed in the field.

INDEPENDENTS SPLIT.

The Executive Committee of the Federation of Independent Voters received a report from the Committee on Nominations and Platform last night at its headquarters, 40 West Thirty-third Street. The committee reported that a tentative draft of the platform had been made, but would not be completed until today, and that a conference had been arranged with other organizations for Thursday afternoon, when a final recommendation for candidates probably would be made.

Inasmuch as it developed that certain members of the committee favored Mayor Mitchel and sentiment among the Republican members was manifested for Justice Cropsey, a resolution was adopted under which the federation will be bound to support the candidates decided on by a two-thirds vote.

Final touches were put on the tentative platform of the Democratic fusionists last night when a sub-committee submitted to the Platform Committee its program. The sub-committee consists of former Secretary of State Edward Lasansky, James D. Bell, John Croak, Anthony J. Griffin, W. J. O'Brien, and Francis Sullivan.

The Mitchel fusion meeting, scheduled for last night at 244 Madison Avenue, was indefinitely postponed, as, it was explained, it was impossible to complete certain details in time for the meeting.

FUSIONISTS SEEK HARMONY.

Straighten Out Tangles While Awaiting Mayor's Acceptance.

Mayor Mitchel is expected within the next day or two to notify the Fusion Committee of 1917 that he will accept its renomination for another term. A letter has already been received from Controller Prendergast accepting a renomination and pledging himself to run again on the Fusion ticket, even should a straight Republican ticket be entered in the primaries.

The Fusion Committee is bending its efforts to straighten out the tangle in Queens County, where a considerable element of the Republican organization there is showing opposition to Mitchel. The committee recognizes that Borough President Maurice Connolly will be a hard man to beat for re-election, and it is having trouble in selecting a candidate that will be acceptable to all the anti-Connolly forces. An indication of President Connolly's strength among independents and Republicans was shown yesterday when a committee of 150 of the latter, headed by Alric H. Man of Richmond Hill, was organized to bring about Mr. Connolly's renomination.

KOREANS SEE CITIZENS MADE

Junichiro Tamiya and T. Nakamura, head of railway and Public Procurator, respectively, of Korea, sat with Justice Ordway of the Supreme Court, yesterday, while an eager crowd of men surrounded the bench awaiting examination for admission to citizenship. The Koreans watched the process of making American citizens with wide-eyed interest. As usual, since the beginning of the war, the Justice talked to the applicants in an effort to impress upon them the significance of the step they were taking.

Justice Ordway told the applicants that it was not unlikely that this country would become engaged in war with other nations besides Germany. He referred to Austria, and the dozen Austrians who were awaiting their papers nodded their heads as though they understood.

"Under these circumstances," said the Justice, "every man who seeks citizenship here must recognize that we want no divided allegiance. Every new citizen must in spirit, as well as in letter, understand that he is surrendering all of his allegiance to the country of his birth, and becoming solely and in truth and honor a citizen of the United States, owing loyalty to no other nation."

PORK BILL UNDER FIRE.

Kenyon Moves to Cut $17,000,000 from River and Harbor Measure.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Debate on the $27,000,000 River and Harbor bill in the Senate today developed vigorous protests that the measure was not an emergency war proposal and should not be considered at this time. The leaders plan, however, to keep it before the Senate until it is disposed of or displaced by war revenue legislation.

Senator Kenyon attacked the bill as a remnant of a dribbling and wasteful appropriation plan which had grown up through Congressmen thinking only of the improvement of local districts and not taking a nation-wide view of the situation. He offered an amendment limiting the total appropriations to $10,000,000 "to be expended by the Secretary of War for improvements authorized by Congress."

Senator Smoot denounced the measure as a robbery of the Treasury. With the first year of the war promising to cost $14,000,000,000, he declared, it was no time to spend millions dredging little creeks. Senator Sherman, in voicing his opposition, said the pretext that the bill would improve interstate commerce was entirely false. Senator Fletcher, in charge of the bill, declared criticisms were based on prejudice and lack of information, and that the bill was in fact an emergency measure to provide for additional war transportation.

T. E. Rush to Run for Supreme Court

Thomas E. Rush, Surveyor of the Port of New York and Democratic leader of the Twenty-ninth Assembly District, announced yesterday that he would be a candidate for Justice of the Supreme Court of the First District. Petitions to have his name placed on the primary ballot were placed in circulation. A committee of five has been named to conduct his campaign. They are John Jerome Kelly, Howard Taylor, Alfred S. Seligsberg, Harold C. Knoeppel, and Arthur McAleenan.

WOMEN ASK REFORM IN HANDLING OF FOOD

ALL AGREE OUTLOOK IS BAD

Perkins, as Head of Mayor's Committee, Offers Plans for Better Distribution.

A joint Legislative Committee, headed by Elon R. Brown, President Pro Tem. of the Senate, heard opinions of city housewives and business men yesterday on food conditions in this State. The hearings were begun in the Board of Estimate chamber in the City Hall, and the purpose of the hearings, Senator Brown explained, was to gather suggestions that may be helpful in framing a Food bill for presentation at the extra session of the Legislature called by Governor Whitman for July 31.

Women were in the majority, and their voices were raised for reform that would keep food out of the hands of speculators and for lower prices. The suggestions were many, and included price fixing, terminal markets, and cold storage.

William G. Willcox, President of the Board of Education, said that although the people now face a desperate condition, things will be much worse in the Fall and Winter. Something must be done, he said, to help them. Something was wrong, he said, when the consumer had to pay three and four times what the producer got. His criticism was not so much with the cost as with the methods of distribution that pile up overhead charges and waste.

In reply to a question by Senator Brown, Mr. Willcox said that business deserved the encouragement of the Government only as long as it served the needs of the people. "I suggest you give power to an individual or to a commission, not to exceed three, to investigate and use the power to bring about a proper distribution to the consumer," he said.

As Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Food Supply, George W. Perkins has made a careful study of local food conditions and he was questioned at length as to the sort of a law he would advocate.

"My first suggestion," he said, "is that the Wicks Bill be amended to permit the same co-operation between distributors of foodstuffs as is now permits between producers of farm products. This should be done for three reasons: First, it is only fair that all should be treated alike; second, the farmer cannot on any other basis receive the fair treatment to which he is entitled, and, third, because the consumer cannot on any other basis receive the fair treatment to which he is entitled.

"My second suggestion is a law similar to that of New Jersey, giving to each municipality the right to buy food direct from the producer and sell it to the consumer through the channels it may deem best, or confer this power on some State commission. In my judgment this would be the most direct method of curbing the vicious gambler and speculator who operates to the detriment of the producer, distributor, and consumer.

"My third suggestion is that special attention be given, with all possible haste, to some plan for taking care of the large crop of perishable food now ripening in this State. I believe the object sought can best be accomplished by the State owning or controlling the dry and cold storage warehouses, in which crops when abundant can be stored for use at other times."

The committee questioned Mr. Perkins as to the control of storage warehouses. The witness told of food lost because of no storage facilities for the farmers.

"Has New York the money to have a Market Commission and to provide storage houses?" asked one of the commission.

"I am not a member of the Board of Estimate and I cannot answer that question," replied Mr. Perkins. Asked when all this should be done Mr. Perkins replied emphatically: "Instanter."

Professor Ellery C. Stowell of Columbia thought a step forward could be taken by centralizing authority. He believed

THE MASSES WINS FIGHT FOR MAILS

FINDS LAW NOT VIOLATED

Postmaster General Must Determine What Further Action the Government Will Take.

Judge Learned Hand of the Federal District Court, yesterday filed a decision in which he granted "the usual preliminary injunction,' sought by the publishers of The Masses to restrain the Postmaster of New York from excluding the August issue of that magazine from the mails according to instructions from Postmaster General Burleson. The subscribers' copies of the issue are now in the Post Office, having been since the Postmaster refused to distribute them, and Judge Hand's decision will liberate them for circulation as soon as Postmaster Patten receives orders from Washington. What further action the Government may take in the case will be decided by the Postmaster General.

The basis of Judge Hand's decision was that, although articles and cartoons in The Masses were "designed to arouse animosity to the draft and to the war," they did not counsel resistance to the law and were not in violation of the Espionage act, under which Postmaster General Burleson declared the magazine nonmailable. Judge Hand also upheld the contention of Gilbert E. Roe, counsel for The Masses, that, if The Masses was nonmailable under the Espionage act, its publishers were indictable under the same law, and that if the publishers were not indictable the magazine must be mailable.

In his decision, Judge Hand first considered separately the four cartoons and four articles upon which the Postmaster General based his refusal to accept the magazine for the mails. Of these, he said, one was "intended to rouse detestation of the draft law," another was calculated to give the impression that Russia was "being ensnared and bullied by the United States and its allies into a continuance of the war for purposes prejudicial to true democracy; another held up to admiration Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman and "their conduct to possible emulation," and the last expressed admiration for the conduct of English conscientious objectors. Judge Hand, referring to the cartoons and articles in The Masses, said:

"The query must be: What is the extreme latitude of the interpretation which must be placed upon them, and does that extremity fall outside any of the provisions of the act of June 15, 1917? Unless this be true, the decision of the Postmaster must stand. It seems to me quite plain that none of the language and none of the cartoons in this paper can be thought directly to counsel or advise insubordination or mutiny without violation of their meaning quite beyond any tolerable understanding. I come, therefore, to the phase of the section which forbids any one from wilfully obstructing the recruiting or enlistment service of the United States. I am not prepared to assent to the plaintiff's position that this only refers to acts other than words, nor that the act thus defined must be shown to have been successful. One may obstruct without preventing, and the mere obstruction is an injury to the service.

"As to the cartoons, it seems to me quite clear that they do not fall within such a test. Certainly the nearest is that entitled 'Conscription,' and the most that can be said of that is that it may breed such animosity to the draft as will promote resistance and strengthen the determination of those supposed to be recalcitrant. There is no intimation that, however hateful the draft may be, one is in duty bound to resist it, certainly none that such resistance is to one's interest; cannot, therefore, even with the limitations which surround the court, assent to the assertion that any of the cartoons violate the act."

Judge Hand said that the text offered "more embarrassment," but that it only expressed opinions contrary to the draft and the war and in approval of those who resisted both.

"It cannot be," he continued, "that the law means to curtail such expressions merely because the convictions of the class within the draft are stronger than their sense of obedience to the law. Could any reasonable man say, not that the indirect result of the language might be to arouse a seditious disposition, for that would not be enough, but that the language advocated resistance to the draft? I cannot think that upon such language any verdict would stand. Of course, the language of the statute cannot have one meaning in an indictment and another when the case comes up here, because, by hypothesis, if this paper is nonmailable under Section 3, Title 1, its editors have committed a crime in uttering it.

"It is difficult and often impossible to meet the charge that one's general ethos is treasonable. Such a latitude for construction implies a personal latitude in administration which contradicts the normal assumption that law shall be embodied in general propositions capable of some measure of definition. I make no question of the power of Congress to establish a personal censorship of the press under war power. I am quite satisfied it has not yet chosen to create one, and with the greatest deference, it does not seem to me that anything here challenged can be illegal upon any other assumption."

SURGEON LETS BABY, BORN TO IDIOCY, DIE

FROM ALTRUISTIC MOTIVE

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 24.—The day-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Meter of 121 North Cicero Avenue, died today at the German-American Hospital, where Dr. Harry J. Haiselden refused to perform an operation which he acknowledged probably would save the child's life. He declared the infant, if it lived, would be an imbecile, and that its parents and humanity would be better served by its death than by the prolonging of its life. The baby had no upper skull cap, and there were other deformities which seemed to assure it misery as long as it lived.

"The attending physician called me," Dr. Haiselden said, "and after examination agreed with me that the kindest thing we could do would be to permit the child to die. More than forty other physicians and surgeons looked at the baby during the night. Many of them signed a paper expressing approval of my decision against operating to save the child."

Dr. Haiselden made a national issue in 1915 of a doctor's right to determine questions of life and death for patients when he decided to let the Bollinger baby die rather than perform an operation that would have preserved it for a life of idiocy. He told today of two other cases in which parents, by his advice, were leaving malformed infants for nature to dispose of rather than trying to save them by operation. One is a case of microcephalia and the other of spinal trouble. The babies are expected to live for several weeks, measures being taken meanwhile to make them as comfortable as possible.

"They will criticise me," said Dr. Haiselden. "But I shall have friends, too. And some day they will wonder how there could be any criticism.

"The Meter baby was brought to me from West Pullman yesterday, a few hours after it was born. Its father is a mechanic, less than 21 years old. Its mother is 20 years old. Its grandmother —who, by the way, became a mother just eleven days ago—is the mother of twelve children, only one of whom is dead.

"When I saw the baby I knew it had lived too long already. The brain was extremely small and there was no normal skull formation. The head rested on the shoulders and there was practically no neck. The ears were deformed and there were other deformities.

"The case was absolutely hopeless. The life could have been saved—but what a life it would have been. The child would have grown into a hopeless idiot, perhaps just able to eat. It would have been a burden to its parents and the State.

"Incidentally, it is interesting to know the baby's condition may be the result of a fright suffered by the mother before the child was born. Half a year before the little one came into the world the mother witnessed a frightful accident in which a man was mutilated. But this is incidental. It will interest those physicians who have held this sort of thing impossible."

Summer Travel Brings Numerous Baggage Losses

The rush, jam, bang of baggage and increased traffic congestion, with its inevitable chance of loss, thieves, hotel fires, etc., all make it mighty risky to take your baggage away without insuring it.

Transportation companies are only liable for your baggage while in their custody and then only partly responsible—hotels assume little responsibility. In either case you may recover only a nominal amount, and then only after vexatious delays and annoyances.

Why risk a loss—a NORTH AMERICA baggage policy, at very little cost, will pay you promptly and insures your baggage and effects wherever they may be from the moment they leave your home until their return.

Remember, your chance of loss is just as great on a day's trip as it is on a long tour.

MANTON MARBLE, PUBLICIST, DEAD

NOTED POLITICAL WRITER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 24.—Manton Marble died this morning of old age at the home of his son-in-law, Sir Martin Conway, Allington Castle, near Maidstone. Mr. Marble, who had been living in England quietly for twenty years, began to fail last Christmas.

Manton Marble was the proprietor and editor of The New York World during the civil war and continued in charge of the paper until 1876. He always took a keen interest in politics and was consulted by the leading politicians of his day. His views were embodied in many State and national platforms of the Democratic Party and he wrote the Democratic State platform of 1874. Two years later he wrote the national platform of his party and he was largely responsible for the platform of 1884.

Mr. Marble was born in Worcester, Mass., on Nov. 16, 1834. His early education was supervised by his father, Joel Marble, and he entered the Albany Academy, graduating in 1853. Two years later Mr. Marble completed his education at the University of Rochester.

Before his connection with The New York World the publicist was the assistant editor of The Boston Journal for a year, beginning in 1855. He then went to The Boston Traveler and remained there a year as editor. He joined the staff of The New York Evening Post in 1858 and continued in its service until 1860.

Mr. Marble joined The World in 1860, and two years later he became owner and editor, and continued as such through the period of the civil war and the period of reconstruction. His connection with the paper ended in 1876. He was one of the last prominent survivors of the journalistic era of the civil war, and his writings obtained the attention of the country. While he held that no course but war was open after the firing on Fort Sumter, he opposed Executive power being carried beyond proper or unusual limits. He opposed also Custom House taxation, greenbacks, negro suffrage, Federal income tax, and the impeachment of President Johnson. He supported the Geneva arbitration treaty and the Washington treaty and the Alabama awards.

His Letter to President Lincoln.

"A Letter to Abraham Lincoln" was written in 1864, and the incident that drew this famous document was the ordered arrest and imprisonment of Mr. Marble by the President, the occupation of the office of The World by a military guard, and the suspension of the publication for two days, May 20 and 21, 1864. The World and The Journal of Commerce were made the victims of a fraud in the publication of a forged call from President Lincoln for 400,000 men by draft or enlistment in the Union Army. Although Mr. Marble did everything in his power to rectify the mistake as soon as it was discovered, the President issued the order for his arrest, and the Secretary of War sent a military guard to occupy The World offices.

In his letter to the President Mr. Marble said that the forgery was written by a person who "ever since your departure from Springfield for Washington in 1861 has enjoyed private as well as public opportunities for learning to counterfeit the peculiarities of your speech and style, and enabled him to insert his clever forgery into the regular channels by which we receive news at a time when competent inspection of its genuineness was impossible and suspicion of its autheticity was improbable."

His Mission for Cleveland.

Because of his learning and his loyalty to the Democratic Party Mr. Marble was sent abroad by President Cleveland in 1885 on a confidential mission to obtain from European Governments opinions on bimetallism. It was not until after he returned in November of that year that the purpose of his mission was made public. He was instructed to ascertain the opinions and purposes of the European Governments in respect to the establishment internationally of a fixed relative value between the two metals, one ratio of weight between gold and silver coins, the free coinage of both metals, and the international use of both as money of an unlimited legal tender.

Mr. Marble, on his return, reported personally to Secretary of State Bayard. While abroad every facility was afforded him by the Governments of Great Britain, France, and Germany. He conferred with Prince Bismarck, Mr. Gladstone, Lord Iddesleigh, and Mr. Goschen, and Messrs. Freycinet and Carnot. He also had a conference with Cernuschi, an authority upon international bimetallism. He advised President Cleveland that the co-operation of the United Kingdom, for which either Tory or Liberal leaders were prepared, was the condition precedent of German or French resumption of free bimetallic coinage. He told President Cleveland that, in his opinion, the purchases of silver by the United States Treasury should cease.

As a writer on political subjects Mr. Marble held high rank. He was the author of "The Presidential Counts" and "A Secret Chapter of Political History." This was published in 1878. He also wrote the memoir of Dr. Alexander G. Mercer, prefacing his "Notes of an Outlook on Life," in 1899.

Mr. Marble was one of the founders of the Manhattan Club in 1865, and he was President of the club for the five years beginning in 1884. He was a member of the Century Association, the Round Table, the Metropolitan Club, and an honorary member of the Cobden Club.

He was appointed deputy collector in the Warehouse and Bond Division by Collector Kilbreth in 1893 and held that position until his death. He was the senior deputy collector of the department.

Godmothers Wanted for American Soldiers.

With the ever-increasing number of American soldiers being sent to France, I am asking the women of America to co-operate with me in forming an "American Godmothers' League for American Soldiers."

There is no subscription. Each member undertakes to send a soldier a weekly newspaper and every three or four weeks to write to him and to send him a small parcel, which will be personally acknowledged.

As many of our men have no one to send to them, or have people that cannot afford to do so, I have prepared a small list of the most desirable articles to be sent.

It is requested that all inquiries shall include a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

COPENHAGEN, July 24. — Philip Beck, a Danish wholesale merchant and exporter, was sentenced to two years' imprisonment today, thus disposing of a celebrated case for violation of the Danish export regulations.

Beck was arrested in August, 1916, after a German cruiser had captured the Danish steamer Ydun while bound from Fredrikshavn, Jutland, for Copenhagen, with 500 cases of lard on board consigned largely to Beck. It was suspected that the capture was arranged with Beck's connivance to simplify the problem of delivery of the lard to Germany. The Ydun, on which there were about 150 children returning from a holiday in Jutland, was taken by the cruiser into Swinemünde, which occasioned great indignation in Denmark.

MACFARLANE AND M'LEAN TIE FOR BEST CARD IN OPEN TOURNEY OVER ENGLEWOOD LINKS

MANY TIE SCORES IN OPEN TOURNEY

PROMINENT PROS FAIL

Hagen, Hutchinson, and Barnes Have an Off Day—Kirkby Best Among the Amateurs.

Realization that victory was within his grasp proved the undoing of Willie MacFarlane of Hudson River in the thirty-six-hole open struggle at the Englewood Golf Club yesterday. Competing against the best professionals in the country and most of the leading amateurs, MacFarlane arrived at the eighteenth tee with only four strokes needed to distance the field on a par three hole. He had played the seventeen preceding holes in par figures all the way and seemed certain of triumph.

Friends of MacFarlane met him and told him he needed only a four to be certain of first place, and Willie laughed, but there was a nervous tremor in his laugh. He cut short his customary address of the ball and the hurried drive lifted it into a sand pit. Still he was not in any great trouble, but he dug too deep trying to pitch on to the green and was still in the pit. His next shot landed his ball four feet from the cup. Still victory seemed his, but he putted carelessly and the ball refused to drop. This gave him a five on the final hole and a total of 146 for the two journeys around the course.

George McLean of North Hempstead finished his tiresome journey a few minutes before MacFarlane and with a 72—74 had chalked up 146 for his total. McLean also had found the sand pit at the final hole, but he was deadly accurate with his recovery. The meeting tie between McLean and MacFarlane may be played off Friday, the one day this week in which the leading golfers are not to be occupied in raising a big war relief fund in the interest of the Professional Golfers' Association, which is fostering the events.

Hagen Blunders Often.

There was an unusually large gallery sprinkled all over the links from morning until well into the evening watching the players of international reputation trying to come somewhere near the scores registered by the two local professionals. Most of the spectators followed Walter B. Hagen of Rochester, Jim Barnes of Whitemarsh Valley, Jock Hutchinson of Glen View, the leading professionals, and Jerome D. Travers, New York's greatest exponent of the game. While these outstanding experts did not ascend into the realm of the spectacular, they at times gave every indication of the ability which has brought them success in the past.

Hagen had the lowest score of the four above named, with 75, 75—150, but the best this got him was a five-handed tie for ninth place. The former open champion had an inward journey of 32 after going out in 43 in the morning, which was the most remarkable golf of the day. For the first six holes of the morning endeavor, Hagen blundered into every kind of difficulty, but from the seventh on he shaved strokes from them with uncanny regularity. His last twelve holes were made in five strokes under 4s and read 3, 4, 4, 3, 4, 4, 4, 4, 3, 3, 4, 4, 3. Again in the afternoon his outward journey got him into trouble.

Neither Barnes nor Hutchinson derived any benefit from their work. Hutchinson had a miserable start with 80 in the morning, but was nearer his true game in the afternoon with 78. Barnes' feet continued to trouble him and he was forced to be content with 76, 78—154 for the day.

Kirkby Leads Amateurs.

Oswald Kirkby of Englewood led the amateurs with 151, and Travers was second with 152. Ned Sawyer, one of Chicago's amateur leaders, was well up with 155. Bobby Jones and Perry Adair, the Atlanta youngsters, found extreme difficulties on the well-trapped course, but each did well. Jones had 158 and Adair 159. Norman H. Maxwell, the Philadelphia boy, became so disgusted with his efforts that he picked up in the afternoon and gave up the struggle.

As the evening shadows were gathering, Fred McLeod, the veteran from Washington, stood among the gallery around the eighteenth green and discussed the three 2s he collected at the short holes on the morning round. He had just finished declaring that each was only a "pitch and putt" when a ball driven by Frank Hoyt of Siwanoy from the eighteenth tee hit McLeod on the temple. McLeod dropped as if shot, but recovered before any one could assist him to his feet. That was a good 1 shot," he remarked.

Peculiarly enough, a tie existed in the first four low scores. Besides the first and second tie, Tom McNamara and Jack Hobens of Englewood each had 148, and M. J. Brady, Massachusetts open champion, and Gilbert Nicholls, Metropolitan open champion, each finished with 149. Emmett French had the best outward nine holes with 35, and Hagen's 32 was the low inward trip. The cards of the first two were:

BROMO LEADS IN HANDICAP.

There was a good turnout of racing enthusiasts to "do their bit" for the benefit of the Red Cross at the Empire City racetrack yesterday. The weather was propitious and the special card arranged for the day attracted good horses which provided interesting races. No estimate could be obtained of the amount of money realized, but as all the profits are to be devoted to the fund it is likely that more than $5,000 will accrue as the contribution to the Red Cross.

Harry Payne Whitney's Bromo was sent to the post as fit as he could be made for the Red Cross Handicap, at a mile and a sixteenth, which was the feature of the card. For once the superb conditioning of James Rowe was sufficient to overcome the weight allotted by Mr. Vosburgh, and Bromo scored one of the easiest victories seen in a handicap this season. Bromo simply waited on the pace set by the Brighton Stable's St. Isidore until rounding the turn for home, when he was called on by Robinson and sailed in an easy winner by six lengths.

There was the usual upset in the two-year-old stake event when Andrew Miller's Recount, an outsider at 15 to 1, galloped in a winner of the Sprightful Stakes by two lengths from James Butler's Dawn Star, with the Brighton Stable's Tippity Witchet, the odds-on favorite, finishing next to last. In getting to the front Recount crowded Corydon, which bumped into Dawn Star, but a protest of foul was disallowed.

PIRATES SUBDUED BY GIANTS' BATS

McGraw's Men Take Victory at 6 to 2 and Then Leave for Western Trip.

The Giants tagged the Pittsburgh Pirates with a 6 to 2 defeat at the Polo Grounds yesterday and then jumped on a train headed West just eight and a half games ahead of Cincinnati in the pennant race. By winning that game the Giants squared their account with Frank Miller, the Pirate boxman who shut them out earlier in the season. They gave Miller a reception of half a dozen hits and four runs in the third inning, and after that Bob Steele came to the rescue when all the damage had been done.

Miller had a pretty good excuse for being hit hard in the third inning, for while he was at the bat in the Pirates' portion of the inning, one of Pol Perritt's twists bounded from the bat and hit Miller on the pitching arm. Because the ball was a foul tip he was not even permitted to take his base, but the bruise was painful, for it was several minutes before he could resume his turn at the bat.

Pol Perritt didn't last through the game, because he strained his back in the seventh and was forced to retire in favor of Anderson. It was probably one of Umpire Rigler's decisions which pained Perritt as much as the strained back. In the fifth inning the Giants came close to making a triple play, but Rigler ruled that the third man was safe at the plate. It happened this way. McCarthy singled to left and Fischer's single to right sent him to third. Steele jammed a hot grounder to Zimmerman, who chucked the ball to Fletcher, forcing Fischer at second, while Fletcher relayed the ball to Holke, getting Steele. Holke ripped the ball to Rariden, who had the ball in his mitt before McCarthy came in, but Rigler ruled the base runner was safe. The Giants kicked, Perritt, Rariden and Heinie Zim taking an active part, but the argument didn't steam up to the boiling point. Zimmerman was about to say numerous things to the umpire when he recalled the $50 fine he got for talking to Bigler two days ago. That was the decision that gave Perritt a bigger pain in the back than the strain.

The Giants had a chance to score so many runs in the third inning that they got all mixed up in the operations. They started the inning with a single to centre and went to third on Rariden's hit to right. Perritt singled to centre, scoring Holke, and Rariden went to second. Burns got a hit to left and filled the bases. Lee King, of Pittsburgh rates then executed a play which lacked the usual display of thinking power. Kilduff poked a high foul to the far corner of right field, and instead of letting it go, King caught the ball, after which Rariden scored easily.

Benny Kauff rammed a hit between right and centre, but Perritt, at second, didn't move. He stuck to the base paths while Burns started to race from first to second. Even after the ball dropped safe Perritt was glued to the spot and about the time he started for third Burns had passed second and there was a big tie up in traffic at third base. Burns couldn't go back and when he got to third he was only a step behind Perritt and found the claim occupied. This left Perritt at third, while Benny had reached second. Zimmerman whaled a hit to left and sent Perritt and Kauff home.

In the sixth inning, Pete Kilduff, subbing for Herzog at second, made the fielding gem of the day. With Carey on first and two out, Norman Boeckel steamed a hot grounder down a little to the left of first base. It was headed straight for the right field wall. Kilduff raced over and intercepted it on the hop and threw the ball perfectly to Holke before he had time to turn around and face the bag.

The second run of the Pirates was coined in the seventh. With one out, McCarthy walked and then Perritt complained of a pain in his back. After receiving a massage from a half dozen different players, Pol resumed his flinging, but his aim was bad and Bill Fischer walked. Perritt then gave it up and Anderson took up the task. After Steele slid to Burns, Bigbee welted a two-bagger to the right field wall, scoring McCarthy across the plate. Fischer was also headed for the plate and Davy Robertson made another of his beautiful tosses from the outfield and Fischer was exterminated as he was sliding in with another run.

The game fairly bristled with lively fielding by the Giants. Heinie Zim at third performed with all the perfection of a vacuum cleaner. He scooped them up out of the turf with one hand and threw them to first from all positions.

Before the game Jim Corbett made a speech. He presented George Burns with a check for $50 for hitting the tobacco sign on the fence in Philadelphia a few weeks ago. No one heard what Jim said after "Ladies and Gentlemen." He must have told a good one, for Burns grinned. Burns right then decided to do his bit and turned over part of the check to the tobacco fund for the Sammies in France.

Crude Rubber Prices Sustained.

The price tone of the local crude rubber market has been steady to slightly firmer in the last week, due, sellers say, rather to sentiment than to increased activity on the part of buyers. The plantation rubbers yesterday were quoted here at 68½ cents a pound for spot and almost any other position to the end of the year. For up-river fine, spot, 68½@68¾ cents was asked. Spot lots of up-river coarse were held at 49½ cents, while the nominal quotation on upper Caucho ball was 43 cents. One of the present features of the market is that the Brazilian rubbers are about 3 cents a pound lower here than at Para. In view of this, a stiffening market for Brazils is looked for in the near future. New rubber will not be coming forward in quantities for some time, and the planters are said to be financially strong enough to withhold their offerings indefinitely.

Prices Fixed on Woolen Rags.

The Daily Mill Stock Reporter announces that the sub-committee on woolen rags of the Advisory Commission of the Council of National Defense has decreed maximum prices on the basic grades of woolen rags as follows: Mixed soft, 14 cents; skirted cloth, 8 cents, and rough cloth, 6½ cents.

Woolen Trade ancellations.

Apropos of the action of the American Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers in refusing their support to members who cancel civilian orders on the pretext of more urgent Government business, a clothing manufacturer suggested yesterday that the only fair method of handling the matter would be to have the mills operating on Government contracts file that fact with the association. Such information, he stated, should be available to the trade, and the clothing manufacturers would not then have to risk the losses incurred through wholesale cancellation of their piece goods orders. Under the present arrangement, he said, the good-will of the association is only shown after the damage has been done, and the manufacturer has to either pay more for his requirement elsewhere or not get his needed supplies at all.

***

Talk of Two-Piece Suits.

Although sales of two-piece Summer suits have dwindled during the last few years, there is an evidence of a return to the custom. The manufacturing clothiers are now talking of two-piece garments for next Summer so that the wool supply may be conserved in this way. According to a manufacturer who commented on the matter yesterday, the vest could be eliminated in the Summer suit if a sufficient number of clothiers decided to make only two-piece garments. He pointed out that many men discard their vests during the hot weather months anyway.

Men's Wear Picks Up.

Inquiry among the clothiers and furnishing goods houses yesterday revealed the fact that during the last few days the men's wear retail trade has shown quite a decided improvement. Although the retail clothiers are commonly understood to be carrying larger stocks than usual for this time of the year, they are now showing more interest in getting further supplies for the Fall. The reason assigned for the change of sentiment is that now most of the uncertainty regarding the draft is over with and customers are pretty sure who are to be conscripted. Those who have escaped immediate conscription are replenishing their wardrobes which were neglected during the period of uncertainty.

A Buyer's View of New Discounts.

At least one prominent resident buyer was glad to see the coat and suit manufacturers adopt the uniform discount of 2 per cent. off in ten days. According to his view of the matter, the trade will be helped considerably by taking united action on it. He said that, while there are a number of buyers who are not in favor of the lower discount for obvious reasons, there are still quite a few others who welcome the change. "We did not like to play fast and loose with the manufacturers," he said, "but there was always the uncomfortable feeling that some other fellow was getting more of a bargain than we were. So in justice to our customers it was necessary to hold up orders, push down prices wherever possible and resort to every device to assure our getting the best values. Now that the manufacturers have agreed to a uniform discount, it takes a load off our minds and we wish them success."

Gray Goods Were Quiet.

Trading in the local gray goods market yesterday was very light. Nowhere did buyers seem anxious to do more than pick up odds and ends that hit their fancy in the matter of price. Most of the few goods that were let out came from second hands. Prices on first-hand clothes were nominally firm, but it was said that they were being shaded here and there on firm bids. Until the present hay and grass period in prices is passed not a great deal of activity is looked for by leading sellers. Mill print cloth prices closed largely nominal at these levels:

39-inch, 68-72s	12c	38½-inch, 60-52s	9½c
39-inch, 56-44s	8½c	38½-inch, 60-48s	9c
38½-inch, 64-64s	10½c	27-inch, 64-60s	7½c

Hard Coal Demand Still Heavy.

The Coal Trade Journal will say today that pressure upon the anthracite producers continues unabated, for, while in some sections the demand for domestic coal shows a certain degree of relaxation, there is plenty of business to be had in other localities. The total volume of business offered is such that the mining interests can not only behind on their shipments, but are still obliged to turn down orders. Production keeps up on an unprecedented basis for this time of the year. Trading in the local bituminous market has been at a low ebb in the last week because there has been little to trade with.

Emergency Hits Selling, Too.

In addition to the "comfort" kits for soldiers that were mentioned in yesterday's TIMES, sellers of small wares in this market tell of a good demand for emergency kits as well. These kits may be had at wholesale prices ranging from

REPORT ON ALTMAN ESTATE.

Third Accounting Shows Assets Have Increased $865,147.

The third accounting of Michael Friedsam, Dr. Bernard Sachs, George R. Read and Edwin J. Steiner, executors and trustees under the will of Benjamin Altman, was filed in the Surrogate's Court yesterday. The account covers the period from Nov. 5, 1915, to July 1 last, and shows that the income collected amounted to $2,908,008, and the value of the assets increased $865,147.

The accounting lists investments and other assets aggregating $3,139,500. The balance on hand to be distributed on July 1, less commissions and expenses, was $251,880, of which $213,000 was in B. Altman & Co. 6 per cent. bonds, and $38,880 in cash. The trustees have turned over to the Altman Foundation 19,986 shares of stock in B. Altman & Co.

Sinclair Oil Capital Increased.

Stockholders of the Sinclair Oil and Refining Company, at a special meeting yesterday, authorized the issue of $20,000,000 three-year 7 per cent. notes and also of 500,000 additional shares of stock without par value. The stock will be held in the treasury to meet option warrants to be attached to the notes, which will entitle purchasers to buy stock at specified prices over a period of two and a half years. The notes have been sold to a banking syndicate and will be offered to stockholders of record on July 27 at par in the ratio of $20 of par value of notes to each share of stock owned.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Strong Until McAdoo's Statement of Huge War Needs Causes Setback.

The controlling factor in yesterday's stock market was the news that Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo had prepared new war estimates calling for the authorization of an additional $5,000,000,000. Up to the time that this news was published prices were advancing and sentiment as to the outcome of the several important discussions at Washington was more favorable. Mr. McAdoo did not state how much of the tremendous sum asked for he would expect to be raised through taxation, but Wall street was alarmed by his request to Senator Simmons, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, that the pending revenue measure which was ready for submission to the Senate be held up until he could go over the bill for the purpose of suggesting important changes.

Business has been preparing for some violent readjustments to meet the proposed new taxes which were written into the War Tax Revenue bill to raise an additional $1,680,000,000. If any considerable part of the large appropriation Mr. McAdoo needs is to be provided out of current revenues the taxes carried by the new bill must be materially increased and many new ones included. It is possible that an effort will be made to double the receipts expected to be obtained through new taxes, leaving upward of $3,000,000,000 to be raised through bond sales. Apparently the cost of war is running up much more rapidly than any one expected three months ago. The fact that Great Britain is now spending nearly $34,000,000 each day suggests that the United States must prepare for an ever-increasing outlay as its war activities broaden.

The market was halted by announcement of the new budget and prices of many issues were lowered easily in the last few minutes. Steel common, which had sold at 122⅞, fell back to 120¼ at the close, with a net loss of 1⅜. Bethlehem Steel B, after selling up to 128½, closed at 125, while Republic Iron & Steel moved down from 91⅝ to 89¼, and Crucible from its best price of 82¾ to 79¾. Fluctuations were very erratic, however, and many issues ended the sessions with good gains.

In the earlier part of the day the Street was encouraged by the sudden termination of the deadlock in the Shipping Board through the President's dismissal of the Chairman and two members. His selection of E. N. Hurley to be Chairman and Admiral Capps to succeed Colonel Goethals was everywhere favorably commented upon. The President's acceptance of the bill carrying $640,000,000 for airplanes was another favorable factor which went far to offset the discouraging news of the Russian retreat. In connection with the new estimate of the Government's war needs it should not be forgotten that Secretary McAdoo is compelled to ask for authorization for expenditures which cannot be made for months to come. Nevertheless, the prospect of heavy burdens to be laid upon individual and business incomes means a prolonging of the period of uncertainty which has kept the market churning for several weeks past.

LONDON MARKET IS QUIET.

Tendency Uncertain Owing to the Russian Situation.

LONDON, July 24.—Trading was quiet on the Stock Exchange today and the tendency was uncertain, owing to the Russian situation. Russian bonds and industrials were lower. Spanish bonds were harder, and a fair business was transacted in the war loan and Colonial bonds. In the afternoon rubber stocks were firm, but munition shares eased off under profit taking, while the other sections were neglected. American securities were dull and undecided.

The supply of money was increased by Treasury bills maturing. Discount rates were dull.

Trading Dull on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, July 24.—Trading was dull on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 61 francs 20 centimes for cash. Exchange on London 27 francs 18 centimes. Five per cent. loan 88 francs 60 centimes.

PLAN FOR EQUITABLE MAY BRING CONTEST

BALK AT PRICE MENTIONED

Opponents of Mutualization Say There Are Millions That Do Not Belong to Policyholders.

The long-planned mutualization of the Equitable Life Assurance Society will not be effected without a contest unless the Directors pay the minority stockholders more than the proposed price of $1,500 a share, according to a prominent New York lawyer, who, as a representative of one of the family estates owning minority stock in the Equitable, said last night that his clients did not intend to see the assets of the society "unequally distributed." He attacked the plan of mutualization announced by President William A. Day of the Equitable on Saturday as unfair, because, he said, General T. Coleman du Pont, holder of the majority stock, would get more than $4,500 a share for his majority stock, while the holders of the minority stock would get $1,500 a share. General du Pont offered to turn over his holdings of 564 shares of the Equitable for $2,790,000, about $2,000,000 less than he paid J. P. Morgan for them in 1915. This would give him about $5,000 a share for his 501 shares of majority stock, and, the society stated, $1,500 a share for his sixty-three shares of minority stock. The $1,500 price was set down for a fair price for the 436 shares of minority stock scattered among a number of owners.

At the offices of the Equitable, 120 Broadway, it was said yesterday that no objection had been made to the mutualization plan announced on Saturday. While it was hoped that there would be no objection on the part of minority stockholders, it was said that such objection would most likely come in the form of a notice of an injunction suit. The lawyer referred to said that several other owners of minority stock felt the same way about the proposal as did his clients.

The attitude of the minority stockholders who oppose the mutualization plan is that there are millions of the assets of the Equitable which represent business done and long ago closed, and that therefore the present policyholders can have no equity in those funds. Therefore, they argue, those funds belong to the stockholders. There are only 1,000 shares of Equitable stock, and thus each $1,000,000 of such funds, if distributed, would give to each share of stock $1,000. Ten million such profits would give $10,000 to each share of stock.

Millions of Surplus Assets.

"My clients," said the lawyer, "do not propose that General du Pont shall get $4,500 or more a share for his stock and we shall get $1,500. There is nothing right about that. In the second place there are millions of dollars of surplus assets which represent profits on contracts long ago closed and settled. The present policy holders have no legal claim to that money, as we see it, and the question to be settled is to whom does that money belong?

"Why should any one say that General du Pont gets only $1,500 for his majority stock, when he gets more than $2,000,000 for 564 shares? That's about $4,500 a share.

The attitude of the Directors was that the great value of the Equitable stock lay in the circumstance that possession of a majority of it meant the control of the more than half a billion dollars of assets of the Equitable and that the minority stock, with the majority stock back in the treasury of the concern, would lose that power. It was their contention that General du Pont, by the vote of his majority stock, could mutualize the society without further ado. In his statement Saturday Judge Day said:

"Under the law the society can amend its charter and qualify all policy holders to elect Directors and thus practically mutualize the society as far as the voting of policy holders is concerned through the acquisition of the majority stock only. It is believed, however, to be for the best interests of the society that all stock be purchased and retired and the mutualization thus fully completed. Hence it suggests a price for the minority stock that seems proper and advisable in view of all existing conditions and in the interest of the prompt acquisition of the stock."

Says Stock Would Be Cancelled.

It has been understood that the Directors believed that the mutualization could be completed by the use of a majority of the stock and that minority stockholders who did not wish to come in would continue to be paid a 7 per cent. dividend on their holdings. The lawyer quoted said last night that if the company took in General du Pont's stock it would become cancelled stock, and a majority of the minority stock would then become the majority stock.

"This will be true unless all precedents of corporation law are overturned," he said.

That this was not the understanding of the Directors was shown by Judge Day's statement, in which he named three Trustees, to whom the stock would be turned over until all was acquired, and then it would be cancelled. These Trustees would vote the stock in favor of qualifying policy holders to vote for Directors.

It is probable, therefore, that any proceedings against putting the mutualization plan into effect would take the form of an injunction proceedings to restrain the Directors from paying General du Pont the $2,790,000 as proposed in the announcement of Judge Day. This would be opposed by the Directors, it is said, and the whole matter perhaps brought into court. The lawyer hinted that perhaps a settlement might be made out of court.

Dr. Samuel Lambert, who holds some of the minority stock, said last night that he had received no official notification of the plans of the Equitable Directors, and that he would not say whether their plans were acceptable to him until he knew what he was to get for his stock.

That all of the minority stockholders will not oppose the mutualization plan is certain. George W. Perkins, one of them, has said as much. Among the minority stockholders are several officials of the Equitable, who will probably not put in any opposition to the Directors' plans. James H. Hyde, as representative of the Hyde estate, the former controlling interest in the Equitable, is a minority stockholder, as are also the estate of ex-President Grover Cleveland, Thomas Spratt of Ogdensburg, Chairman of the Equitable Mutualization Committee, and Chauncey M. Depew.

P. S. DU PONT WINS POINT.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., July 24.—Judge Thompson in the United States District Court here today handed down a supplemental opinion in the du Pont securities case, involving the ownership of the shares of stock in the powder company formerly held by Coleman du Pont. He directs a stockholders' meeting to be held to pass on the question whether the company shall acquire from Pierre S. du Pont and his associates the stock purchased from Coleman du Pont.

This is the point for which P. S. du Pont and his associate defendants contended after a former opinion of the court had held that they acted in bad faith in not purchasing the stock for the benefit of the company. The Judge makes it plain that the right to take the stock is in the hands of the stockholders.

In reviewing some points in his previous opinion the court holds that a number of other defendants, officers, and directors of the company, acted with P. S. du Pont in purchasing the Coleman du Pont stock and in the organization of the du Pont Securities Company for the purpose of financing and purchasing the same, and that they therefore participated with Pierre du Pont in what the court holds to be a violation of duty.

THE COTTON MARKET

After an Irregular Session Prices Show a Net Decline of 3 to 26 Points.

After a very irregular session, during which prices at one time sold 20 to 23 points net higher in the case of active months, the cotton market finished the day with a net decline of 8 to 26 points. The weakest part of the session was shortly after the opening, when October contracts sold down to 23.61, or 24 points below the previous day, in response to rumors that the National Ginners made the crop condition 73, or 2.7 points better than the last Government report. On this decline there was some active selling, partly by Wall Street and Liverpool and also by the South, the latter being in large part against new crop cotton in Texas.

This gave color to the favorable reports that have been coming from that State since the rains, although they were modified somewhat yesterday by predictions for higher temperatures, which presumably would have the effect of drying the soil rapidly, and, as there is little sub-soil moisture in that State, according to dispatches received here, the effect might be unfavorable in the near future. Eastern belt conditions were again referred to bullishly in a number of dispatches, on the idea that there had been no letup in the showery conditions and that the crop is beginning to show the effects of too much rain. This situation was emphasized by the predictions of local weather observers that further heavy rains are likely to prevail in the Eastern belt during the next few days. On the declines trade buying became conspicuous again and had much to do with the advance to 24.08c for October in the early afternoon.

Japanese interests were again prominent in this connection, and it was said that the early Texas cotton would be largely taken up by Japanese merchants this season, as mills there have done a big business with Far Eastern countries that formerly purchased from Manchester, in addition to supplying the military requirements, in a large measure, of Russia.

Advices from New Orleans were to the effect that the demand for spots continues good and that sales were easily made at a full basis, giving the impression that some freight room must have been available for export. Most of the 19,108 bales reported for export yesterday were sent from New York. They brought the season's figures up to 5,384,270 bales, against 5,034,715 for the same period last year.

A few July notices were circulated in the forenoon and seemed to have liquidated a comparatively large number of open July longs. July at that time was offered at 150 points over October.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

The wheat market experienced a setback during yesterday's session, but the decline seemed to be due more to technical conditions than to any particular change in the situation at large. The demand from July shorts was less urgent, and with only one more week of the present month it is only reasonable to believe that shorts have covered their contracts, especially as there seemed to be little prospect of securing the cash wheat with which to deliver. Exporters were out of the market, at least they were not inclined to pay anywhere near prevailing prices. The local spot market was nominal owing to a lack of offers.

CORN.

The position in cash corn was not materially changed, but futures were under more pressure and, in consequence, prices showed losses of ½@2⅝c. The new crop positions showed the greatest declines, and it was thought that shorts had covered and that the technical position was correspondingly weaker. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at $2.25, delivered, spot.

OATS.

The oats market was firm early, but developed a weaker tone, closing 1⅛@2⅜c net lower. Cash oats were said to be weaker in the West at reduced premiums, and this caused increased selling of July. The new crop outlook was favorable and threshing returns showed splendid yields. The local cash market was barely steady; standard quoted at 93@93½c; No. 2 white, 93½@94c; No. 3 white, 93½@93c; No. 4 white, 93@93½c; fancy clipped white, 95c; ordinary clipped white, 91@93c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The market for hog products showed a heavy undertone and prices were lower throughout the list. The price of hogs was slightly higher and it was said that there was a fair cash trade, but the market felt the influence of commission house selling, which was thought to have originated in the break in cottonseed oil. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 14,000, estimated for Wednesday 25,000; Kansas City received 9,000 and Omaha 13,000.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The local market for cottonseed oil experienced another sharp decline, and, while closing prices were slightly above the low, they showed net losses of 40 to 70 points. Total sales were 43,200 barrels. Range of prices:

COFFEE.

The coffee market acted rather heavy around the opening yesterday, but regained the loss later in the session and at the close was 2 to 5 points net lower and about 7 points up from the bottom. The early selling carried September down to 7.75c and December to 7.85c, or 10 points under the previous night. A sale of Rio 7s was reported Monday at 8.20c and 8.25c, American credits. SUGAR.

The market for sugar futures opened steady at an advance of 2@3 points, and later firmed up and made further gains on good trade buying, due to the higher and stronger market for spot sugar and the advance in refined. The market closed firm, 2@8 points net higher, with sales amounting to 16,200 tons, some of which was represented in switching operations, July to August, at 5 points, and August to September at 5 points. The market for refined sugar was firm and unchanged to 25 points higher, with prices now ranging from 7.75c to 7.85c for fine granulated. There was a good inquiry reported, but business was light, as refiners were oversold and more inclined to catch up on old orders than to accept new business. Tuesday's advance carried raw sugar to the record price, 5¾c, cost and freight, equal to 6.64c duty paid. Local refiners cleared the market of all offerings at this price, taking about 60,000 bags Cubas from store and in various shipment positions, with a further buying interest at the close at 5¾c, cost and freight, with sellers advancing their ideas ¼c. The undertone is strong and conditions generally favor still higher prices. Spot quotations follow: Centrifugal, 6.64c; molasses, 5.76c; cost and freight, 5¾c.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 15,375 packages. Receipts were heavy, speculative buying less in evidence, and the market closed with an easier tone, with some decline on high grades of creamery; medium and lower grades selling fairly well at sustained prices. creamery, higher than extras, pound, 39¾@40¼c; extras, (92 score,) 39½c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 38¼@39¼c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 36@38c; thirds, 34½@35½c; unsalted, higher than extras, 41@41¼c; extras, 40@40½c; firsts, 39@39¼c; seconds, 38½@38¾c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 39@39½c; good to prime, 37@38¼c; common to fair, 34@36c; renovated extras, 36¼@37c; firsts, 35½@36c; lower grades, 33¼@35c; imitation creamery, firsts, 35½@36c; ladies, current make, firsts, 34½@35c; seconds, 33¾@34c; lower grades, 32@33c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 33¼@34c; No. 2, 33@33½c; lower grades, 31@32¼c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 17,850 cases. General conditions were unchanged. High grades of fresh-gathered stock containing a good proportion of full strong-bodied, heat-free eggs are in small supply and firm, with prompt outlet. General offerings are pressing for sale at weak and irregular prices. Full range of values is without material change, but on grades below fine the average is lower. Nearby white eggs in light supply and fancy qualities are scarce, with hardly enough to satisfy the needs of the trade. Under grades irregular. STEAMSHIP EARNINGS GROW.

International Mercantile Marine Gives Details of Prosperity.

The International Mercantile Marine Company set forth yesterday in the first annual report since the receivership more details of its exceptional prosperity in 1916 than were presented to the shareholders at the annual meeting on June 4. The statement showed that the vessels directly owned by the company and the ships operated by subsidiary concerns, mostly British, earned a gross income of $87,449,725 after the English excess profits tax had been taken. As the parent company considers as its gross income only the earnings of its own ships and dividends paid in by the subsidiaries, the actual gross obtained by the Mercantile Marine treasury was $70,116,114, compared with $55,364,167 in 1915 and $45,620,556 in 1914.

The net profit earned by the various companies was $26,027,295, a total less by about $270,000 than the preliminary statement estimated, and of this $25,946,650 was turned into the treasury, against $17,341,027 the year before and $3,307,028 in 1914. This profit was reported after fixed charges amounting to $3,698,025 had been met and was equal to slightly more than $50 a share on the outstanding preferred stock.

In respect to expansion plans the report said:

"Since August, 1914, only a comparatively small amount of tonnage under construction has been delivered, owing to delays and difficulties brought about by the European war. The company and its subsidiaries now have under construction and ordered in Great Britain and the United States steamers of a gross tonnage amounting to 248,800.

"Although steamers have been lost through attack by enemy submarines and raiders," the report continued, "it is most satisfactory to be able to state that the entire fleet was operated throughout the year 1915 with the loss of only one steamer from ordinary marine perils. Grateful acknowledgment and appreciation is recorded for the protection afforded steamers by the British Navy. The board also desires to express its deep appreciation of the very thorough manner in which the Navy Department of the United States supplied during the current year to each of the American flag steamers an efficient armed guard which enabled them to be operated with passengers, cargo, and mails through the war zone."

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Softness succeeded early firmness in the market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Prices began to weaken following the news of the reorganization of the Shipping Board. Earlier in the day it had looked as if the market had become, temporarily at least, oversold. A number of the prominent trading specialties rose sharply.

M'INTYRE REFUSES A WALLSTEIN CASE

NEW INQUIRY BY SWANN

Judge McIntyre of the Court of General Sessions refused yesterday to pass on the motion of Frank Aranow, who asked on Monday for the dismissal of one of the three indictments against his client, Charles M. Strauss, on the ground that Strauss, a former employe of the Department of Licenses, had been induced to seek a bribe by William H. Boyle, an investigator employed by Commissioner of Accounts Wallstein. Judge McIntyre referred the case to Judge Nott of General Sessions, saying:

"My knowledge of the character of one of the witnesses is such that I would prefer to have another Judge pass on the case."

When the motion was made in behalf of Strauss to inspect the minutes of the Grand Jury some time ago, Judge McIntyre mentioned Boyle and said:

"It is a shame that a man of such a character should be employed in a public position."

The part that Boyle has played in this case has caused friction for some time between the office of Commissioner of Accounts Wallstein and District Attorney Swann. One development yesterday was an exchange of sharp letters between the two officials.

The wrangle over the charge that Commissioner of Accounts Wallstein's employe had used city money to run a flat, which was supplied with whisky and where marked bills were passed to city employes who had agreed to accept bribes, started a new investigation by the District Attorney's office yesterday. All the evidence relating to this flat was collected, and the project of a Grand Jury investigation into the propriety of the city's maintaining a whisky supply and a flat with which to aid in getting evidence of corruption against city employes was discussed.

The statement was made by District Attorney Swann yesterday that M. F. Loughman, foreman of the Grand Jury, and four members of the jury which indicted Strauss had gone to Judge Mulqueen to complain of the methods employed by Boyle in obtaining evidence against city employes at the city flat.

Commissioner Wallstein has admitted that whisky was part of the means used for the detection of grafters at the city flat, but denied another story that several women were kept there. He said that the only woman was a detective employed by the Commissioner of Accounts. This woman, he said, posed as a sister of Boyle. Regarding Judge McIntyre's animadversions on Boyle, Commissioner of Accounts Wallstein said that Judge McIntyre, before he went upon the bench, had made a bitter attack on Boyle during the trial of the Plotz case, where a meat dealer was accused of bribing inspectors, but that Boyle's testimony had resulted in conviction.

Commissioner Wallstein, in his letter to District Attorney Swann, said yesterday that the District Attorney's office had declined to prosecute the Strauss case until Chief Magistrate McAdoo had held the defendant for the Grand Jury; that Assistant District Attorney Black had submitted a brief quoting a dissenting opinion without noting that it was opposed to the majority opinion, and that the office of Commissioner of Accounts had not been notified that the motion to dismiss one of the Strauss indictments was to be argued.

In his reply, District Attorney Swann denied that his office had declined to prosecute the case and added that he would submit to the court any brief which Commissioner Wallstein might offer, although such a proceeding would be unprecedented.

Mrs. Alfredo Cocchi, wife of the murderer of Ruth Cruger, who was questioned yesterday in the District Attorney's office and before the Grand Jury, named two more policemen who, she said, examined the cellar of Cocchi's shop, at 127th and Manhattan Streets, on the night of his escape, Feb. 15, two days after the murder, and failed to find anything suspicious, though they walked over the floor under which the body was buried.

The two men she named were Koberlein and Mullahy of the West 125th Street Station. Mrs. Cocchi said she had notified the two that her husband was missing, and that she feared he had run off with a girl. The two policemen forced open the door of the shop, and then searched upstairs and down, looking for Cocchi. When they found nothing of him the two policemen, she said, advised her to go to the Fourth Branch Detective Bureau. The investigation by the District Attorney's office indicated yesterday that neither of the policemen reported the matter to the Fourth Branch or to his own precinct. Mrs. Cocchi said she intended to report the disappearance of her husband to the Fourth Branch, but was dissuaded by Joseph Frank, a friend and former partner of her husband, who said that if she waited another day he might return.

Besides Mrs. Cocchi other witnesses, whose names were not given, told the Grand Jury of their efforts to report the disappearance of Ruth Cruger at the Fourth Branch and at Headquarters, and of their failure to get the police to take an interest in the case.

The evidence put before the Grand Jury shows that if the detectives had been put to work on the case immediately after the report of the girl's absence had been made, Cocchi would have been arrested that night and the body would have been discovered before it was buried.

SAYS NO TO MRS. HUMISTON.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, July 24.—Governor Whitman this afternoon refused the application of Mrs. Grace Humiston, through whose efforts the body of Ruth Cruger was found, for appointment as a special Deputy Attorney General so that she might subpoena witnesses in her hunt for missing girls in New York. Mrs. Humiston was downhearted when she left the executive chamber. After the interview, which lasted half an hour, the Governor said:

"I am not justified in taking these matters out of the hands of the authorities. Should I grant the application it would necessarily mean that the machinery for the enforcement of the criminal law in New York had broken down. I am by no means satisfied that the work which Mrs. Humiston contemplates should be taken out of the hands of the police department or the public prosecutor."

Outside the executive chamber Mrs. Humiston, plainly agitated, declared she did not care for the salary of a Deputy Attorney General; all she wanted was a chance to do something for the missing girls and to uncover vice.

"I will lift off the lid and uncover some things that are going on in New York City," she said. "I am going to ask the extra session of the Legislature to do something so that the New York police can investigate properly. Do you know that the Commissioner of Police has not the authority to summon a witness to his office? He has not, but he should have."

HERO OF THE APPAM DIES.

Ashburner Refused to Take German Orders Under Death Threat.

It was learned yesterday that G. P. Ashburner, who was chief engineer of the British liner Appam at the time of her capture by the German sea-raider Moewe, had died on Monday in St. Luke's Hospital. Funeral services will be held for him in the chapel of the hospital at 11:30 this morning.

Mr. Ashburner, when the Appam was captured, was ordered by the Germans to continue as chief engineer, but he refused to take orders from any one but Captain Harrison, his own commander, even under threat of death. When the Appam was brought into Hampton Roads and the British prisoners were released by the American authorities, Mr. Ashburner came to New York with the others.

It is understood that his testimony played an important part in the Admiralty case which ended in the Appam being returned to her original owners by a decision of the United States Supreme Court. Since then he had continued in the employ of the Elder-Dempster Company, owners of the Appam, acting as port engineer in New York. On July 13 last he was stricken with paralysis while in the company's New York office, and had been in the hospital since.

BAFF'S SON ASSAILS COHEN.

Begged Joseph, One Defendant, to "Let Up," He Says.

Harry Baff, son of Barnet Baff, denied on the witness stand yesterday at the trial of Joseph and Jacob Cohen, Abraham Graff, and David Jacobs, charged with instigating the murder of the West Washington Market poultry dealer, that his father had ever been friendly with the defendant, Joseph Cohen. While testifying in his own behalf Cohen laid particular stress on the fact that he was one of Baff's most intimate friends and always addressed him as "Pop."

"Joseph Cohen has testified that he frequently met your father and drank with him. Is this a fact?" asked Deputy Attorney General O'Malley.

"That sounds ridiculous," Baff replied, "I never heard of my father taking a drink with Joe Cohen. We called Cohen to our office and I said to him, 'Joe, let up on us. First it was the bomb and now you assault our weighmaster. Why not let up on us and we will give you our work?' Father objected to this. He said he would not allow Cohen to do our work. Joe then said blandly: 'Give me back the work and everything will be satisfactory. You know that I can't help it if my men beat up somebody.'"

Both sides closed yesterday, and Justice Tompkins announced that he would devote today's sessions to listening to the arguments of counsel. The case will go to the jury tomorrow.

COURT HOLDS MRS. BRIGGS.

Mrs. Elizabeth Austin Briggs of 978 Lincoln Place, Brooklyn, charged with receiving stolen property, was held for the Grand Jury in Essex Market Court yesterday by Magistrate Krotel.

Mrs. Briggs was arrested on complaint of James E. Foye, who swore that out of the proceeds of a $100,000 robbery committed by him he had given her $21,000, which she deposited in a bank in this city under the name of Elizabeth Austin, and later drew it out. Foye forged the names of two men to ten certificates of General Electric Company stock and served a term in a Pennsylvania prison. Later he made restitution of the greater amount of the stolen money.

Following the action of Magistrate Krotel, counsel for Mrs. Briggs sued out a writ of habeas corpus before Supreme Court Justice Ordway. Her petition said that her imprisonment in the Tombs was illegal because the charges on which she has been held were insufficient.

MARBLE MEN INDICTED.

BALTIMORE, July 24.—An indictment was returned in the United States Court here today against the National Retail Monument Dealers' Association of America, Incorporated, its officers and members of the board of managers, for alleged violations of the Sherman anti-trust act.

The indicted men include the following: O. J. Hammell, Pleasantville, N. J., President; G. E. Wemhoff, Decatur, Ind., Vice President; C. B. Holden, Cherokee, Iowa, Vice President; J. H. Marstellar, Roanoke, Va., Vice President; G. M. Lennon, Joliet, Ill., Vice President; Frank Mallon, Port Huron, Mich., Secretary; T. F. Gaebler, Rockville, Ind., Treasurer; F. D. Sedgwick, Dallas, Texas, and S. R. Sullivan, Pencoyd, Penn.; who are described as members of the executive committee and board of managers.

During the last three years, it is charged, investigations of Government agents are said to have resulted in discoveries that the defendants have violated the Sherman law by preventing certain dealers from obtaining marble and granite from producers who are associated with the corporation.

BOY KILLED IN ELEVATOR.

Operator Held After Accident in Department Store.

Adam L. Crowell, 13 years old, son of T. I. Crowell of 512 Park Street, Montclair, N. J., President and Treasurer of the T. Y. Crowell Company, publishers of this city, was killed in the James McCreery & Co. department store, 5 West Thirty-fourth Street, yesterday afternoon, when he was caught in the doors of an elevator. The elevator operator, John Hargenheimer, was held by the police on a charge of homicide.

The elevator was going up at the time of the accident and was filled, mostly with women. It had stopped at the seventh floor. When it started upward, young Crowell was pinioned by the doors and crushed between the floor of the car and the ceiling of the seventh floor of the store.

Hargenheimer told the police that just as he started the car, the boy had tried to get out and blocked the doors so that they could not be closed. After listening to the accounts of several witnesses, the police of the West Thirtieth Street Station arrested Harganheimer.

ASKS ITEMIZED BILLS FOR ALL PHONE CALLS

ALSO FAVORS SLOT MACHINE

Corporation, in Reply, Says Operators Would Have to Make Out 775,000,000 Tickets a Year.

Several suggestions as to how the New York Telephone Company could improve its system and eliminate the possibilities of errors resulting in overcharges to subscribers, &c., were discussed before Public Service Commissioner William Temple Emmet at a hearing held in the Metropolitan Building yesterday on a complaint made against the company by Dr. Samuel G. Tracy. Dr. Tracy, who asserted that the company had overcharged him on more than seventy messages since September, insisted that the company should be ordered to render itemized bills to all subscribers or that coin slot machines be placed in offices and homes of subscribers.

Both of these remedies had been declared by officials of the company to be impracticable on many previous occasions. D. H. Fuller of the engineering department of the New York Telephone Company testified yesterday that under the present system it would be absolutely impossible to render itemized bills to subscribers without involving an additional equipment of employes and machinery, so vast in proportion as to eliminate almost all possibilities of profit.

The registration of calls now is accomplished by an electrical device which records numerically the number of calls made by any particular subscriber. To itemize the calls would require the services of an additional force of operators at each switchboard, who would have to give their entire attention to bookkeeping.

"Under such a system," Mr. Fuller said, "the operators would have to make out about 775,000,000 tickets a year. It would vastly increase the possibilities of errors instead of decreasing it and slow up the entire telephone system."

Mr. Fuller's objection to the installation of coin slot machines in homes and offices was based on the fact that such a step would also involve a very elaborate and expensive equipment, without improving the service in the slightest. Coin slot machine service, he said, was much slower than the direct communication with central. It was found to be impractical for general subscribers because no mechanical means had been found of adapting the coin slot machine to party line attchments without causing great confusion both to the operator and the subscribers. If coin slot machines were used in the party line system, he said, the operator would often be returning coins to the wrong party.

Dr. Tracy called attention to the alleged discrimination involved in the system of overtime charges on local connections. He pointed out that there was no method by which the operators could keep an infallible record of the time which a connection consumed, so that while some subscribers would be charged for all overtime calls, many others would escape.

J. L. Turner, Traffic Superintendent of the New York Telephone Company, asserted that the discrimination was unintentional, and that telephone operators were directed to observe a uniform rule for all calls that lasted more than five minutes. A recent investigation, he said, showed that in fully 12 per cent. of the traffic, where the company was entitled to an overtime charge, no such charge was made.

"In order that there may be no unjust overtime charges," said Mr. Turner, "we follow a very liberal rule. The operator, after she becomes aware of the fact that the call is extending over five minutes, takes note from that moment on of the time consumed in the connection until it ends. Then from the time which elapsed between the moment she began to make a record of it and the conclusion of the connection, she subtracts five minutes and bases the extra charge on the remainder. In this way the subscriber is absolutely protected, although the company loses many charges to which it is legitimately entitled.

Few errors were made in charging subscribers for connections which they did not get, it was asserted. Mr. Turner said that the percentage of cases where the operator did not get the connection called for and failed to write a credit slip to the credit of the subscriber, was found to amount to 78-100 of 1 per cent.

Commissioner Emmet reserved decision on Dr. Tracy's complaint and gave the physician a month in which to submit a further brief.

Mrs. Foraker Fails to Press Charge.

When Mrs. Kathryn Foraker, daughter-in-law of the late ex-United States Senator Foraker, failed to appear yesterday against Alphonse Pelham of 45 Riverside Drive, Magistrate Krotel, in the Essex Market Court, dismissed the complaint against him. Pelham had been charged by Mrs. Foraker with misappropriating money given him to pay a bill at the Hotel Majestic. Magistrate Krotel had before him briefs from counsel for both sides when he decided to dismiss the case.

WOMAN HELD FOR GEM THEFT

When arraigned on a charge of grand larceny for the alleged theft of a diamond ring, Mrs. Louise Massena of 106 Morningside Avenue waived examination and was held in $1,000 bail by Magistrate Simms of the Washington Heights Court yesterday for trial in the court of General Sessions.

Mrs. Massena was arrested by Detectives Namoli and Hines of the Fourth Branch Bureau when Miss Catherine Manley of 216 West 100th Street, a student of Columbia University and the daughter of a coal operator of Scranton, Penn., complained that her ring had been stolen. According to the affidavits attached to the complaint, Miss Manley met the defendant on the campus of Columbia two weeks ago and invited her to visit her at her apartment, which at that time was in the same building in which the defendant now lives. Mrs. Massena called, according to the affidavit, and a few minutes after she departed Miss Manley missed a diamond ring valued at $250, which she had left on a dresser, and on which her guest had rested her hat during the visit. An investigation was made and the diamond ring, according to the detectives, was found in the apartment of the defendant.

"GERMAN PLOT" HARMLESS.

Men Arrested Were Fishing for Fluke and Not Atlantic Cables.

Another "German plot," the discovery of which by the alert Sergeant of a military patrol, caused much excitement at Manhattan Beach on Monday, was exploded yesterday when the three supposed agents of the Kaiser under arrest were questioned by United States District Attorney France in Brooklyn. The soldiers who arrested the men suspected that they were trying to drag up the Atlantic cables which enter the ocean at the eastern end of Coney Island for the purpose of cutting those lines of undersea communication between this country and its allies. It developed yesterday that the prisoners were not fishing for transatlantic cables but for fluke, or flounder.

District Attorney France found that the supposed German agents were all American-born, good citizens, and pursuing the innocent vocation of railroad trainmen. They were Robert C. Pollock, 53 years old of 1,104 East Third Street, Brooklyn; William A. Horn of 15 Cooper Street, Manhattan, and Eugene Jones of 2,812 Church Avenue, Brooklyn. Pollock and Horn have for years been employed as conductors and Jones as a brakeman by the New York Central.

MARS BELGIAN RECEPTION.

Kentucky Guardsman Fires When Paraders Refuse to Halt.

LOUISVILLE, July 24.—A sentry guarding the cantonment discharged his rifle at the parade of the Belgian war mission here today when the car leading the procession refused to heed his command to halt. The rifleman fired above the heads of the occupants of the car. He was placed under arrest.

The mission was about to enter the camp under the guidance of H. T. Kelsey, who was in the first car directly in front of Baron Moncheur, chief of the mission. When the order to halt was received, Kelsey directed the chauffeur to ignore it. The sentry promptly fired over the car, and it came to a halt. A military officer from the camp, who was in the second car, ordered the sentryman relieved from duty.

The mission was entertained here by a drive about the city and at a public luncheon. At 2 o'clock they left for Cincinnati, the last stop of the tour of more than 8,000 miles. They will reach Washington early tomorrow evening.

Service Board Accuses Company of Using Courts for Purposes of Delay.

ASKS DISMISSAL OF WRIT

Counsel for Commission Says That Crowding Has Become Intolerable and Calls for Immediate Action.

William L. Ransom, chief counsel for the Public Service Commission, filed with Justice Ordway yesterday a memorandum in support of his motion to dismiss the writs of certiorari obtained by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company for a review of the action of the commission ordering the company to add 250 new cars to the Brooklyn surface lines. The memorandum deals severely with the company and accuses it of resorting to judicial machinery for the sole purpose of delaying action demanded by the public.

The memorandum described the proceedings as "a peculiarly flagrant illustration of a condition which greatly weakens the fair workings of the Public Service Commission law." It said that the motion to dismiss the writs was made because the courts have the responsibility and the power to put an end to an unfounded "preconception that has been in course of creation as to certiorari review when applied to orders of the Public Service Commission." A recent decision of the Court of Appeals denied the power of the courts to interfere with any ordr of the commission except when purely legal questions were involved.

It is alleged in the memorandum that before the commission had made any findings in the matter, the Traffic Superintendent and other men employed by the company, whose business it was to maintain schedules and "carry passengers in a decent fashion," recommended the purchase of additional cars. Plans of new cars and specifications were filed with the commission, and it was understood the company was prepared to go ahead and place orders for the cars. Then the order for the cars was filed by the commission. It was then, according to the memorandum, that the holding company of the railroads resolved to "break faith" and by a judicial review absolve the bankers from furnishing at this time the money for the cars.

"Of course," the memorandum then said, "if these motions are denied and the writs are left to be heard in October, no cars will be procured for the coming Winter, despite a complete affirmance with the commission's order.

"The relator companies' own correspondence, acts, course of conduct, and sworn admissions should lead this court to the conclusion that no substantial right of the companies has been infringed, that the writs were sought only to procure a postponement which would in itself defeat the purposes of the proper order of the commission, and that in consequence this court should exercise its well-adjudicated power of dismissing in the public interest this discretionary writ.

Concerning the traffic condition on the surface lines in Brooklyn, the memorandum says that they have long been seriously and offensively congested, especially in Winter.

Our Former German Ambassador, James W. Gerard, Says:

JAMES W. GERARD
Late United States Ambassador to the German Empire

"I AM writing what should have been the last chapter as the foreword of this series of articles, because I want to bring home to our people the gravity of the situation; because I want to tell them that the military and naval power of the German Empire is unbroken. Americans do not grasp either the magnitude or the importance of this war. . . . There is far greater danger of the starvation of our allies than of the starvation of the Germans. . . . We are engaged in a war against the greatest military power the world has ever seen; against a people whose country was for so many centuries a theatre of devastating wars that fear is bred into the very marrow of their souls, making them ready to submit their lives and fortunes to an autocracy which for centuries has ground their faces, but which has promised them as a result of the war not only security, but riches untold and the dominion of the world; a people which, as from a high mountain, has looked upon the cities of the world and the glories of them and has been promised these cities and their glories by the devils of autocracy and of war. . . . We stand in great peril, and only the exercise of ruthless realism can win this war for us. . . . If we had stayed out and the war had been drawn or won by Germany we would have been attacked, and that while Europe stood grinning by. . . . I TELL SOMETHING OF THE REAL GERMANY not only that my readers may understand the events of the last three years, but that they may judge what is likely to happen in our future relations with that country."
